4 injured in area jet crash

by LUISA GINETTI and DEBBE JONAK

Four persons were injured Wednesday when a small business jet attempting to land at Pal-Waukee Airport in Prospect Heights crashed into an equipment dealership after skidding across a runway and striking two cars on Palatine Road.

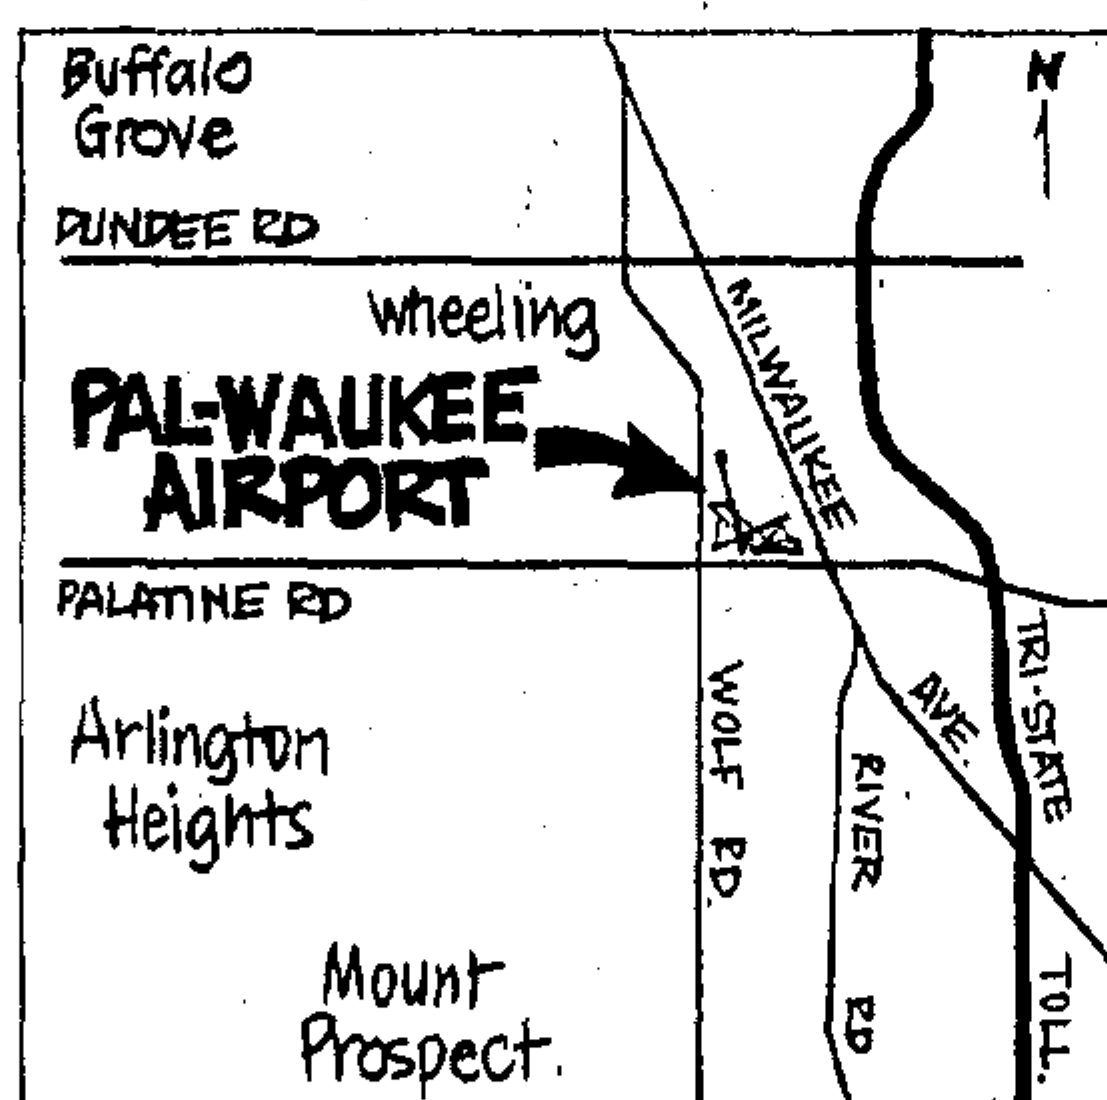

The Sabreliner jet owned by Rockwell International Inc. with two persons aboard crashed into the Lewis International Inc. building, 55 E. Palatine Rd. shortly before 2 p.m.

Injured in the crash and taken to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines were the pilot, John Pilato, 49, of Ambridge, Pa.; the co-pilot, Ted Chitanvar, 32, of McKees Rock, Pa.; an employee at the building, Richard Pankratz, 22, of 1500 Seven Pine St., Schaumburg, and Richard F. Bauer, 32, of 821 Lily Ln., Palatine, driver of an auto struck by the plane. Dennis Van Ewyck, 25, of Elmhurst, was the driver of the other car. He was not injured.

HOSPITAL OFFICIALS reported Bauer and Pilato were released Wednesday afternoon. Chitanvar was listed in good condition with lacerations. Pankratz was reported in intensive care with lacerations on the face and arms.

Hospital officials said Pankratz, an employee who was in the building when the 47-foot plane plowed through the front wall, was in stable condition and was kept overnight for observation.

Cornelius Quill, investigating officer with the Cook County Sheriff's police, said the plane's jets failed to reverse, forcing the pilot to rely on his brakes for the landing.

The plane made three attempts to land on the runway adjacent to Palatine Road, west of Milwaukee Avenue, Federal Aviation Administration officials said.

ON THE THIRD attempt, the plane's brakes locked after the engines failed to reverse. The plane skidded the length of the runway onto the grass, bounced over Palatine Road, striking two westbound cars and then crashed nose first into the front of the building.

The plane, its tail and left wing section protruding from the building, stopped three-quarters of the way into the parts section of the building, crumbling the east wall.

Wheeling Fire Chief Bernie Koepen said that when firefighters arrived at the scene both Pilato and Chitanvar were free from the wreckage, stunned but apparently not seriously hurt.

Employees in the building said they heard a crash and ran out of the building when the plane came barreling into it. Nineteen employees were evacuated from the building including Pete Lewis, the owner.

"I don't remember what happened," Lewis said. "There was no explosion, thank God, or we all would have been gone. It was just a loud crash."

Fire officials made no attempt to move the wreckage but worked quickly to drain the plane of the 700 gallons of jet fuel in its tanks. Water hoses also were used to wash down the plane and channel leaking gasoline from inside the building to the street.

Koepen said there was no immediate damage estimate to the building.

FAA officials arrived on the scene within an hour of the 2 p.m. crash. Koepen said the plane would not be moved until today, and Wheeling fire and police officials were scheduled to monitor the area over night.

Cook County Sheriff's Police and Illinois State Police directed traffic on Palatine Road as onlookers caused traffic tie-ups. The site of the building is immediately south of the Milwaukee Avenue exit on eastbound Palatine Road.

FAA officials said the plane, based in Pittsburgh, was on a flight from Pontiac, Mich.

Pilato declined to comment following his release from the hospital.

Plane's swooping descent over 'in matter of seconds'

by LINDA PUNCH

"I saw it for just an instant. Then it hit my car. I saw the plane and I knew it was going to hit."

That's how Dennis Van Ewyck, a carpeting salesman from Elmhurst, described the Wednesday afternoon crash of a Sabreliner jet near Pal-Waukee Airport. Van Ewyck was driving west on Palatine Road south of the airport when he saw the plane.

"There was no way to avoid it. I instinctively put my head down. I heard a crash and as I looked up, I could see that my back window was knocked out," he said.

VAN EWYCK, 25, said the impact of the crash pushed his late-model, blue Buick LeSabre across the road, where it stopped several hundred yards later.

"It was all over in a matter of seconds. The right wing was over the car; the body of the plane fell over my trunk. I feel very lucky. I don't see how it could have been any closer," he said.

Mike Monckton, who was riding his motorcycle just behind Van Ewyck's car, said the jet hit a grass mound at the end of the runway and "skipped the car."

"I was just about to pass the car and I saw the plane coming out of the corner of my eye. I knew he wasn't going to take off," he said.

Monckton said the plane barely missed another car, broke its landing gear on the median strip and plowed into the Lewis International Inc. building, 55 E. Palatine Rd.

"I went across to the building and there was a guy crawling out of the plane. We found a board and carried him away from the side of the plane. It was too much. I couldn't believe it," he said.

MONCKTON OF GLENVIEW said the "only loud noise was when the plane shattered that guy's windshield. I can't believe anybody crawled out of there (the plane) alive," he said.

Steve Rothbart, a pilot, said he was visiting a sign shop at the neighboring Palwaukee Center for Industry "when I heard the crash."

"This guy came out of the side of the building and rolled over. I thought there was still somebody left but he came through the wall," he said.

Judge grants duo's plea for death

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Two confessed murderers who demanded they be sentenced to death in the electric chair got their wish Wednesday after the district attorney suggested "maybe they could flip a coin to see who goes first — or sit in each other's lap."

Circuit Judge Joseph Hocklander sentenced the defendants, Wayne Eugene Ritter, 23, and John Louis Evans, 27, both of Indianapolis, Ind., to die at Holman Prison on or before July 25.

Both acknowledged their roles in the slaying of pawn shop operator Edward A. Nassar Jr. Jan. 5 and threatened reprisals against any juror who failed to recommend the death sentence.

THE JURY RETURNED the conviction Tuesday afternoon and Hocklander held a hearing Wednesday to determine whether there were mitigating circumstances warranting a reduction of the death sentence recommended by the panel.

Neither defendant would allow his court-appointed attorney to present arguments during the hearing and Hocklander ordered the executions be carried out.

Alabama law provides automatic review by the State Supreme Court for capital punishment cases and Dist. Atty. Charles Graddick said he has asked chief Justice C. C. Torbert to expedite the appeal.

Ritter, testifying over objections of his defense attorney, told the jury it had "no other choice" than execution.

"If you give me life imprisonment I'll be out in 10 or 15 years," he said. "I know where you live, and I wouldn't appreciate spending that much time in prison."

"I'd have to come after you," he said.

GRADDICK, who agreed with the defendants that they should be put to death, told the jury of 11 men and one woman: "It is a shame we only have one electric chair. Maybe they could flip a coin and see who goes first, or sit on each other's lap."

The panel deliberated only 17 minutes before returning the guilty verdict. The one-day trial was the first capital case in Alabama to be filmed by television crews and recorded by radio stations.

The two men were accused of shooting Nassar in the presence of his 6- and 9-year-old daughters after entering his pawn shop and asking to see a gun.

Nassar's widow, dressed in black, sat near the rear of the courtroom during the trial.

Nixon talks freely on Frost show

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Richard Nixon's reactions on camera to pointed questions by television personality David Frost ranged from pleasure to discomfort, according to Marvin Minoff, vice president of Frost's Paradine Co.

"Sometimes Nixon was pleased with an answer he gave and showed it," Minoff said. "Sometimes he appeared uncomfortable. But he did not refuse point blank to answer any question put to him."

Minoff said he has been meeting with the former president off and on for almost two years in preparing the groundwork for the four 90-minute television interviews conducted by Frost during the past month.

THE SHOWS WILL be telecast by some 135 stations across the country beginning May 4 and continuing at weekly intervals May 12, May 19 and May 25.

Minoff, who was present at 11 of the 12 Frost-Nixon taping sessions, said "Nixon was cordial with me and David and the people of the crew."

"Once the cameras were going he was able to concentrate without any trouble. He's not a man who shows his feelings easily. Over the two years I've been talking to him, he seems a bit stronger now. He wasn't the man we saw on TV during Watergate."

Boys' Club barn ordered closed

The headquarters of the Hoffman Estates Boys' Club was ordered closed Wednesday after a fire department inspection revealed electrical and plumbing code violations and other problems officials say would jeopardize the safety of more than 200 persons. Village Mgr. George Longmeyer said the club barn, 161 Illinois Blvd., will not be allowed to reopen until electrical wiring has been brought up to standards, the plumbing repaired and a "tilting" fire escape is restored. The club rents the building from the village for $1 a year. David Norris, the club's full-time executive director, called the action "a bombshell." It would put 240 boys "back on the street in the summer when they have free time and that's going to spell big trouble," he said.

Volberding hires consulting firm

Herbert H. Volberding, Des Plaines' mayor-elect, has hired — without city council approval — a Chicago consulting firm to advise him about what problems he will face after he takes office Monday. City aldermen criticized Volberding after they learned of the move this week. Al Ronan, who is coordinating the study for the accounting firm of Pandolfi, Weiss and Co., said, "We assume it will be at the city's expense." City Atty. Charles Hug said that as mayor elect, Volberding has no power to contract services for the city.

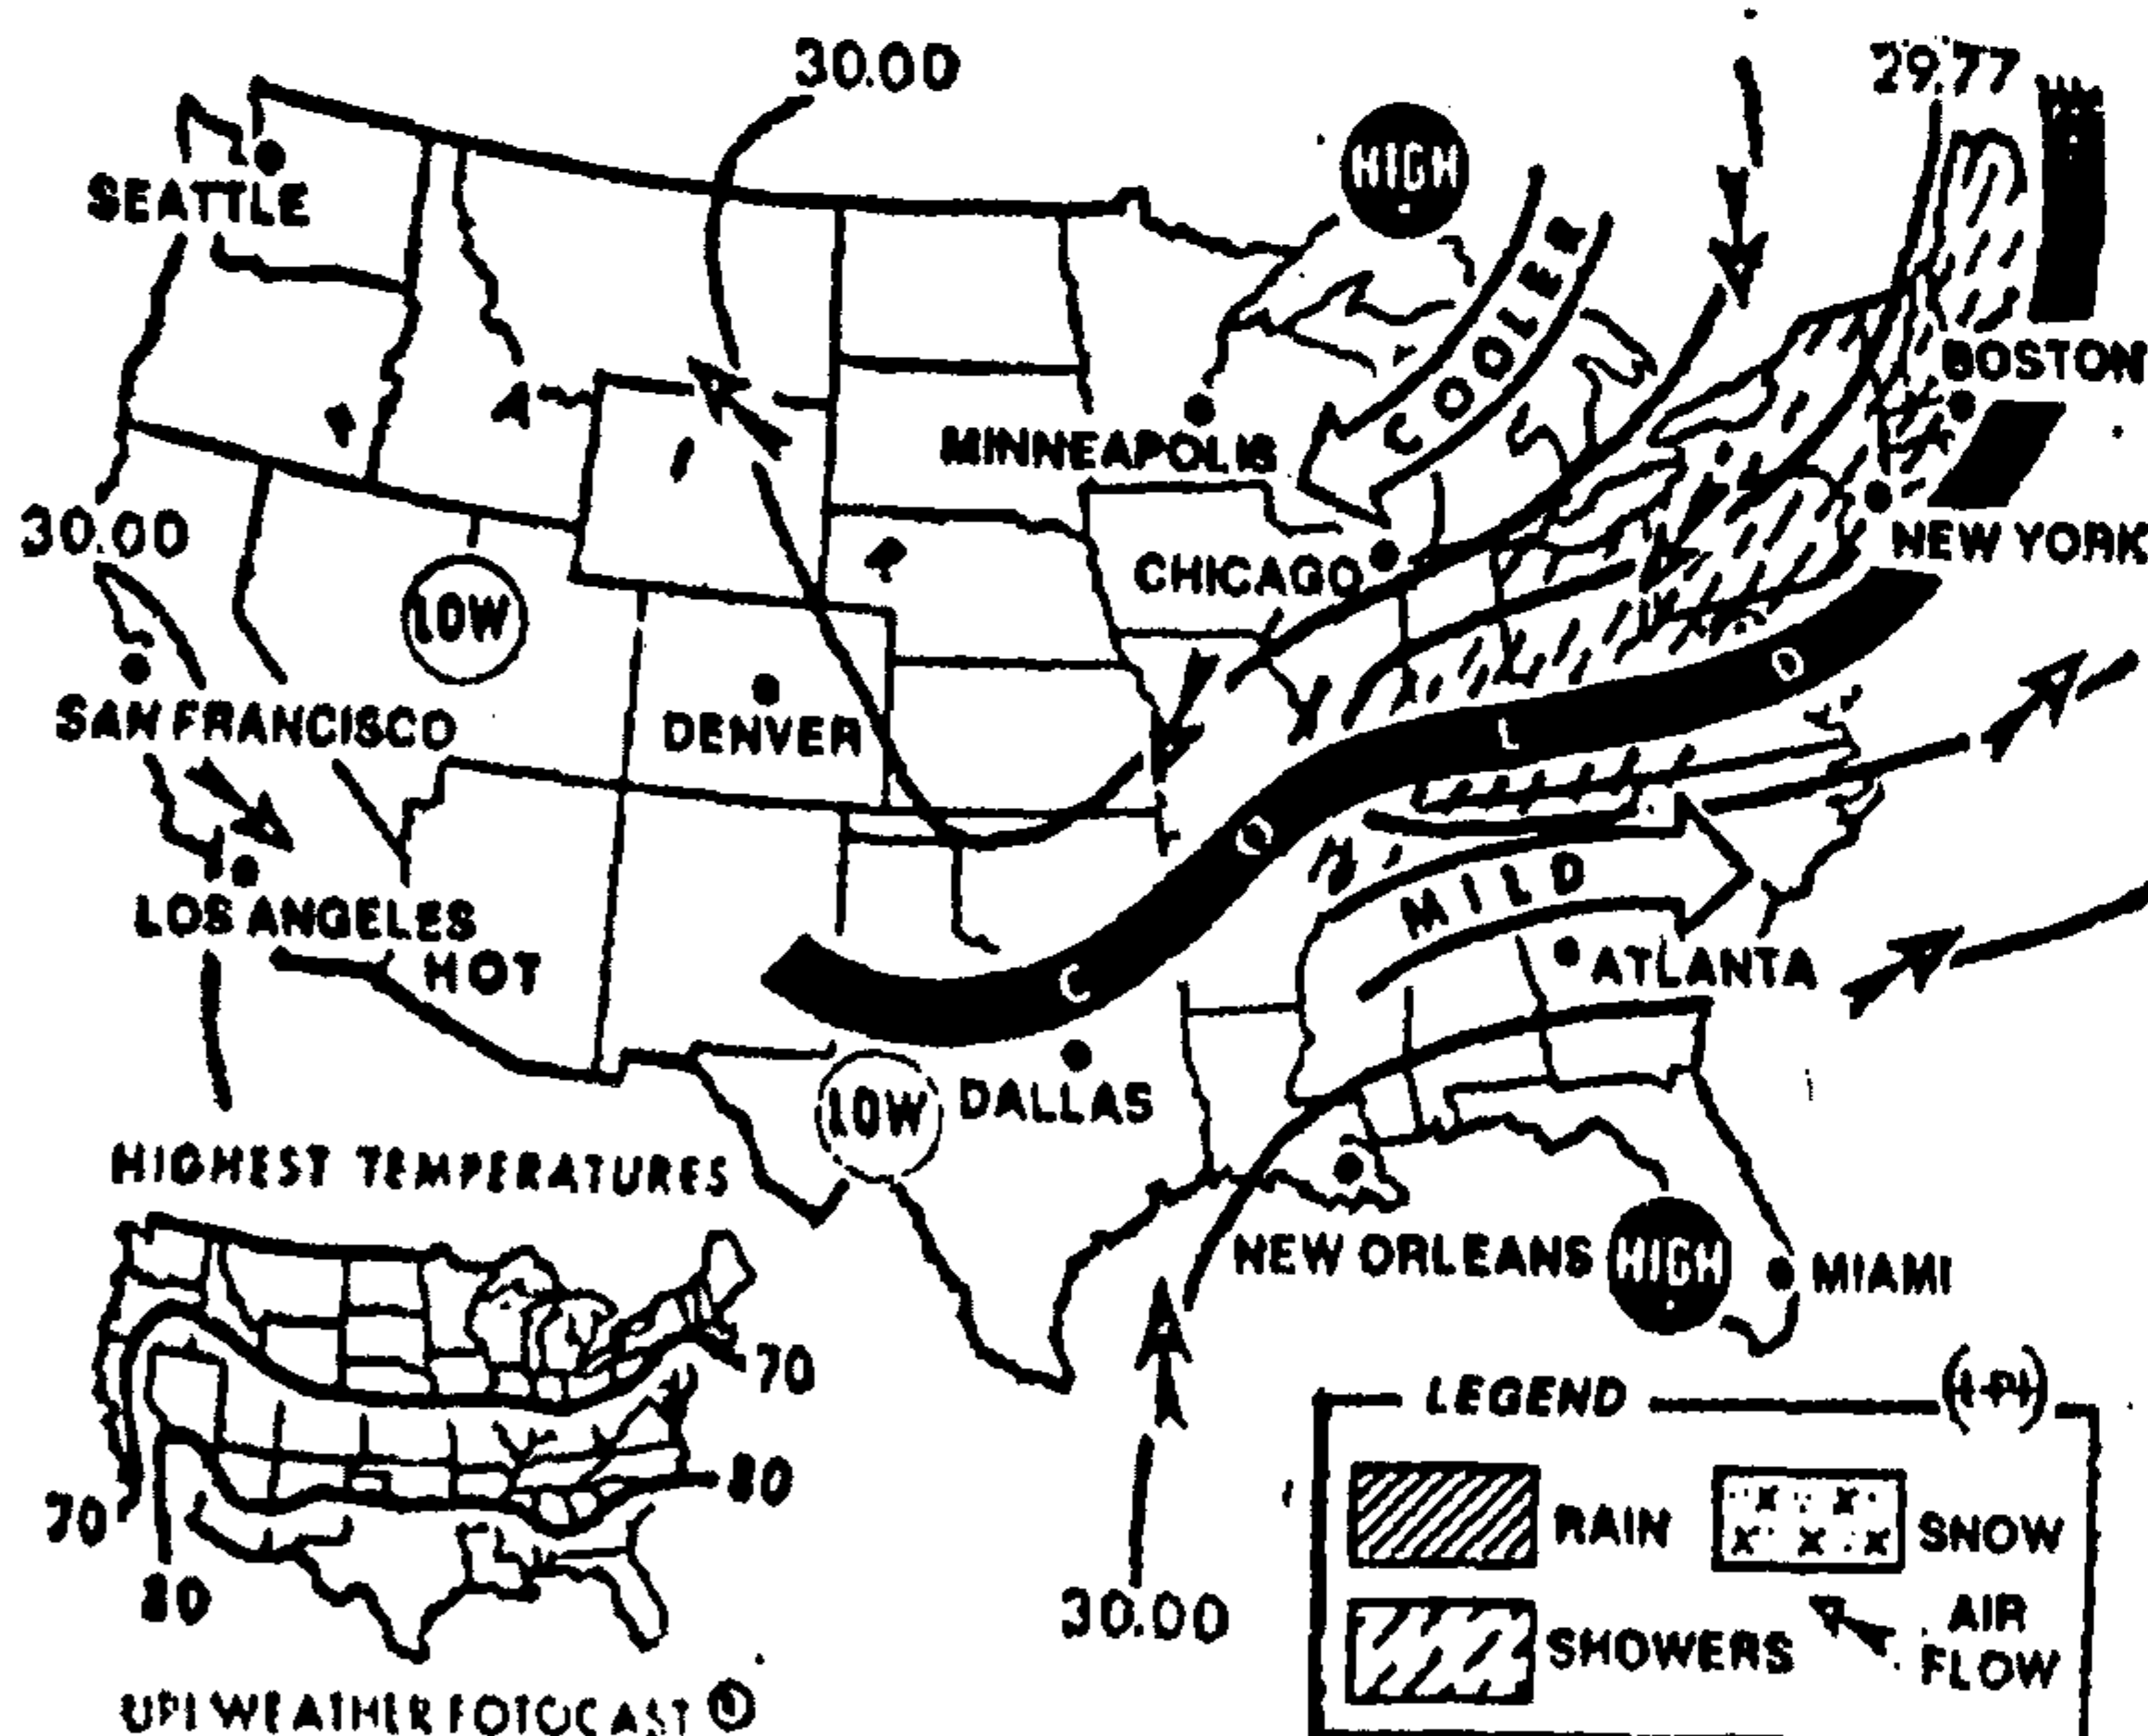

Hospital records to be subpoenaed

Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, will be subpoenaed for the medical records of 19-year-old Larry R. Stotts, who is charged in the stabbing murder of a Mount Prospect grocery store clerk Feb. 20. Subpoenas were sought Wednesday in Des Plaines branch of the Cook County Circuit Court by Stotts' attorney, Thomas H. Hanlon, who said hospital authorities refused to release the records, even with the signed consent of Stotts' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stotts, 1791 Dennis Pl., Mount Prospect. A spokesman for the hospital's medical records division said attorneys usually are allowed to obtain medical records but a subpoena must be issued if the material is to be used in court.

Airport area grows despite risks

by LYNN ASINOF

Serious crashes at Pal-Waukee

Serious crashes at Pal-Waukee Airport:

- December 1976. A twin-engine plane swerved off the runway and crashed into two parked planes on a takeoff run. Three received minor injuries.
- September 1975. Two persons were killed when a single-engine plane crashed in a field along Wolf Road after taking off from the airport. Engine malfunction blamed.
- March 1975. A twin-engine plane crashed during snowstorm. Icing was blamed for the crash, which claimed the life of the pilot a week later.
- January 1974. Poor visibility was blamed for the crash landing of Cessna 210. One person received injuries.
- September 1973. A 17-year-old pilot practicing his take-offs in a Cessna 150 was killed when his plane collided in mid-air with a single-engine aircraft approaching Pal-Waukee for a landing. The approaching craft landed safely.
- September 1970. One person was injured during attempted take-off from Pal-Waukee when his Cessna crashed into trees.
- August 1970. Two men were seriously injured when their single-engine craft struck a tree near the airport just before landing. Strong turbulence was cited in the crash.
- March 1970. A twin-engine six-passenger plane went down after take-off in a forest preserve near Pal-Waukee amidst heavy snowfall, killing one man and seriously injuring another.
- May 1969. The pilot of a small aircraft was killed and three passengers injured two miles north of Wheeling when their plane flew out of control as its rudders stuck on landing approach.
- December 1965. Two small planes collided when the pilots lost sight of each other's positions. One aircraft was taking off. One was landing. Four received injuries.

As George Priester, owner of Pal-Waukee Airport, says, the end of a runway is not the healthiest place in the world to have a building.

"But people like to live dangerously," Priester said, explaining why the area south of Pal-Waukee has sprouted new apartment complexes and a shopping center in the past five years.

To the north, Wheeling has permitted construction of an industrial park, and one school is located in Pal-Waukee's flight path.

"WE'VE BEEN VERY fortunate that most of the air crashes in the past have happened in farm land areas," said William Rogers, outgoing Wheeling trustee and self-appointed village aviation expert.

Rogers and others living near the airport worry a lot about plane crashes. Each year they have more to worry about as more farm land is turned into apartment complexes and industrial parks.

The Federal Aviation Administration reviews all construction near airports to determine if buildings are a hazard. The FAA, however, can't prevent construction. It can only order that hazard lights be installed on a building and alter aircraft landing patterns.

"If the building is too tall, you'd have to close down the runway," said

Marge Kriz of the FAA, illustrating how little power the agency has.

ROGERS SAYS IT is almost impossible to halt development around airports. "It is hard to be fair to both sides," he said. "The airport is there and operating, and the people around the airport have the right to sell their land and have it developed."

The answer, according to Rogers, is stricter safety guidelines. The Village of Wheeling repeatedly has asked for changes in FAA procedures at Pal-Waukee, and even has gone to court. So far, village officials have had little success.

Priester says the problem hinges on zoning. "I think clear zones should be established, and they should be established by the state and federal government," he said.

IN THE MEANTIME, Priester says people who build in the airport's flight pattern are aware of the risk. Wheeling Township Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill agrees.

"I guess it is cause for some concern, but there is not a hell of a lot we can do about it," Gill said, referring to the fact that Holmes Jr. High School, Wolf Road, is in Pal-Waukee's flight pattern.

"That is part of living in today's modern technology," he said. "We're not that close, but I guess as long as you are near an airport there is a certain amount of danger."

William Hein, Wheeling village president-elect, who visited the accident scene, said "We're very fortunate nobody was killed. If it had been the 4 p.m. rush hour, we would have been in trouble. It was a damn miracle."

117 plane crash victims buried in mass grave

WESTMINSTER, Calif. (UPI) — The remains of 117 victims of the Canary Islands plane disaster, all but three unidentified, were laid out Wednesday for burial in a mass grave after a simple ceremony and roll call of the dead.

A Catholic priest, a Protestant minister and a rabbi were chosen to officiate at the services with the only music the voices of a high school a cappella choir.

The coffins, most of them encased in concrete vaults, were laid out in a rectangle on the grass next to Meditation Lake at the Westminster Memorial Park, which donated the 10,000-foot square grave site.

ABOUT 1,000 relatives and friends converged on the cemetery, located in Orange County about 35 miles from downtown Los Angeles. The majority of the unidentified victims came from California, many from nearby Leisure World, a retirement community for wealthy older persons.

They died exactly a month ago in the collision of their Pan American 747 jet with an identical KLM airliner on the runway at Tenerife in the Canary Islands at the outset of what was to be a Mediterranean cruise.

A total of 580 persons perished in the flame-ravaged wreckage of the two planes or died later of their injuries.

Each casket bore a number on a metal tag in case the victim is identified later and relatives wish to rebury it.

Msgr. John T. Sammon of the Orange County diocese of the Catholic Church, Rabbi William A. Sanderson of Beverly Hills and Dr. T. Eugene Coffin of the Garden Grove Community Church were chosen to read the names of the 114 unidentified victims.

The choir was from Westchester High School.

The nine-woman, three-man jury returned the verdict to Cook County Criminal Court Judge Frank W. Barbaro after two-days of intense deliberations following the six-day trial. Evans and Terry sat motionless during the reading of the guilty verdict on charges of murder, aggravated kidnapping, rape, deviate sexual assault and indecent liberties with a minor. RTA near to buying C&NW gear

The Regional Transportation Authority is moving closer to purchasing the Chicago and North Western Railway's cars and engines and the equipment of most suburban bus companies at 300 N. State St., Chicago. The agency has scheduled public hearings May 27 to apply for a $24 million federal grant which would be matched with $5.9 million in state funds and $118,000 of RTA money. The North Suburban Mass Transit District equipment is not included in the proposed purchase, although the equipment of four other suburban bus companies is.

In addition to North Western's equipment, the RTA plans to buy 30 commuter cars and equipment owned by the Rock Island R. R. The RTA agreed to purchase the North Western's rolling stock as part of a purchase of service agreement approved earlier.

In Springfield, meanwhile, authorities of the RTA watched a raft of bills sent into oblivion. Ten bills were killed by the Illinois House Transportation Committee. Killed were a gas tax bill and measures to give suburbs and collar counties control over some RTA spending, allow for appropriation of taxes earmarked for the RTA for schools, limit the RTA chairman's salary to $30,000 and change the process for selecting the RTA board chairman and members.

Driver cleared in Tollway theft

Darko Kucan, driver of the Illinois Toll Highway Authority van from which $80,000 was stolen, passed a lie detector test Wednesday and has been cleared as a suspect, state police said. Kucan, 27, Lyons, said he was abducted Friday in Rosemont when he pulled over for a car flashing its headlights at him. Chicago Police found him Saturday on the Near North Side, tied up in the back of his truck. Chicago and state police were questioning "several persons" about the robbery, a state police spokesman said.

School workers' bargaining near

A bill granting collective bargaining rights to public school and higher education employees was approved Wednesday by the Illinois General Assembly. If the bill is passed by the Illinois General Assembly, Illinois school boards will be required to bargain collectively with organized school employees, said Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, a member of the education committee. The bill, which has been actively supported by statewide teachers unions, sets guidelines for resolving labor disputes involving school employees and establishes an Education Employment Relations Board.

In other committee action:

• A bill that would let school districts levy an income tax in place of some property taxes passed the House revenue committee 13-6. The sponsor said the measure would allow school districts to decide by referendum what kind of tax they want to use to support their schools.

The same committee defeated a bill that would have raised cigarette taxes from 12 to 15 cents per pack. In another tax development, Rep. Harlan Rigney, R-Freeport, said he will not pursue his attempt to raise gasoline taxes because he thinks such a bill would have little chance of success.

Appointee gave Thompson funds

William M. Bowling, newly appointed Dept. of Labor director, is president of a United Auto Workers local which contributed $17,500 to Gov. James R. Thompson's campaign after the election, records show. Bowling, president of UAW Local 1309 in Rock Island, donated $10,000 to the campaign Nov. 8 and $7,500 on Dec. 6, according to records in the state Board of Election office. The election was Nov. 2. Thompson appointed Bowling to the $35,000 a year post Tuesday. Bowling was unavailable for comment Wednesday but Dave Gilbert, Thompson's press secretary, denied the contribution and the appointment were linked. "Other unions gave money," Gilbert said. "The contributions and the appointment were not related."

Three principals to be reassigned

Three principals in Arlington Heights Dist. 25 will be recommended for reassignment to different schools next year by Supt. Donald Strong.

Strong said Wednesday he will make the recommendations when the board of education meets May 12.

Emily Alford, principal at Wilson School, 15 E. Palatine Rd., will be recommended for reassignment as principal of Patton School, 1616 N. Patton Ave.

Kenneth Swanson, Patton School principal since 1972, will be recommended for reassignment as principal of Berkley School, 2501 N. Chestnut Ave.

SWANSON WILL replace Bernice Gilege, principal of Berkley School, who has requested reassignment to regular teaching duties.

Mrs. Gilege joined Dist. 25 as a math teacher at Thomas Junior High School in 1964. Three years later she became the math consultant for the district.

In 1971, Mrs. Gilege left Dist. 25 to teach math at Prospect High School in Mount Prospect, but a year later she returned to become principal of Berkley.

Strong said the changes in principal assignments result in part from the planned closing of Wilson School in June. The board voted in February to close the school because of declining enrollment and the need for budget cuts.

120 enter 'books battle'

More than 120 elementary school students entered "The Battle of the Books" reading program sponsored by the Arlington Heights Memorial Library.

With 80 books from which to choose, the children formed teams to read as many books as possible during the contest time limit.

All participants received pins as mementos of the event. The winning team members received prizes for their achievements.

From Wilson School, the winning team was Joanna Huff, Heidi Metcalfe and Janie Edgar; from Dunton School the winning team was Carla Fox, Diane Henberger, Annette Colletto and Debbie Strzok.

Riley School yard cleanup

The students at Riley School, 1209 Burr Oak Dr., Arlington Heights, spent their afternoon recess recently, cleaning up the area around their school. The project was done in conjunction with the Arlington Heights Beautification Program.

House rejects target budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House early today overwhelmingly rejected a $466.7 billion 1978 target federal budget on which it had labored for two days and long into the night. By a vote of 320 to 84 it in effect told the House Budget Committee to bring in another budget proposal another day.

The House during two days of debate added a net $4.4 billion to the proposed 1978 deficit; bringing it to $68.6 billion, as amendments were passed adding money for defense, agriculture, law enforcement and veterans. Earlier the House agreed to what it was told was a direct appeal from President Carter for approval of his $120 billion defense budget request.

Lawyers map Watergate appeal

Lawyers for the Watergate coverup defendants asked permission Wednesday to spell out to the Supreme Court how a news report about the justices' secret vote on their appeal could affect their clients' rights. The request was filed by counsel for John Mitchell, H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, the former top aides to Richard Nixon who are seeking Supreme Court review of their convictions for conspiring to cover up White House involvement in the Watergate scandal. The lawyers asked that the court give them until May 7 to prepare an additional document dealing with widely circulated report about the justices' private deliberations on their appeal. Nina Totenberg, a reporter for National Public Radio, reported last week that the justices at their routine conference on April 15 voted 5 to 3 to reject the three appeals.

Carter proposes tough A-policy

President Carter proposed a "tough, new, workable policy" Wednesday designed to control the export of radioactive material or technology which could be used for weapons and to put all U.S. sales of nuclear material under international control. There was a deliberate loophole. Carter's message to Congress seeking new nuclear nonproliferation laws asked for the option of waiving the strict requirements — including one banning exports to any nation that explodes an atomic bomb — if they "would hinder the achievement of U.S. nonproliferation objectives or would jeopardize the common defense and security." Therefore, Carter said, he opposed "proposals currently before Congress (that) could force an immediate moratorium on our nuclear exports, adversely affecting certain allies whose cooperation is needed if we are to achieve our ultimate objective of non-proliferation."

Carter's 55-page bill would require personal presidential approval for export of more than 33 pounds of highly enriched uranium — just enough for an atomic bomb, a White House fact sheet said. It would ban exports of nuclear reprocessing plants used to enrich uranium to weapons quality, and discourage new agreements to export plutonium or highly enriched uranium.

Groucho drug issue probed

Tranquilizers allegedly administered to Groucho Marx by his secretary-companion may have been obtained through illegal prescriptions, the Santa Monica Outlook said Wednesday. Police in nearby Beverly Hills, currently investigating to determine if any criminal acts have occurred in the 86-year-old comedian's home, refused to comment on the report. "The investigation is still open and continuing," Det. Judith Trunk said. Testimony about the tranquilizers was given last week at a hearing to determine temporary conservatorship for Marx, one of two surviving members of the Marx Brothers comedy team.

Cops fire on blacks in S. Africa

South African police opened fire with shotguns Wednesday on 2,000 black high school students protesting arbitrary rent hikes of up to 80 per cent in the black ghetto of Soweto. White landlords threatened eviction if tenants did not pay up. Brig. Jan Visser, police chief for the black township where nationwide rioting that killed nearly 500 began last year, said three persons were injured in the shooting. Visser said police used shotguns and tear gas to break up a crowd of about 2,000 demonstrators, gathered around the Morris Isaacson High School in Soweto, 15 miles southwest of Johannesburg.

Ethiopia eases Yanks' expulsion

Ethiopia's Marxist regime Wednesday backed down on its deadline for 320 Americans to be out of Ethiopia, but the U.S. Embassy said all but 10 of them had decided to leave anyway. About 200 other Americans still in the country were leaving on a chartered flight, probably bound for Athens, an embassy spokesman said. The government had extended from Wednesday until Saturday the deadline for the latest group of expelled Americans to leave. More than 100 others left Monday and Tuesday.

sightful, dramatic and successful. Many of them are very revealing. The show will contain hard news and previously undisclosed facts about Mr. Nixon and his presidential years."

MINOFF, WHOSE headquarters are in New York City, said the first interview had just been edited. The ex-president will not see the tapes until they are telecast.

He said Nixon had no advance knowledge of which questions Frost would ask, nor did Nixon have editorial control of the areas covered in the interviews.

Minoff said there will be national and local sponsors of the four interviews, which were sold to individual television stations by Syndicast, a New York syndication firm.

Radio stations that purchased the shows will simulcast the interviews at the times and dates specified for telecasts. He said he thought the Mutual Broadcasting Co. was handling radio rights on some 600 stations.

"We will make an announcement about the sponsors before the broadcast dates," Minoff said.

Air Force to burn at sea defoliant used in Vietnam

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Air Force announced Wednesday it has at last found a way to get rid of a herbicide used in the controversial Vietnam war defoliation raids and will soon start burning the chemical at sea.

The state of Mississippi, where part of the 2.3 million gallons of the herbicide known as "Orange" is stored, will presumably be glad to see the unwanted stockpiles go.

ENVIRONMENTALISTS and anti-war groups denounced the defoliation. Tests showed the chemical caused birth defects in laboratory animals and "may be capable of doing the same thing to people," according to a spokesman for the Environmental Protection Agency.

It was banned from further use in April, 1970, and the Air Force stored about a third of its remaining supplies outdoors in oil drums at a naval base in Gulfport, Miss.

Since the 1970 ban, officials said, the Air Force has been trying to find an acceptable way to get rid of the herbicide.

IT FIRST CONSIDERED selling it to foreign countries, but decided it would hurt the U. S. image abroad. Plans to detoxify "Orange" chemically, filter it, bury it in the earth and burn it on land were studied and discarded.

Now, in a three-week operation beginning May 9, the "Orange" will be put into railroad tank cars in Mississippi, moved to a pier and transferred to the Dutch-owned tanker Vulcanus.

Officials said it will pass through a three-block long "commercial area" enroute.

The Vulcanus will sail through the Panama Canal to the Pacific Ocean, reaching an area 1,000 miles west of Hawaii in late June where it will burn the "Orange" in two special incinerators at temperatures of about 2,600 degrees Fahrenheit.

MARINE LIFE in the area will be tested for ill effects and the air tested for residue. If all goes well, the Vulcanus will start work on the remaining stockpile, located nearby on Johnston Island.

Glenn Wood, a Mississippi antipollution official, told the EPA he hopes as much care is taken to prevent contamination during the pumping and the trip to the pier as in the burning operation.

"I should like to point out that 800,000 gallons of this material have been stored for seven years in the very center of a highly populated area immediately surrounded by recreational waters on all sides," he said.

Lincoln County bill OKd by panel

by STEVE BROWN

SPRINGFIELD — Legislation paving the way for Northwest suburban residents to vote on seceding from Cook County, limped out of an Illinois Senate committee on one leg Wednesday with Chicago Democrats offering only limited opposition.

One bill, sponsored by State Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, was approved by the Illinois Senate Local Government Committee. The bill drastically reduces the number of signatures needed to get the so-called Lincoln County issue, a drive to take six Northwest Cook County townships out of the county, on a referendum ballot.

The committee defeated another proposal to change the size of the majority needed to have a referendum approved. Regner delayed action on a third bill. He is the chief sponsor of the package.

"LINCOLN COUNTY is still alive," Regner said after the committee session.

State Sen. Richard M. Daley, D-Chicago, voted "present" on SB 149, which changes the petition requirements. Several other Chicago Democrats followed Daley's lead. The bill passed by a 5-2 margin with three voting present.

Chicago Democrats, however, blocked passage of the second bill, SB 150, which would have reduced the number of votes needed for passage from a majority voting in an election to a majority voting on the referendum itself.

"It's nice that (Senate Bill) 149 got through but (Senate Bill) 150 is even more of a key. If 150 does not get out of committee, we have a problem," said former Palatine Village Pres. Wendell Jones, one of the main proponents of Lincoln County.

He said he sent a mailgram to members of the Senate's local government committee Tuesday urging them to approve Senate Bill 150.

Jones said that currently if 200,000 persons cast votes in a general election and the vote on a referendum to form Lincoln County is 100,000 to 0 the measure would lose by one vote.

"THE CREATION OF a new county should be made tough but not impossible," Jones said.

Regner said SB 150 probably was more important to the ultimate passage of the Lincoln County effort, but agreed the approval of the petition bill was important to getting the proposal on the ballot.

Regner said the petition bill reduces the number of signatures required from one-half of the registered voters in the affected area to 10 per cent. He estimated the change would cut the number of signatures needed to about 21,000.

The committee action still must pass through the full Senate and Illinois House and signed by Gov. James R. Thompson before becoming law. The lack of Democratic opposition may have been triggered by a representative for the Cook County Board to take a position on the bills.

"They asked me and I told them County Board Pres. George Dunne said he will not interfere," said Herman Knell, the county's legislative coordinator. Knell hinted Dunne's publicly announced "hands-off" approach may have influenced the Chicago Democrats. While Knell and Regner hinted the full Senate might follow the committee's lead, neither would offer any firm forecast on the fate of the bill.

COOPERATIVE BLOOD REPLACEMENT PLAN 477-7500

Peabody graduate school to be created in Dist. 63

by PAM BIGFORD

A center for graduate studies run by the Peabody College for Teachers will be established in East Maine Dist. 63 in Des Plaines.

"This will give us the opportunity to serve our staff as well as the community and other districts," said James Bowen, Dist. 63 business manager. Bowen said the Dist. 63 Board of Education Tuesday approved the center, which is scheduled to begin classes in January 1978.

BOWEN SAID teachers who want to get master's degrees or doctorates now usually have to go to Northern Illinois University in DeKalb or the National College of Education in Evanston.

Tentative plans are to hold classes in the Dist. 63 administration center, 10150 Dee Rd., Des Plaines, and to use the learning center in the attached school, Apollo Junior High, Bowen said.

Bowen said Peabody College has a main campus in Nashville, Tenn., another graduate center in New Orleans, La., and has plans to open a campus eventually in Washington, D.C. Harvard University also operates similar centers.

"Institutions of higher learning are finding they have to go outside their own physical facilities to reach students," Bowen said.

ESTABLISHMENT OF the center will cost Dist. 63 nothing, Bowen said. Peabody College will pay all costs from tuition paid by students.

Bowen said Peabody officials will be in charge of all college operations including deciding which students to accept. Plans are to enroll from 55 to 70 students the first term, he said.

"This is something we've been thinking about for a long time," Bowen said, "but we just never had the opportunity to do it until now."

Defeat of unit vote prompts rehiring of 106 in Dist. 214

High School Dist. 214 has rehired 106 of the 128 nontenured teachers who were released last month because of the "uncertainty" surrounding the Elk Grove Township unit school district question.

The Dist. 214 Board of Education Monday rehired 40 of the 57 first-year teachers who had been honorably dismissed and 66 of the 71 second-year teachers. Of the second-year teachers, 64 were granted tenure and two were put on third year probationary status.

"With the unit district question finally laid to rest we can now get back to the business of educating kids and staffing up for next year," Robert Cudney, assistant superintendent for personnel services, said.

As student enrollments in various subject areas are assessed and teacher resignations and leave requests filed, Cudney said he is confident most of the 22 probationary teachers "on hold" will be rehired.

"They're all excellent teachers," he said. "There was never any question about their performance."

The board dismissed the 128 nontenured teachers because officials were unsure whether an Elk Grove Township unit school district would be formed and how many teachers from Elk Grove and Forest View high schools would remain with Dist. 214 if voters approved the unit district.

Dist. 214 attorneys said they were unsure of the district's legal responsibility if more tenured teachers than could be accommodated chose to stay with the high school district rather than go with the unit district.

According to state law, teachers who are going to be dismissed at the end of the term must be given 60 days notice.

School bell rings earlier

Students at Forest View and Rolling Meadows high schools will start school 10 minutes earlier next year.

To optimize the use of buses, the Dist. 214 board voted to have the Forest View students begin school at 7:40 rather than 7:50 a.m. and to have the Rolling Meadows students start class at 8:20 rather than 8:40 a.m.

Starting times at the district's six other high schools will remain the same for the 1977-78 school year. Arlington High will begin at 8:20 a.m.; Prospect, Hersey and Wheeling high schools at 7:50 a.m.; Elk Grove High School at 8 a.m.; and Buffalo Grove High School at 8:40 a.m.

"In our opinion the difference between brand name drugs and top quality generic products is price."

If your doctor will prescribe generic drugs, you can save up to 50% on some prescriptions at Medicare Pharmacies in Missouri and Illinois.

Everyone is concerned about the cost of medication. Medicare Pharmacies is doing something about it.

Here's how:

Many drugs are sold two ways: by a brand or trade name, or by a generic name which is the product's chemical name. There should be no chemical difference between a brand name drug and a top quality generic. But brand name drugs cost drug companies more to sample and promote, so they cost you more to buy. Medicare Pharmacies now stock some 160 different generics, some of which cost you up to 50% less than brand names.

Not all brand name drugs have a generic equivalent, but ask your physician about using generics for your next prescription. LET HIM BE YOUR GUIDE. If he agrees to prescribe a generic drug, come in or call any Medicare Pharmacy and see how much you can save. At your request, Medicare pharmacists will call your doctor for you.

Carter welfare plan sets reform goals: Califano

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter next week will set forth the "broad parameters" of welfare reform, but the details of his proposal still are undecided, Health, Education and Welfare Sec. Joseph Califano Jr. Wednesday said.

"The President obviously wants to remove anti-family elements (from the welfare system) and provide incentives for people to work," Califano told the Washington Press Club.

But, he said before leaving for a meeting with the President, no decisions have been made on the specifics of the proposal.

THE WHITE HOUSE said the recommendations will be "dramatic and fundamental" and Carter will send legislation to Congress this year.

Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd warned last week, however, that sweeping legislation could not be considered until next year.

Califano said Carter's pronouncement next Monday or Tuesday will provide "some broad parameters" of his welfare plan.

The secretary spoke at a downtown hotel picketed by about 20 blind and other disabled persons, some in wheelchairs, who are pressing for regulations to enforce a 1973 law protecting the rights of handicapped persons in subsidized programs.

IN RESPONSE TO questions about the protest, Califano said the proposed reforms will create "a mini-revolution... in the lifestyles of beneficiaries of federal programs" such as colleges and public school systems.

He said any reforms will result from "excruciatingly difficult choices on which opposing views are often intensely and emotionally held."

Before the system can be changed, he said, "we must work to dispel the myths and misconceptions concerning the poor and needy that have been, in large measure, responsible for the defeat of past reform measures."

He said the "myths" include the widespread belief that welfare rolls are full of lazy loafers, that poor people are poor for life and don't know how to spend their money, that the poor are mostly black and non-white and that many welfare families receive payments that are too high.

Califano said the system actually is "viciously antifamily and antiwork."

Disclosure of CIA budget OKd

WASHINGTON (UPI) — CIA Director Stansfield Turner told Congress Wednesday it has President Carter's approval to disclose the over-all budget of the nation's intelligence agencies for the first time.

However, Turner told an open hearing of the Senate Intelligence Committee it could not make public a detailed breakdown of the budget.

"It is here that, regrettably, we must draw the line between openness and necessary secrecy," he said.

DETAILS OR explanation of the over-all figures would provide "in the hands of our enemies a powerful weapon which would make further (intelligence) collection more difficult, more hazardous to life and much

CCPA agrees to contract with Walker law firm

The growing specter of criminal and civil lawsuits filed against police officers has resulted in a police union's decision to contract with former Gov. Dan Walker's new law firm.

Dan Walker and Associates has agreed to a novel three-year contract with the Combined Counties Police Assn. to provide a type of "legal malpractice insurance" for consenting members. The plan would offer legal services from divorce to criminal defense.

The new concept was presented Wednesday night to Mount Prospect patrolmen in the first meeting between Walker, CCPA officials and members in the Northwest suburbs.

WALKER TOLD about a dozen patrolmen attending the meeting in Mount Prospect that the prepaid legal plan, although common on the East and West coasts, is a new concept in the Midwest which would make available legal services without the conventional high costs.

The plan would provide members with the coverage for a $10-a-month fee.

But CCPA officials Wednesday night said the increasing number of criminal and civil actions being brought against police has prompted their interest in the plan.

"The irregularities that pass through the state's attorney's office, the bogus investigations and bogus actions against police officers (has prompted it)," Len Young, Mount Prospect CCPA chapter president, said. "It really is a concern."

The CCPA, with 3,500 members in Illinois and Indiana, began considering the plan as long as two years ago, Jim Simpson, CCPA general counsel, said. He said Walker's firm was contacted after a number of other firms had been considered.

"We are professionals and we want to be represented by professionals," Young said. He said the concept has been discussed with Mount Prospect Police Chief Ralph Doney, whom Young said "realizes the problems" which face the patrolmen.

The budgets of the CIA and other agencies have hitherto been a closely guarded secret.

Turner told the committee "I came here today not to release the figures — that's up to you."

He said he would prefer not to disclose figures at all but realized some compromise is necessary in a free and open society so the public can understand the working of the intelligence process.

"Accordingly," Turner said, "President Carter has directed that I not object to your releasing to the public, the single over-all budget figure of the U.S. intelligence community."

TURNER NOTED over a period of time the intelligence budget "can reveal to an interested observer our areas of interest and the technologies on which we depend most."

"From such information they would know where they would place emphasis in countermeasures and effectively nullify any advantage we might have. The detailed intelligence budget in the hands of our enemies would be a powerful weapon which would make further collection more difficult, more hazardous to life, and much more costly."

The total CIA budget has been estimated unofficially at $750 million a year and estimates of the total budget for all agencies, including the Defense Intelligence Agency, the National Security Agency and other branches engaged in spying have reached as high as $4 billion to $7 billion.

Sen. William D. Hathaway, D-Maine, chairman of the Intelligence Committee's budget authorization subcommittee, said after months of closed hearings, "we know in detail how each of the agencies proposes to spend its money in the coming year."

It was now up to the committee, he said, to decide how much, if any, of the information would be made public.

Monday through Friday programs beginning at 7:30 p.m. on the mall will include paramedics, water safety, home fire safety and school fire safety demonstrations. Games and contests with prizes will follow the demonstrations.

Senate rejects proposal to double tax cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Wednesday voted against a proposal to double individual tax cuts in a pending tax bill, handing Republicans a floor defeat but giving them an issue to use against President Carter.

The 58 to 39 defeat of a proposed $7.9 billion a year tax cut portends defeat for a series of GOP tax amendments ranging from an even bigger $10 billion cut to tax credits for home insulation.

"If they (Democrats) will vote against a tax cut for all Americans, they'll vote against anything," said a Republican aide.

THE GOP amendment, sponsored by Senators John Danforth, R-Mo., and Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., would have cut tax rates on the first $20,000 of taxable income, thus concentrating relief in middle and low income groups.

A proposal for a cut of $10 billion, offered by Sen. William Roth, R-Del., was defeated later, 62 to 33.

The bill already contains $8 billion a year in cuts for taxpayers who use the standard deduction, $4.1 billion over two years in business tax incentives and various smaller amendments such as a one-year delay in the abolition of sick pay tax deductions.

Defeat of the GOP amendment came on a party line vote with only three Republicans against — Senators Mark Hatfield, Ore., William Scott, Va., and Milton Young, N.D. Five Democrats voted with the Republicans — Senators Joseph Biden, Del., John Durkin, N.H.; Thomas McIntyre, N. H., William Proxmire, Wis., and Donald Riegle, Mich.

THE REPUBLICANS used several days of debate to challenge Carter and question his top lieutenants about the sudden withdrawal of his $50 per person tax rebate.

"From the standpoint of fiscal policy, it's a mistake to offer a rebate and withdraw it and offer nothing in its place," said GOP leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn.

The Javits-Danforth forces argued more stimulus was needed because unemployment remained too high, and Americans needed a tax cut because inflation had pushed them into ever-higher tax brackets through higher dollar incomes without an increase in real incomes.

The government collects an extra $6 billion a year through the inflationary effect, Danforth said.

Cuba seeks U.S. funding to boost tourism, industry

by JOHN VIRTUE

HAVANA, Cuba (UPI) — Communist Cuba needs — and wants — direct U.S. foreign investment once again.

The government has approved a more than $50 million building program to return Cuba to the top spot in Caribbean tourism. It doesn't have the capital, however, so it is looking to the United States as a junior partner in joint ventures.

Unlike prerevolutionary days when U.S. interests in Cuban tourism consisted of Mafia control of hotels, casinos and prostitution in the Havana area, the new projects would be in the underdeveloped interior.

INVESTMENT in tourism is Cuba's No. 1 priority, but the island nation also is said to be considering joint ventures in such areas as development of the nickel industry.

Although Cuban authorities deny interest in U.S. investment, the subject is common knowledge to foreigners already involved in tourism here.

"Cuba has turned out many young technocrats since the revolution and they're thinking now about the United States as the only solution to Cuba's economic problems," said one foreigner intimately involved in dealings with the government.

"Cuba can't get away from economic and geographical realities, its proximity to the United States," he said.

"CUBA IS interested in joint ventures with the United States and in finding a market in the United States for goods produced by light industries it hopes to develop."

Standing in the way is the trade embargo imposed by the United States in 1961. Also there is the question of $1.8 billion worth of U.S. properties seized without compensation by the Cuban government.

President Fidel Castro considers the trade embargo an "act of aggression" by the United States. As for compensation for U.S. property, he says he would send Washington the bill for damage caused by the CIA-backed 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion.

But direct negotiations between the two countries are underway and there's a feeling here that normalization of relations could come after a year of step-by-step talks.

Diplomatic circles say that normalizing relations will not solve Cuba's immediate economic problems — caused by plummeting world sugar prices — but there could be a turnaround in three to five years.

CASTRO IS said to believe that renewed ties with the United States would counterbalance Soviet influence in Cuba. Cuba is believed to owe Russia some $5 billion in long-term, no the 1990s.

Interest loans that start coming due in "The Cubans are flexible and sophisticated, but they can't entertain the thought of going too far too fast," said one diplomatic source. "But there are signs of change which can be encouraged."

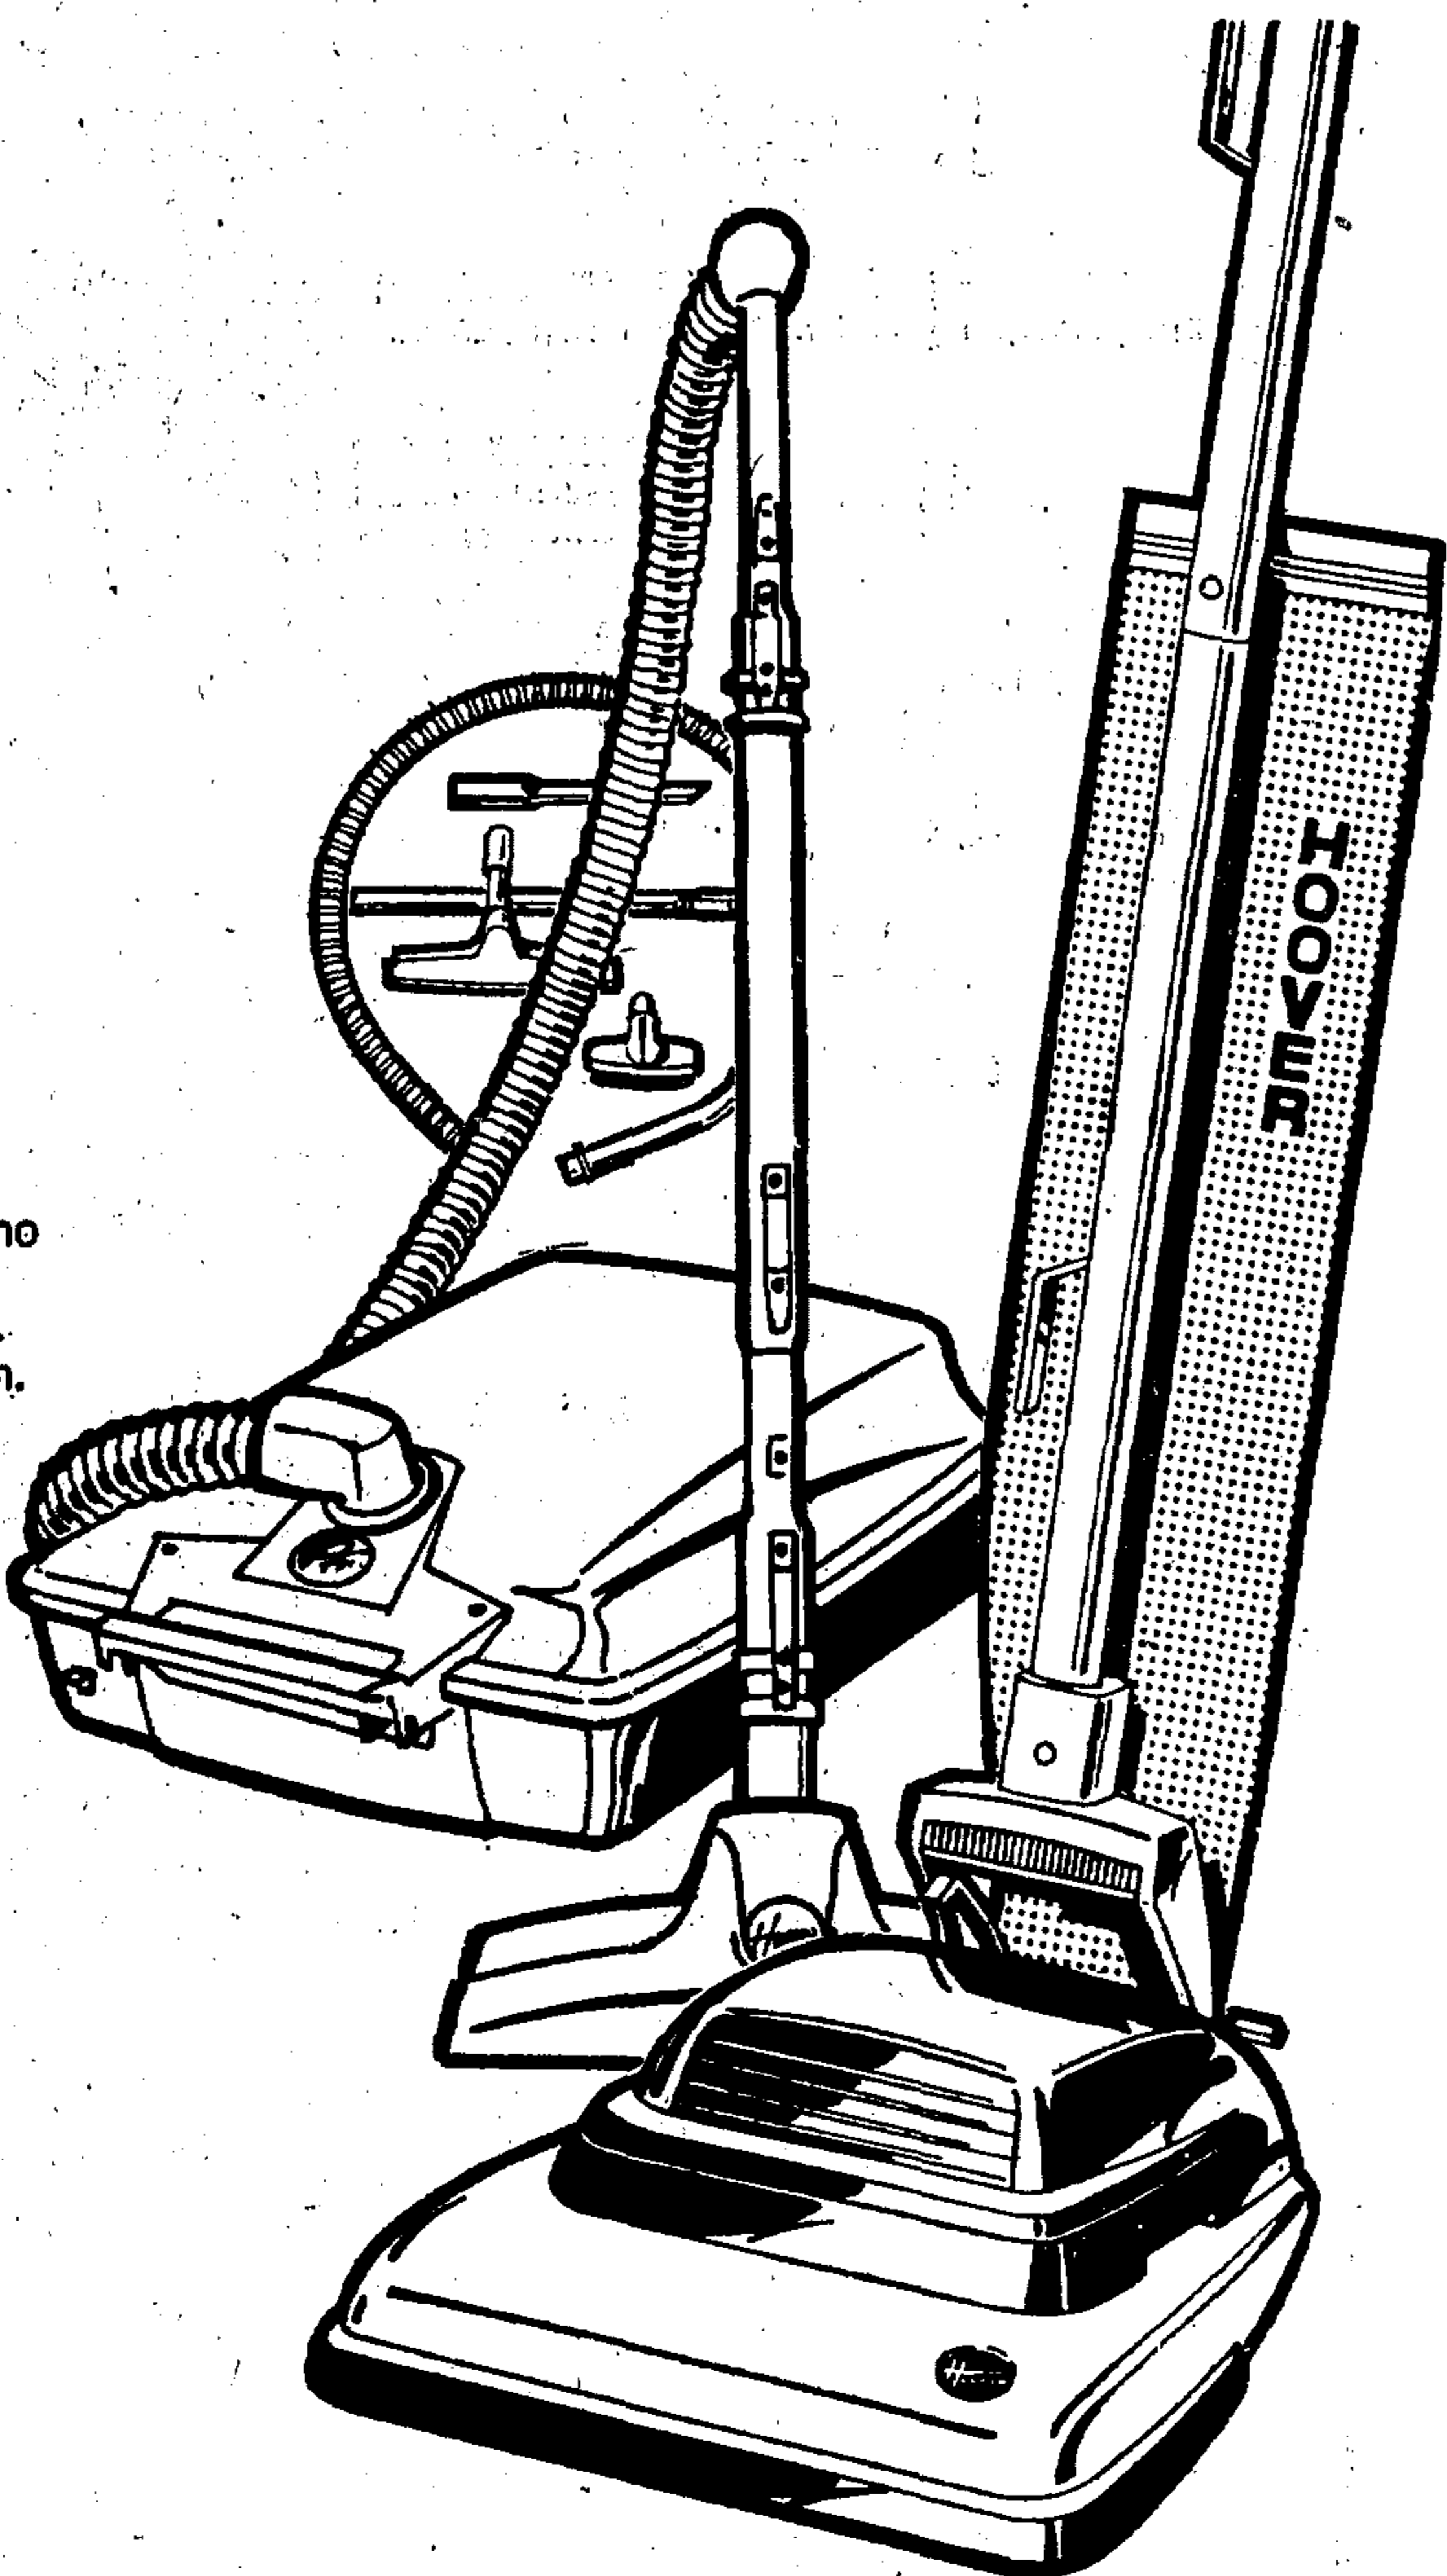

American businessmen have already received the message and are coming in increasing numbers with briefcases full of plans and proposals.

Hussein urges Palestinian state

WASHINGTON (UPI) — King Hussein Wednesday revived his offer to unite Jordan with a Palestinian state carved out of Jordanian and Egyptian territories.

He appealed to Israel to find the "courage" to give up the occupied Arab lands from which such a state would be created.

The Jordanian monarch, concluding a four-day visit to Washington, said his talks with President Carter have raised his hopes for an early, permanent Middle East peace settlement.

"I DARE to contemplate that soon weapons can be put down," Hussein said in an address at American University in Washington, where he received an honorary doctorate. "I want to hear the tracks of bulldozers, not tanks; the footsteps of travelers, not troops."

Hussein was returning home by way of stops in New York City and Houston.

In his American University speech, the king renewed a proposal for solving the Palestinian homeland question that he originated himself in 1972 but has never mentioned since 1974.

That year, Arab leaders decided in conference to let the Palestinian Liberation Organization handle the homeland issue.

Hussein said Jordan would be willing to move into a confederation with a Palestinian state created from Jordan's West Bank and Egypt's Gaza Strip territories. Israel has occupied both areas since 1967.

"WE IN Jordan support the right of the Palestinian people to self determination in their own homeland," Hussein said. "We are ready to establish strong ties with the Palestinian national entity on a voluntary and brotherly basis."

The "confederation" concept is designed to meet Israel's refusal to accept the creation of a completely independent Palestinian state along its borders. Confederation normally puts major governmental powers, such as defense and foreign policy, in the hands of a central government, in this case Hussein's in Amman.

Such an arrangement would permit the Palestinian substrate to be demilitarized while still retaining independence in other governmental matters.

In another appearance Wednesday, Hussein said at a luncheon hosted by Middle East interest groups that Israel "must gather enough historic courage to seek a lasting peace."

"At the moment," he said, "she is more frightened of peace than she is of war."

The way we see it

The next step in vote funding

The 1976 Presidential campaign was publicly financed in an experiment designed to cut the influence of powerful special interest groups on the legislative process.

Following the success of that experiment, the U.S. Congress is considering another public campaign financing plan that may have even more far-reaching consequences — the public financing of Congressional and Senatorial campaigns.

This latest reform is a logical extension of the public funding of presidential campaigns. And, since Congress, as much as the President, influences the nation's direction, it is important that a law be enacted to ensure that the public, rather than special interests, will have the prime influence over legislation.

Public funding, which is supported by the public-interest I.B. by Common Cause, would give tax money to congressional and senatorial candidates while limiting the amounts of contributions that could come from individuals or groups.

Common Cause is urging quick action on the measure so it can be effective for the 1978

Congressional campaigns.

Supporters say it will cut the power of the heavily financed lobbies on legislation and thereby free Congressmen from the obligations they now have to those interests.

Common Cause points to the $1.8 million and $1.4 million donated in 1976 to Congressional campaigns by the American Medical Association and by dairy associations as examples of the kind of special interest power presently exerted in Congress.

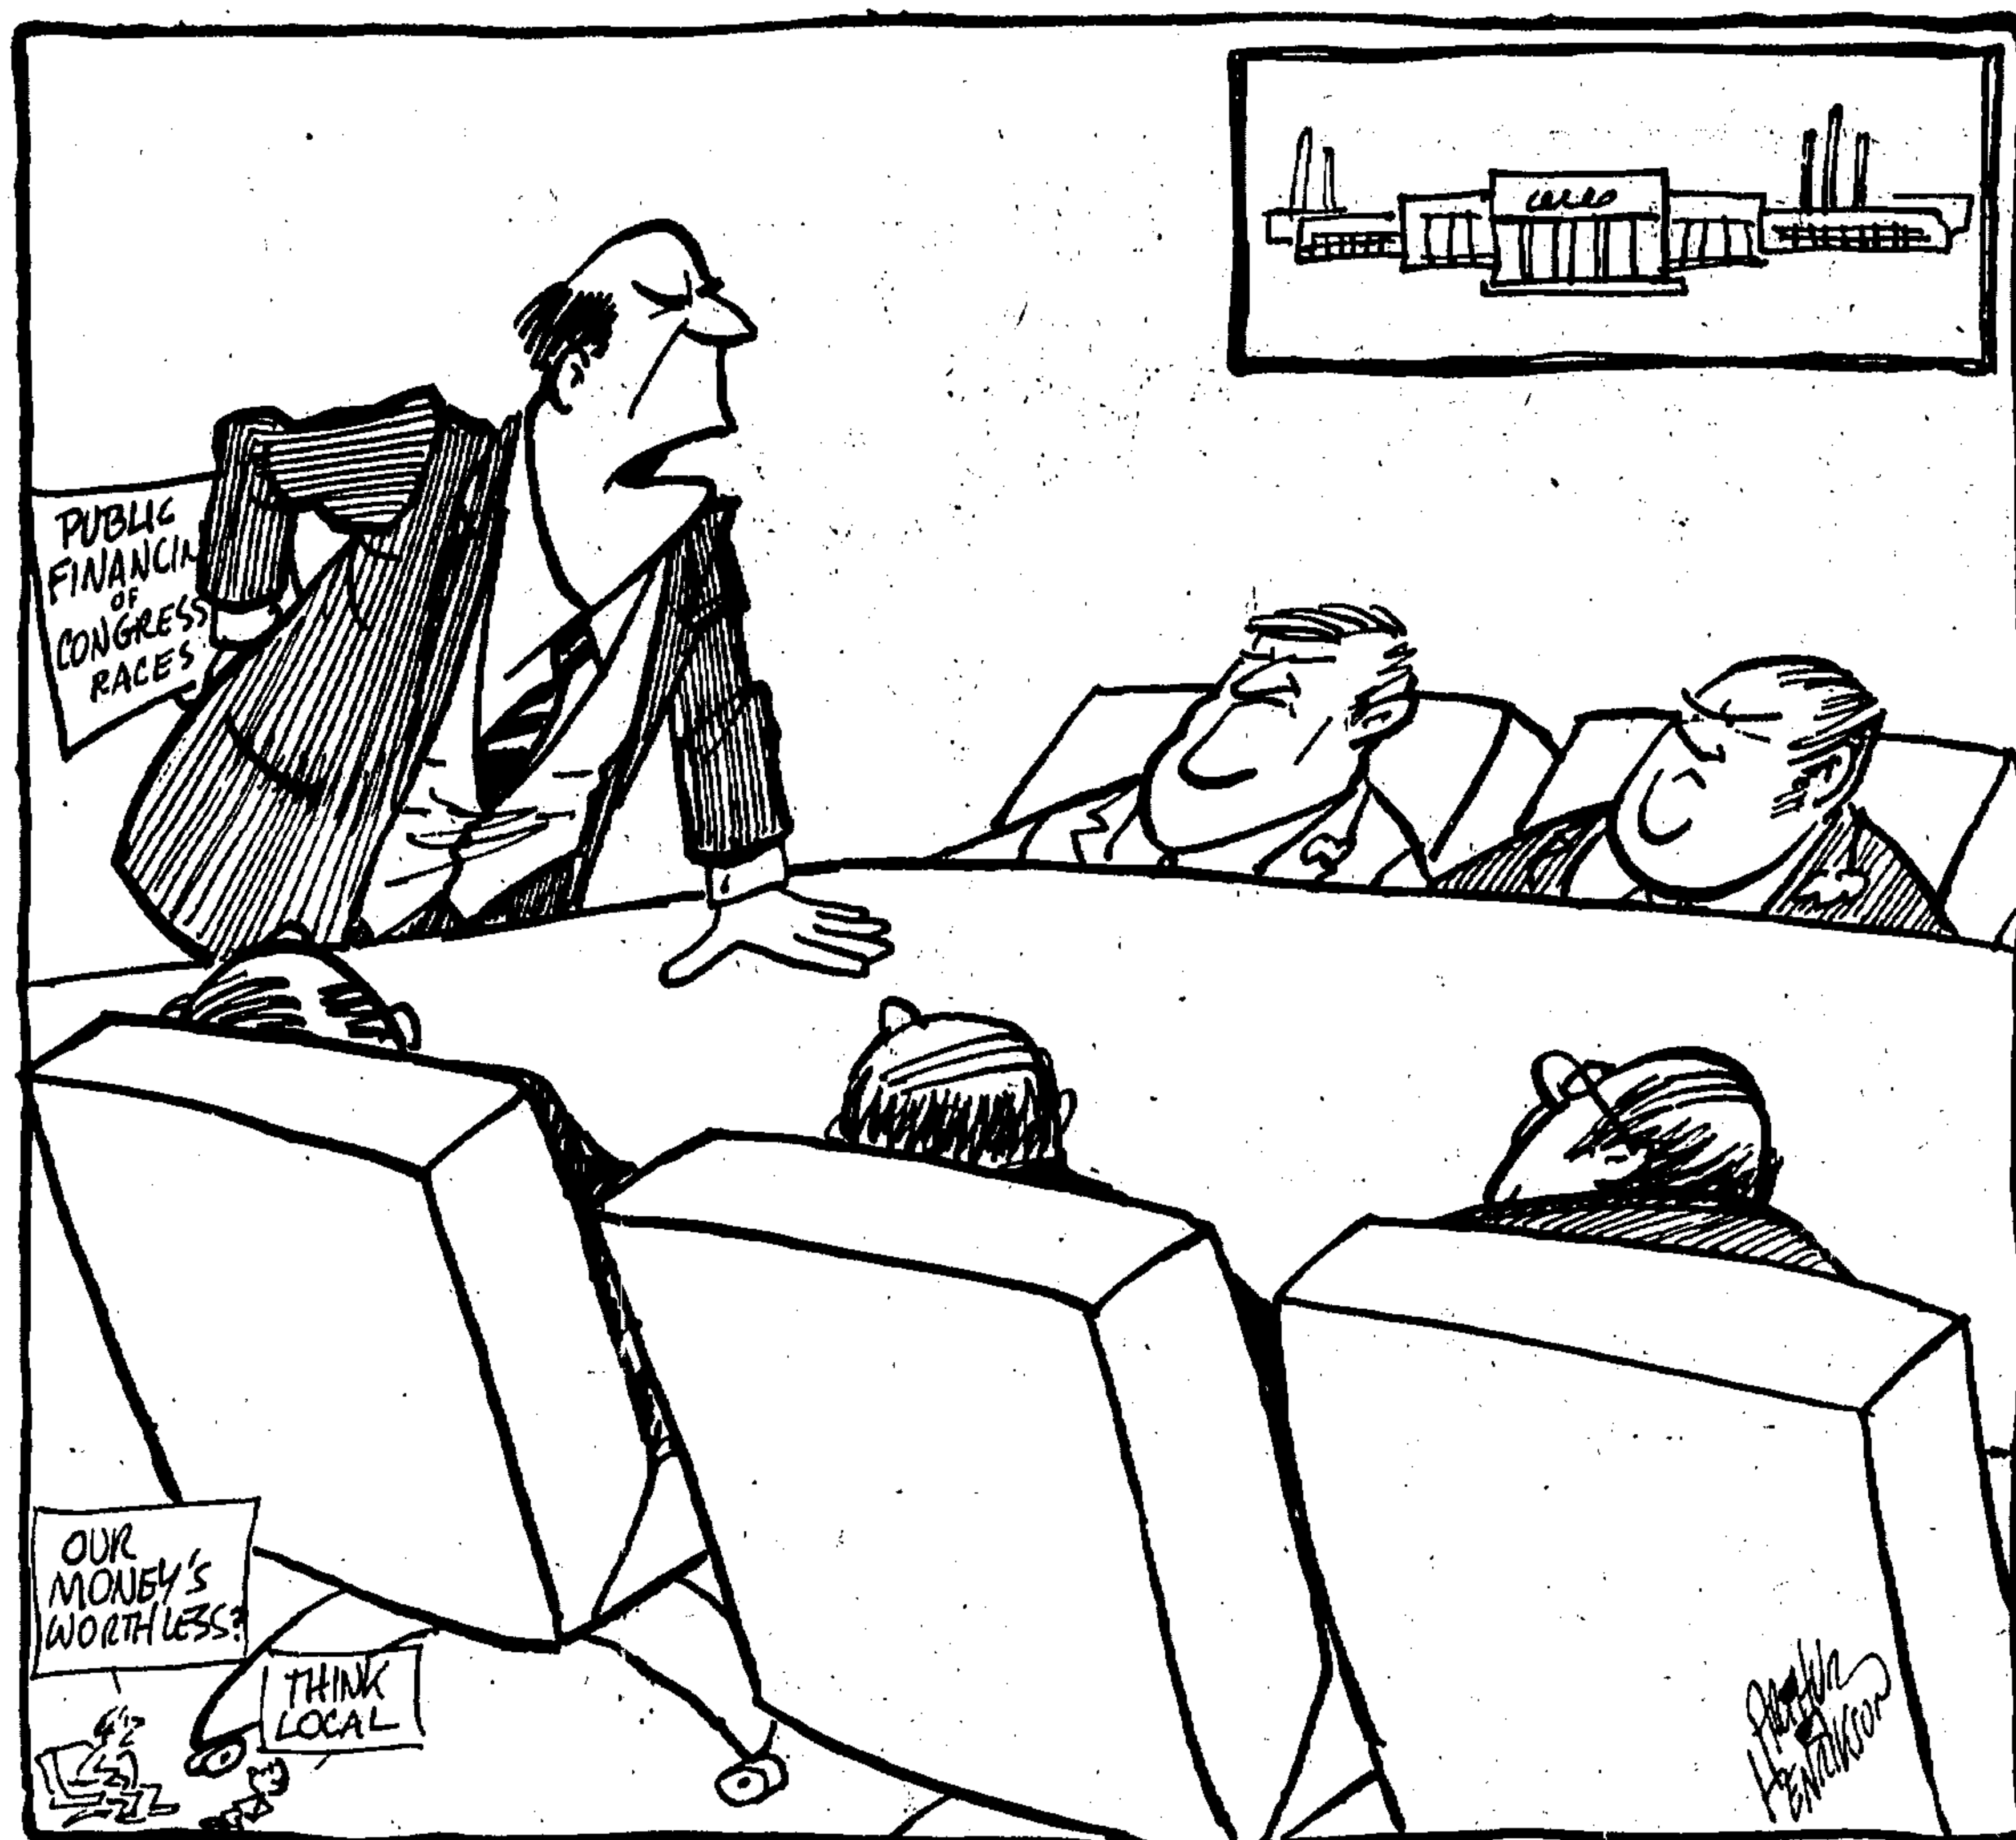

Under legislation pending in the U.S. House, candidates for Congress would be eligible for money in the general elections once they raised $10,000 in private contributions of $100 or less. After that federal money would match small private contributions up to $50,000 total. Allowed contributions by interest groups would be cut from $5,000 to $2,500 per candidate.

Common Cause estimates the cost of a general election for the House and Senate would be $35 million in tax money. They say money available through the present voluntary tax check-off for presidential campaigns would cover the costs.

Common Cause points out that public financing of campaigns will not necessarily benefit incumbents nor limit their opponents, something often charged by those who fight such financing.

In fact, studies show that most special interest group contributions go to incumbent senators and congressmen. Some powerful committee chairmen even receive large contributions when they are unopposed for reelection.

Public financing of congressional campaigns would eliminate such activities and help to keep congressmen out of the kinds of debt that can work against the public interest.

Before you know it, Congressmen would have to decide legislation on its merits!

Unit vote, apathy comments

This is an open letter to Supt. Edward Gilbert, Sen. David Regner and Rep. Virginia Macdonald:

Unit District 402 went to the voters and was defeated. It is the voter's choice. Now, Dr. Gilbert, much was brought to the surface as to what Elk Grove High School and Forest View High School lack in facilities: auto shops, swimming pools, air conditioning etc. Just how will a greater amount of dollars filter back to E.G.H.S. and F.V.H.S.? For the 42 per cent Dist. 214 collects, just how will you upgrade these two schools to the standards existing in the balance of the district?

Elk Grove Village has only one representative on the Dist. 214 school board. Sen. Regner and Rep. Macdonald, you and your cohorts were very quick to introduce legislation to include all voters of Dist. 214 in the voting on the unit school district. I ask you, has it been fair to the people of Elk Grove Village these many years not to have equal representation on the Dist. 214 school board?

In a school district as large as Dist. 214, there should not be domination by one segment of the population as has been the case in 214 for years. Sen. Regner and Rep. Macdonald, I'd like to suggest that you review the status of legislation controlling school boards. We in Elk Grove Village pay 42 per cent of the taxes supporting Dist. 214 and have only one representative to support our views and needs. The balance is wrong. May I suggest that the board be changed in all school districts where there are more than two high schools as follows: Each high school would be entitled to two representatives on the board and there would be one member-at-large elected from the district.

Also, busing into the district from another district should be a matter to go to the voters of both districts before it takes place. Since it's the taxpayers' money, I believe they should have a voice in an issue as important as this. The busing record throughout the country has shown that educational achievement has not improved significantly to offset the cost involved in transporting students. If a student wants an education, he will make an effort to get it no matter what handicap he might encounter.

Somehow, throughout the country, our elected officials seem to lose their responsiveness to those whom they represent — the voters — all the voters. If some positive action is shown quickly, I'm sure the prospect of another unit district election will never come to pass here again. Supt. Cronin did what I had hoped — he let the voters decide. They voted and as a member of the minority, I accept the decision, while looking forward to specific, positive action.

John Radzisz
Elk Grove Village

ON APRIL 5 the city of Evanston, which has the approximate population of Arlington Heights, had over 17,000 people voting in its mayoral election. Even after great efforts on the part of the candidates in Arlington Heights, less than 9,000 persons of the 37,246 registered took time to vote. On the same day Wheeling Township officials were being elected, and of the 68,000 registered voters in Wheeling Township, 10,610 went to the polls including those in Arlington Heights. Obviously, this is apathy at its height. There is much speculation that the people of the Northwest suburbs don't care and are not interested in their local governments.

In order to try and get some of the answers on this apparent voter apathy I would like to suggest that The Herald conduct a survey of a thousand or so persons.

Perhaps the following types of questions could be used: 1. Did you vote in the village of Arlington Heights election April 5, 1977? 2. Did you vote in the general election November 2, 1976? (This would indicate if person regularly did not vote). 3. If answer is no to question No. 1, ask the following: A. Were you unaware of the election? B. Were you interested in the election? C. Other reason? D. What would it have taken for you to vote on April 5 in Arlington Heights?

I feel your newspaper could provide a great community service of this type. I am sure the many dedicated, hard working people in the various political arenas in the area would be interested in the results.

'Help the Guard'

Helping grief stricken families during flood and tornado; confronting taunts of rioters with all its hazards; enduring the wet cold clamminess of sandbagging for flood; with long hours beyond the normal working day; quarters in a public building; eating rough prepared field meals; these are the emergency conditions, when the Governor calls the all-volunteer community Guardsman from his home, family and loved ones, at any hour of the day or night.

Yet, these good neighbor Illinois Guardsmen are reporting to state active-duty for minimum daily pay of $25! The municipal worker gets $50 or more, with compensatory time or extra pay if over eight hours. HB629 amends the Illinois Military and Naval Code to $40 a day. This pay adjustment is needed to meet the inflationary bills coming to the Guardsman's home during his absence for public service.

Recruitment and retention continue as very serious problems. It is further noted the great majority of Guardsmen, while absent on civic emergency, receive no pay or only minor benefits from their regular employment.

The Illinois Guard is the only backup for civil authority when civil disorder or natural disaster bring the Governor's call. We are asking your readers to write their legislators in Springfield, urging support for House Bill 629.

WASHINGTON — Both the television networks and the Federal Communications Commission are reeling from a federal court's decision that the FCC's restrictions on pay-television are unconstitutional.

A federal Court of Appeals in the District of Columbia has ruled that the commission had no authority to ban new films and major live sporting events from pay-TV.

The networks, and perhaps the commission, will appeal. But if the decision is not overturned, pay television could at last begin to realize the hopes of its investors and the fears of the big networks.

PAY TELEVISION is a service for which subscribers pay from $9 to $16 a month to watch films and sports uninterrupted by advertisements on an otherwise empty channel. So far, pay television has been available only to those who already subscribe to cable television, which brings signals in along a wire and provides many more channels than can be received by ordinary off-air receivers.

Over the past few years, the growth of pay-TV has been astounding. The biggest company, Home Box Office, a subsidiary of Time Inc., has climbed from 9,000 customers at the end of 1973 to 600,000 by the end of 1976. In all, there are 364 pay-TV companies in the country, serving about one million subscribers.

But this is nothing to what pay-TV investors believe the potential market would be if they could offer the kind of special programs that people are really eager to see. These are new films and championship sporting events. Until now, however, the FCC has placed these out of bounds, on the ground that they would siphon — that is remove from the ordinary free television services — programs that audiences now view for nothing.

SIPHONING IS AN illusion, the court has now ruled. The FCC has no evidence to show that siphoning would occur, or that the television networks would not meet the pay-TV threat simply by bidding higher for rights to sports and films.

Also, the court said, because pay television did not travel through the airwaves, the commission had no authority to pronounce upon what it could and could not offer as entertainment.

In fact, the FCC's pay-TV restrictions violated the first amendment. They even contradicted the commission's own stated policy of not ruling on the content of television programs. The net effect of the court's ruling, if upheld, could be to deregulate all of cable television.

DEREGULATION IS an idea very much in vogue. The FCC, the communications industry and think-tanks such as the Rand Corporation are excitedly wondering how far it should be applied to communications.

How freely, for example, should the new data transmission services springing up be allowed to compete with the heavily regulated communications giant, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company? Should computer terminals be prevented from being used for personal communications?

The financial aspirations of the new entrants into this communications field exceed even those which now have been let loose among investors in pay-TV.

Nixon may be a lesson to Socrates

It's like the onset of a boringly familiar nightmare. The first word on The Return of Richard Nixon to the television screens of the nation comes from a couple of set designers for his forthcoming interviews with David Frost. They promise a "homey ambience." Which means the interviews were not made at home.

There are the other familiar preparations for disbelief. In designing the set, "every single thing had to be cleared with him before it was used." Lest any trace of spontaneity or life intrude. One wonders if Mr. Nixon still has the bust of Lincoln that peered over his shoulder accusingly during one of his many Last Explanations of Watergate.

One comment of the set designers caught our attention. In looking for the usual books-by-the-yard for the background, they "specifically wanted books on the history of the United States, poetry, classics..." The classics. Of course: This performance's equivalent of the Lincoln bust. Can you imagine Richard Nixon actually reading the classics except to cram for an exam or lift a quotation?

ONE CLASSIC CAME to mind immediately — the Socratic dialogue in which the philosopher discovers that to suffer injustice is better than to do injustice. That was the opposite of the conventional wisdom, and still is. And having established that theory in his own patient way, Socrates went on to maintain that "he lives worse who... succeeds in escaping rebuke or correction or punishment..."

It is scarcely a popular proposition to this day; no wonder Socrates had so much trouble persuading his friends.

But if only Socrates had been a contemporary of Richard Nixon's, the philosopher might have been understood more readily. For here is an example of one who has been pardoned for deeds unspecified, who has been spared court appearances and formal judgment, who draws grants and pensions from his fellow citizens, and is said to have received an impressive payment for these television appearances. Fame and fortune.

AND YET, DESPITE all these "benefits," which of his fellow citizens envies him? Who would change places with him? Does he not seem more miserable than those others who took part in injustice but were punished for it? And more miserable still than those who suffered the injustice? Imagine the existence of this Prisoner of San Clemente. To quote one of the set designers, he "is a very lonely man. He can't go anywhere. He can't make statements on government policies like other ex-presidents." All people seem to ask him about is Watergate. His other controversies or contributions will be of paltry interest to those gathered around their sets to see how he defends himself this time, to hear his latest explanation.

Imagine the life of one condemned to go over and over again the same, or even different, explanations of a single dishonorable episode in a long career. The set may be different, the props more carefully chosen, the ambience homey, but the role remains unchanged. And ask if old Socrates hadn't figured it out long ago. And whether Gerald Ford, in denying Richard Nixon the possibility of any purging punishment, really did him justice, or mercy, or any favor.

THE CONVENTIONAL wisdom still may not agree. One of the set designers described Mr. Nixon as "very up" for this performance. That, too, is familiar. It brings to mind the Nixon who was going to go out there and get this whole thing behind him, each time. He was always Up. "This is not only a monetary thing to him," the designer added, "but a catharsis." Another word that reveals. Catharsis. From the Greek for purgation. Does one get Up for a purgation? Or just for a game?

Socrates said of those who would escape judgment and punishment: "May not their way of proceeding, my friend, be compared to the conduct of a person who is afflicted with the worst of diseases and yet contrives not to pay the penalty to the physician for his sins against his constitution, and will not be cured, because like a child, he is afraid of the pain of being burned or cut: — Is not that a parallel case?"

Not that it is necessary to read the Socratic dialogues to understand that there is no cure for having done injustice but to be judged rightly, and that though punishment is not pleasant, it can be useful and even, in the words of Socrates, "a deliverance from the greatest of evils." No, it is not necessary for this generation to read The Dialogues to understand that. Just look on Richard Nixon.

Protest well-founded

The barring of boys from a rape program at Palatine High School has prompted complaints from students who will take their grievance to the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education tonight.

The students contend that excluding boys from the program "A Violent Crime — Rape" was a violation of federal guidelines banning sex discrimination in education.

The students have pursued their grievance in a responsible and intelligent matter. The Dist. 211 board should heed their specific proposals.

In meetings with the students, Principal Leonard Newendorp has said he barred the boys from the program because he thought girls would be "embarrassed" if it was given to a mixed group.

Tonight the students will ask the school board to reschedule the rape program so boys may attend, spell out anti-sex discrimination provisions in the students rights handbook and discuss future access to such programs.

The teens have a good point. Even if rape is too sensitive a subject to deal with in a mixed group, the boys certainly should have had their own program.

And it may be, in looking at the students' response so far, that adults in this case underestimated young people's ability to deal maturely with a sensitive subject in a group with boys and girls.

U.S. need for imported oil boosts trade deficit to record $2.4 billion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American appetite for imported oil propelled the nation's trade deficit to a record $2.4 billion in March, nearly 28 per cent higher than the February gap, the Commerce Dept. said Wednesday.

The department also said the deficit for the first three months of this year — $5.9 billion — nearly matched the deficit for all of 1976.

Last month's deficit record of $2.387 billion was caused mostly by a 22 per cent climb in petroleum purchases.

THE MARCH trading shortfall was $736 million — or 27.9 per cent — higher than the previous record of $1.865 billion in February and nearly 43 per cent above the January level.

"I can't stress too much how much of this deficit can be attributed to pet-

THE U.S. TRADE deficit reached $2.4 billion in March, largely due to increased oil imports, the Commerce Dept. said Wednesday.

roleum imports," said Courtenay Slater, chief economist for the Commerce Dept. "The deficit we have is with OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries)."

Out of every $100 spent by the United States on imports in the first quarter, $37 went to oil exporting countries as American companies replenished petroleum supplies depleted by the bitter winter and the OPEC nations imposed higher prices.

Mrs. Slater said she expects to see "some leveling off or even some decline" in petroleum imports during the second quarter.

PETROLEUM imports were 36 per cent higher in the January-March quarter than the same period in 1976. The cost of the purchased oil during the quarter was $3.5 billion above a year ago, an increase of almost 50 per cent.

Imports in March totaled $12.4 billion, the highest ever recorded.

American exports last month totaled $10 billion, 3 per cent above the February export total and the largest monthly total since December when exports were $10.4 billion.

The export increase stemmed mostly from higher grain shipments abroad and a jump in aircraft deliveries.

For the first quarter, the department said, exports totaled $29.5 billion, about 1 per cent below the fourth quarter of 1976, but 9 per cent higher than the first quarter last year.

Imports totaled $35.4 billion in the quarter, 10 per cent above the final quarter of 1976 and 29 per cent above January-March last year.

Growth stocks lure shrewd again

NEW YORK — As every householder knows, it's cheaper to buy air conditioners in November, Christmas cards in January and children's sleds in July. The Wall Street version is the maxim, "Buy your straw hats in winter," and some shrewd investors have begun to wonder whether this is not an excellent time to be taking a fresh look at the classic "growth" stocks.

They could hardly be more exact representatives of an out-of-fashion, out-of-season investment. After being the market's darlings in much of the late 1960s and early 1970s, the growth stocks have more recently become notable pariahs. For most of the last 2½ years, their gains have not matched those of the average stock and some have not gained at all; the biggest loser in the Dow Jones Industrial Average last year was that eminent growth stock, Eastman Kodak.

Let's be clear on what we mean by "growth." To some giddy investors, a growth stock was any stock that was growing in price. Not so, alas: in many cases it turned out that they were growing nothing but a lemon.

BUT THE TRUE GROWTH stocks have certain readily definable characteristics. They tend to dominate their industries. They are relatively free from government regulation. Most important, they have shown an ability persistently to increase their earnings at a rate faster than that of the general economy. At the end of each market cycle, they are a little farther ahead of the pack.

Why, then, would anyone not want to own shares in these premier companies? Why, in fact, has the shift in investor preference away from these growth stocks been one of the most significant developments of the mid-1970s stock market?

Two immediate reasons: (1) The fine qualities of these companies scarcely had gone unnoticed; indeed, they were priced so high, in relation to their actual earnings, as to suggest to some that J. P. Morgan had been replaced by P. T. Barnum. (2) The other side of this high price was a relatively low dividend yield, and investors seared by the market conflagrations of the last decade decided that a dividend in the hand was worth more than a capital gain that failed to appear.

Now, however, come the second thoughts. As Wright Investors' Service puts it, "There are some logical reasons for the change in attitudes, but we think it has been overdone to the point of creating what we consider to be some very attractive buying opportunities among high-quality growth stocks."

BOTH THE WRIGHT service, which is influential among banks and brokers, and the respected firm of David L. Babson & Co. recently made the same point: the low-yielding aspect of genuine growth stocks is deceptive, since they tend to increase their dividends regularly and dramatically.

Comparing 10 growth stocks with similar lists of "income" and "cyclical" stocks since 1965, Babson found that only the growth stock group (American Home Products, Coca-Cola, Dow Chemical, Eastman Kodak, Exxon, Georgia-Pacific, Halliburton, IBM, Minnesota Mining and Procter & Gamble) had managed to increase its dividends more rapidly than the rise in the cost of living.

What's more, figuring today's dividends against 1965's stock prices, the growth stocks produce the highest "yield-at-cost" of all.

There are new complicating factors now, but the betting here is that Wall Street eventually will again give a higher premium to those companies whose records of authentic growth demonstrate that they deserve it.

Business briefs

Chrysler, UAW reach pact accord

Negotiators for Chrysler Corp. and the United Auto Workers Wednesday agreed on a new contract for nearly 4,000 striking workers at the Sterling Heights stamping plant near Detroit. Shutdown of the plant had forced the closing of three Detroit-area assembly plants. Nearly 18,000 workers at the firm's Hamtramck, Lynch Road and Windsor, Ont., plants were idled Wednesday and 7,800 workers were put on half-shifts at the Jefferson Avenue and Warren truck plant. The firm said it would lose production of 3,620 cars and 440 trucks alone. Spokesmen said even further shutdowns probably would occur until the key parts plant is reopened and the hoods, lenders, doors and other body parts start flowing. Members of UAW Local 1264 scheduled a ratification vote on the tentative local agreement for this morning.

Newspaper growth rises: group

Newspapers bounced back strongly from the nation's economic downturn and are posting new circulation and advertising records, the American Newspaper Publishers Assn. said Wednesday. But speaker after speaker told the ANPA, which wound up its annual convention in San Francisco, that the industry must go all out to understand and attract young readers if it wants to survive in the modern age. The ANPA said more women are working in the newspaper business than ever before. The number has "increased by more than 27,000 since 1970 — today there are 124,600," the organization said. "In 1976, newspapers received 62 per cent of the $1.3 billion increase in retail and local advertising among the three major media — newspapers, television and radio," the ANPA said in a status report on the industry. "Advertising revenues for daily newspapers surged to a record $10.2 billion in 1976," the report said.

Nader alleges car safety meddling

Ralph Nader accused the auto industry Wednesday of "reaching into the White House" during the Nixon and Ford administrations to avoid placing safety airbags in new cars. If the Carter administration does not take strong action now, Nader said, auto industry leaders "will think they can get away from the reach of any auto pollution, auto mileage and auto safety laws." At a Washington, D.C. Transportation Dept. hearing on the reopened issue of safety restraints, the consumer advocate urged a return to a strong enforcement standard by requiring airbags in new cars by 1980.

Carter grain price attacked

A leading private grain trader Wednesday criticized the Carter administration's plan to seek negotiation of international floor and ceiling prices for grain, and advocated instead a policy of building commodity reserves. Michel Fribourg, president of the Continental Grain Co., said he finds it hard to believe the administration is reviving proposals for a grain price agreement "at the same time that the government objects to a world oil cartel based on the same monopolistic price-fixing principle." Agriculture Sec. Bob Bergland disclosed last week that talks on a possible international grain agreement will get under way this summer. He said the administration favors such an agreement as a step toward promoting more stability in world grain prices. Meanwhile, the Agriculture Dept.'s crop weather report this week noted for the second straight week that rains in the Great Plains again have improved the outlook for the winter wheat crop. This, in turn, has strengthened prospects that continuing good weather could push production close to 2 billion bushels, only slightly below last year's record 2.14 billion bushel crop.

"MONEY TALKS"

Heavy savings inflow did not produce housing boom

One would expect that with the record inflow of money into the nation's savings and loans, the housing market should have enjoyed a new boom. Why this did not happen is explained in a study by the United States League of Insured Associations.

The study notes the inconsistency between the record lending in 1976 by savings and loan associations and the very modest improvement in new housing starts. It finds three principal reasons:

1) While savings and loans have historically been the principal source of funds for homes and home improvements, they have traditionally concentrated their lending in single-family housing. This accounts for the report by the National Association of Realtors that the numbers of sales existing single-family homes through the first three quarters of 1976 were at record-breaking levels, with August 23.3% above the corresponding month of 1975. The demand for the associations' major product — single-family mortgage credit — was therefore strong. But any boom in housing starts was lacking because of the softer development of multi-family units.

2) Inflation has camouflaged the real gain in home investment. As the U.S. League study notes, it took a monthly lending rate of $7 billion in 1976 to finance the same number of units as $4.8 billion financed in 1970.

3) Savings institutions have been left largely to themselves in recent years as other private lenders virtually deserted the home mortgage market in favor of higher returns elsewhere. The U.S. League points out that savings associations accounted for about 75% of the nation's mortgage market in 1975-76, as compared with 60% during 1970-71.

Of these factors, the major culprit, according to the U.S. League, has been inflation, which ate up about 60% of a 100% increase in 1976 lending over 1971. The National Association of Realtors reported that median sales prices of existing single-family homes rose to $39,400 in August, 1976, 7.1% above a year earlier. It saw hope in the possibility that 1976 may have marked the first time in three years that gains in family income kept pace with the advance in existing home prices.

Modified banking bill urged

The Illinois House Financial Institutions Committee Wednesday passed a modified branch banking bill.

The controversial bill (H 492) is known as the Illinois Bank Holding Company Act. If approved by the House and Senate, umbrella companies owning an interest in several banks would be legalized in Illinois. A second modified branching bill (H294) was defeated Wednesday by the committee in a 13-to-11 vote. The bill would have allowed Illinois banks to open a limited number of branch offices where customers could make deposits, cash checks, and carry on other personal business transactions.

State law restricts new bank operations to one facility within 1,500 feet of the home office and a second facility within two miles of the bank offices.

HOLDING COMPANY legislation "would be a boon to suburban banks trying to compete with Chicago banks," Fred Roberts, spokesman for the Springfield-based Assn. for Modern Banking in Illinois said Wednesday. Small banks could retain their local officers and interests, joining together to share the cost of data processing and other services, Roberts said.

Roberts said he is "very optimistic" that similar branch banking and holding company bills introduced by State Sen. Philip Rock, D-Chicago, will be approved by the Senate Finance and Credit Regulations Committee within the coming week.

Roberts said the holding company bill limits the number of banks which can join a holding company. An amendment to H 492 limits a holding company to 15 per cent of the assets within any of five regions in the state.

SUBURBAN BANK customers would notice no change in local involvement if the holding company concept becomes law in Illinois, said James Lancaster, president of the Bank of Elk Grove, 100 E. Higgins, Elk Grove Village.

Lancaster said existing groups of affiliated banks would probably form a holding company as a means of offering increased lending capacity and other services. He favors branch banking as a convenience "in the best interests of the citizen, the consumer."

"What's best for the consumer" is the reason given for Winn Davidson's opposition to branch banking. As president of the Bank of Palatine on Northwest Hwy. in Palatine, Davidson said a "monopoly" situation caused by branching would mean "higher priced service, and less of it" for individual and small business customers.

PROTECTION OF bank home offices should be included in any statewide branching proposals, said Robert Calvin, president of The Des Plaines Bank, 1223 Oakton, Des Plaines. Calvin said the opening of new branch bank offices in the Northwest suburbs could provide more convenient service.

Robert Mills, president of First Arlington National Bank, Campbell and Dunton streets, Arlington Heights, said he has "no position" on branching. Although Mills sees consumer benefits in branch banking, he does not approve of the extensive system in California.

"We are not opposed to branching as much as we think the unit system has served us very well," said Illinois Bankers Assn. first vice president John Montgomery, president of the Lakeside Bank of Chicago. Montgomery said 1 per cent of the banks control nearly 90 per cent of bank deposits in New York and California — where branching is allowed.

The Electronic Funds Illinois cooperative bank group already has endorsed a network of electronic banking conveniences, Montgomery said. Some independent bankers opposed to branching see the electronic funds system as an alternative to convenience services provided by branch offices.

Team finishes 1st stages; ready to cap oil gusher

STAVANGER, Norway (UPI) — Two Texans and a daredevil crew Wednesday completed initial stages of their work to shut off a 120-foot high oil gusher in the North Sea and engineers were optimistic the well could be capped within 24 hours.

"Practically all the preliminary work has been implemented and we can get on with the capping now," said Robert Archimbeault, engineering manager for the Phillips Petroleum Co., which operates the oil platform.

He said Angser (Boots) Hansen and Richard (Toots) Hattenberg, disaster specialists from Paul (Red) Adair's Fire and Blowout Prevention Co. of Houston crew, are "in a state of readiness" to cap the oil well in Norway's Ekofisk North Sea oil field which has been gushing out of control since Friday night.

"THERE SEEMED to be a possibility of capping today (Wednesday)," Archimbeault said.

"But the judgment was that the crew was getting pretty tired. The judgment on shore was to take the crew off and get on with the job in the morning."

With luck, he said, the 28,000 barrels of oil spilling into the sea daily could be cut off by 10 a.m. (6 a.m. EST) today.

The two Texans and their crew worked six hours Wednesday aboard Bravo Platform before being ordered back to the pipe-laying barge lying alongside, which is their operational headquarters.

The team had been hampered for two days by unpredictable winds which either churned up the sea or dropped off so sharply that dangerous gas fumes began to build up.

Phillips' officials said the team made "tremendous progress" in their attempts to bolt down a crucial cutoff valve to the spewing pipe.

The valve, designed to prevent blowouts, was only partly attached when the well erupted Friday night under a pressure of 5,000 pounds per square inch, spewing 28,000 barrels of oil a day into the North Sea. It stayed in place, though only loosely held.

Closing the valve's "blind rams" will help choke off the oil flow, company officials said, allowing the team to bolt on three more pieces of equipment, including a safety valve. Only then, the officials said, will the gushing oil be cut off completely.

Thousands of tons of mud will also be forced into the well to form a stopper.

"The success of the whole operation depends on this exact procedure," said Haakon Blauw, a Phillips spokesman, but added it could take several days.

THE $100 MILLION platform is located in the Ekofisk field, Europe's largest offshore operating field, 175 miles southwest of Stavanger.

Plugging oil blowout just part of his job

To hear Edward (Koots) Mathews tell it in his easy Texas drawl, plugging an oil-well blowout ranks alongside taking out the garbage. His company responds to 45 to 50 well accidents a year in North and South America, Africa, Europe and the Mideast.

When an oil well blows and gushes tons of oil and "mud" into the environment — such as Phillips Petroleum Company's Bravo well is now doing in the North Sea — or erupts into a mammoth geyser of flame, only eight people in the world can be called to cap it. And they all work for the Red Adair Fires & Blowout Company in Houston.

Koots Mathews, a 19-year veteran with the Adair company, says capping the blowout off Norway "should be relatively easy."

First the team must "cap" the well, clamping or threading a valve to it. Then they "kill" it by pumping special drilling mud into the well, bringing it under control again, says an industry expert. If the team cannot work on the drilling platform because of fire hazard or because the platform has been destroyed, they drill a relief well into the ocean floor to relieve pressure on the damaged well and pump in chemicals.

Lead throws off defense

North and South really staggered into six hearts. Not that their bidding was bad, but rather that they almost stopped several times along the way.

While they were moving slowly on, West was doing some thinking of his own and came to the conclusion that if they did bid a slam his best chance to beat the contract would be to lead his deuce of diamonds in the hope that he might cause South to refuse a diamond finesse that he would take later.

So, as soon as the bidding ended, West led his deuce of diamonds. There was no diamond finesse, but the lead did cause South to go wrong another way. South went up with dummy's ace, led a spade, finessed the queen, cashed the ace, ruffed his last spade, cashed dummy's ace of trumps and was faced with the problem of getting back to his hand. He had to ruff a diamond.

He should have ruffed low. A 5-1 diamond break was less likely than a 4-1 trump break, but he did ruff high. This established West's 10 as a defensive trick and there was no way to pick up East's queen of clubs.

CARL MEES reminisces about his 32 years with the University of Illinois cooperative extension service and about the changes in suburban Cook County from rural to residential during that time.

Farm adviser sees area go from crops to concrete

Carl Mees has helped the Northwest suburbs make the transition from crops to concrete and from rural to residential and loved every minute.

As a farm adviser for the University of Illinois cooperative extension service for 32 years, he helped adapt the program to the rapidly transforming area.

"The earlier programs were oriented more toward agricultural production," he said. "Recently we have changed our emphasis to consumerism and social problems."

MEES, A former Arlington Heights village trustee and Dist. 25 school board member, first came to Cook County in 1951, ironically because the area consisted mostly of farmers dealing in his specialty — vegetables.

He didn't imagine that by 1987 a 4-H youth program would begin in Chicago or that in 1962 he would direct nutritional education in the city's low income neighborhoods rather than demonstrating the latest fertilizer to farmers.

"We've adapted to an urban society," Mees said. "Today there are 500 farms in the county. When I began there were 3,000 and they extended from Arlington Heights all the way to Park Ridge."

The regional office is now in Rolling Meadows and Mees said an agriculturist is still on the staff.

BUT A horticulturist now answers questions from residents about lawn and shrubbery problems, instead of what type of seed to use for the best crop yield. And the once plentiful dairy herds in the county no longer exist.

Mees, 64, retired from the extension service March 31. He plans to travel.

"We've tried to transform the program to fit the needs of county residents," he said. "The program today is in a different setting than it was when I began with it, but it's just as important."

Apartment rents are going up, up, up

by JOE FRANZ

Apartment dwellers in the Northwest suburbs who received hefty rent hikes this spring can expect the trend to continue.

Area property managers say that the rising cost of labor, utilities, energy and materials and the continuing shortage of apartments throughout the Chicago area will continue to drive up rents.

Lorenz Garcia, vice president in charge of the property management division for Quinlan and Tyson Inc., said rents for the units his firm leases in the Northwest suburbs will increase 5 to 10 per cent May 1. The firm manages about 3,000 apartments in the Chicago area.

"Rents now are 15 per cent higher than they were two years ago, and in two years I think they will be 20 per cent higher than they are now," he said. "I would think that with inflation, government finagling with taxes and rising fuel costs, rents will increase that much."

Garcia said that while rents will continue to increase throughout the Chicago area, the Northwest suburbs will not be hit as hard as the North Shore. Rents for Quinlan and Tyson's North Shore units are going up 15 to 20 per cent May 1.

"Because there is supply out there (Northwest suburbs) the rents are somewhat cheaper," he said. "On the North Shore, there is no supply."

William D. Sally, general manager and vice president of the property management division for Baird and Warner Inc., said there is only a 3 to 5 per cent vacancy rate in Chicago area apartments and he believes there will be no relief for renters until more apartments are built. He adds that no new apartments will be built until there are more financial incentives. The firm manages several thousand apartments in the Chicago area.

"Owners of rental units are not making a fair return on their money," he said. "If it were profitable you wouldn't be seeing apartments by the thousands being converted to condos (condominiums)."

"There is talk of more apartment construction being murmured in the industry, but they won't be built unless rents are increased substantially," Sally said. "I would say you won't see any new apartments to speak of unless rents go up 25 per cent from where they are now."

Fred Hillman, who is president of Chesterfield Builders, Deerfield, and past president of the Home Builders Assn. of Greater Chicago, said apartment construction has been at a virtual standstill for three to four years and he does not see any change in the immediate future.

"All costs that go into building apartments are such that you cannot provide a satisfactory return on investment," he said. "Rents are at an all-time high, but the fact is, even where they are they're not enough to cover the cost of construction. It's a losing situation."

Although there are many factors that have driven up the cost of construction, Hillman said excessively stringent state, federal and local regulations are much to blame.

"They have had a tremendously damaging effect on the cost of housing and apartment construction," he said.

Browning Yelvington, vice president of property management for American Invs-Co., said although 1977 will be far from a boom year for apartment construction, he does expect some activity.

AREA APARTMENT MANAGERS say rents in the Northwest suburbs are likely to continue rising. They cite increased costs and a continuing shortage of apartments in the Chicago area as the primary reasons.

"I think 1977 should be a better year than 1975 or 1976," he said. "There are a considerable number of apartments that either have been started or will be started this year."

Yelvington, whose firm manages 5,000 apartments in the Chicago area, predicted some rents could jump as much as 15 per cent by the fall.

Donald Jusk, property manager of the 700-unit Whispering Glen apartment complex in Rolling Meadows, said he foresees only a small amount of apartment construction this year.

"If anything, you'll see eight, 10- and 12-unit apartment buildings being built," he said. "You won't see anything big like a 700-unit complex being built."

Jusk said if there is apartment construction, he believes it will be of the basic, no frills type.

"If anybody does build you're going to see them with a smaller amenities package," he said. "You're not going to see them with swimming pools and saunas like a few years ago."

Rents at Whispering Glen are increasing 8 per cent May 1, and Jusk said he sees no relief for renters in the near future.

"In my area I would expect rents to continue going up at the same rate or even escalate," he said.

Sally said the cost of one-bedroom apartments in the Northwest suburbs range from about $215 to $285 a month, with the average being $225 to $230 a month. A two-bedroom apartment costs between $280 and $375 a month, he said.

Sally said the average tenant signs a one-year lease and that it still includes all utilities with the exception of electricity and telephone.

He said many apartment owners, however, are either reducing or eliminating decorating allowances for tenants.

"It used to be that a tenant got one month's rent for decorating every year," Sally said. "Then it was cut by some to a half month's rent. Now some have cut it to a token amount like $75 a year or eliminated it entirely."

Sally said the high occupancy rate in apartments in the Chicago area also has prompted some apartment owners to tighten their pet policies.

"A lot more apartments are not renting to people with pets," he said. "Because there is a low vacancy rate they can be more selective about who they rent to."

Sally said because of escalating rents, more and more persons are living with roommates to defray costs.

"As the cost of apartments goes up there are more people doubling up," he said. "There also are many that are going home to live in the back bedroom of their parents' homes because of the high cost."

Forces at work to give cities mortgage funds

by GUY HALVERSON

WASHINGTON — New household mortgage monies for U.S. inner-city areas may be increasing in coming months, thanks to a convergence of political and economic forces here.

The Carter administration is known to be actively seeking a new chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board sympathetic to stepped-up inner-city mortgage lending by thrift institutions. The board, currently chaired by Republican Garth Marston, appointed by President Ford, supervises the huge $400 billion savings and loan industry.

At the same time, congressional sources say there is rising support in Congress — particularly in the powerful congressional banking committees — for legislation prodding S&Ls into channeling greater funds into core cities. One suggested approach is to link future expansion of S&L financial services to such loans.

MEANWHILE, the powerful S&L also is taking the offensive in the public campaign designed to show that S&L inner-city mortgage lending has grown appreciably in the past few years.

Dr. Andrew F. Brimmer, a former governor of the Federal Reserve Board and now president of a Washington-based consulting firm, said: "I definitely see increased lending by S&Ls in core cities. How much, is unknown, because we don't fully know how much lending is going on there now."

Brimmer made recommendations on how to bolster S&L inner-city mortgage lending. The plan followed a major study undertaken for the U.S. Savings League by Brimmer.

In an interview prior to a press conference recently, Brimmer said he believes strongly that S&Ls are "seeking ways" to increase core-city lending. But most S&Ls, he noted, have little understanding of inner city areas, and usually, no offices in these locations. He mentioned one Washington-based S&L that has no one on its staff familiar with inner-city lending needs, even though blacks make up some 70 per cent of the population.

THE BRIMMER STUDY carefully notes a number of examples of redlining throughout the United States (whereby inner-city areas are kept from receiving mortgage monies). The proposal calls for "new procedures" to provide loan costs and to spread risks.

Among the main conclusions:

- There should be a new federal shared-risk mortgage insurance program to make "lending in central cities more attractive . . ."
- Prospective borrowers should be given special counseling.
- Interest rates and down payments should be adjusted to on a case-by-case basis to fully reflect lender risks.
- High risk loans should be serviced by "pool offices" working for several S&Ls in a community.
- Complicated state laws pertaining to real-estate transactions and foreclosures should be simplified.

CURRENTLY, THE Federal Housing Authority can insure loans in older parts of a community. Yet, FHA-backed loans decreased sharply after a series of fraud scandals in 1972. Since then there has been mounting pressure on S&Ls to step up inner-city mortgage loans to fill the vacuum left by the federal pull-back.

In the last congressional session lawmakers introduced several bills to set up a special coinsurance fund for higher risk areas with both the federal government and private lenders participating.

The U.S. League legislative proposal, for example, would establish a federal shared risk insurance fund that would underwrite up to 80 per cent of high risk loans. The lending companies would meet the remaining 20 per cent.

During the recent presidential election campaign, then-candidate Carter frequently faulted S&Ls for what he perceived as redlining practices.

THERE IS NOW one vacancy on the three-man FHLBB board, with the chairmanship likely passing to that individual filling the vacancy. While a number of top industry officials have favored current Democratic board member Grady Perry Jr. for the chairmanship post, administration sources say a "more activist" candidate will likely be selected.

One thing for certain, say housing experts here: assuming Congress does eventually lean toward some type of federal coinsurance program, there will be an all-out struggle over actual administration of the program. Officials of the Dept. of Housing and Urban Development are expected to push for FHA control. S&Ls will seek an insurance program linked to the FHLBB.

Boom year for housing?

The housing industry is well into what should be its best year since the boom days of the early 1970s, according to economist Kenneth J. Thygeson.

Thanks to such "favorable financial factors" as an abundant supply of mortgage money and growing real incomes — plus a strong single-family housing demand — conditions in the housing market "are as favorable as we have seen in the last five years," Thygeson said.

He is chief economist for the U.S. League of Savings Associations, the primary trade association for the savings and loan industry.

The typical family's desire to purchase a home has been "apparently unaffected by rising home prices and related energy problems," Thygeson said. Single-family housing starts could reach a record 1.4 million units this year, he said.

OVER-ALL STARTS, including multi-family units, likely will reach 1.8 million to 1.9 million units, Thygeson said.

Total starts have not been so high since 1972 and 1973, when more than 2 million units were begun each year.

There should be an ample supply of mortgage money for home buyers, Thygeson said. Although savings gains are expected to taper off during the last half of the year, Thygeson predicted that savings and loan associations "are likely to lend" more than $90 billion in 1977 — an all-time record.

It's one of the not-so-little things that make your money earn more at First Federal Savings. Each month all savings deposits in your passbook account received after the 1st and up through the 10th earn interest, compounded daily, from the 1st. (If left on deposit until the end of the quarter.) And, of course, your deposits would still earn at the high 5¼% annual rate from the date of deposit to the date of withdrawal even if deposited after the 10th.

You can even save-by-mail and we'll handle all postage and provide self-addressed envelopes. Your savings are insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation. Isn't it nice how little things add up at First Federal Savings of Des Plaines.

Savings League tells plan to help save energy

A plan to enable savings associations to aid homeowners and home buyers in their energy-saving efforts was announced recently by John A. Hardin, president of the U.S. League of Savings Associations.

In announcing the plan, Hardin praised President Carter's proposals to give homeowners tax credits for energy-saving improvements.

The league's energy proposals were drafted last month by a specially appointed U.S. League Energy Committee. The recommendations were submitted to the Carter administration early in April.

"There's no doubt that the days of cheap home energy are gone," Hardin said. "As energy costs rise, it will become increasingly beneficial for homeowners to take energy conservation measures."

THOSE MEASURES likely would include additional home insulation, improved weatherstripping, installation of thermostats which automatically dial down during nighttime hours and improvements of home heating units, he said.

"Many of these improvements could be costly," Hardin said. "But the President's tax credit proposals will make it economically feasible for millions of homeowners to make the necessary improvements."

He said the tax credit proposals likely would have "relatively smooth sailing" in Congress.

Hardin noted that savings associations stand ready to help homeowners with energy conservation financing, either through home improvement loan programs or advances on open end mortgage plans.

HE SUGGESTED, however, that savings associations be permitted to make energy conservation improvement loans beyond the current 15-year, $10,000 statutory limit on home improvement loans.

"We may need that additional flexibility," Hardin said.

Hardin also said an increasing number of savings associations already are making conventional mortgage loans on solar homes.

"We agree that solar energy may be a viable alternative, even in normally cold-weather states," Hardin said.

Hardin praised the President's call for utility rate structures which reward conservation efforts.

"Homeowners should have the opportunity to save on their utility bills by adjusting their energy use to take advantage of such incentives as off-peak pricing," he said.

HARDIN ALSO announced a broad business education program intended to give mortgage lenders the specialized information they will need to advise homeowners and home buyers on conservation matters.

The league program, part of which will be coordinated through The Institute of Financial Education, will include special training courses and programs for appraisers and mortgage loan officers.

"The league program also will develop ways for appraisers to factor energy costs into their judgments," Hardin said.

At the same time, the league and the institute will be developing special material for mortgage loan officers, he said.

"AS ENERGY COSTS rise, families will have to factor energy bills into their housing budgets," Hardin said. "Those same considerations will have to be factored into the loan application and approval process.

"Mortgage lenders don't want home buyers to be surprised by heating bills and other utility costs," Hardin said.

"Lenders should work with home buyers to make certain that their budgets can stand the additional energy costs," he said.

The first portion of the league's educational program, a clipbook of energy conservation and development material, will be available to savings association executives next month, Hardin said.

You can fix those screens even if wood is decayed

Dear House Doctor: I have patched the window screens in this old home several times. A handyman book showed me how to reinforce the corners with angle irons, but the wood is so decayed that the screws will not hold. Please offer some suggestions for building new screens. W.L.W.

This is a good do-it-yourself project, but, at this season, it will not permit procrastination while you give the lawn priority.

The frame can be made of any soft wood such as fir or pine, but be sure the pieces you select are straight. The sides, top and spacer pieces are 1 by 2 inches furring strips, which should have an actual dimension of 1 1/4 by 3/4 inches. The bottom piece is a 1 by 3 inches with an actual dimension of 2 3/4 by 3/4 inches.

Measure the space into which the screens will fit and subtract 1/4-inch to provide clearance on all sides. Construct the frames to these dimensions.

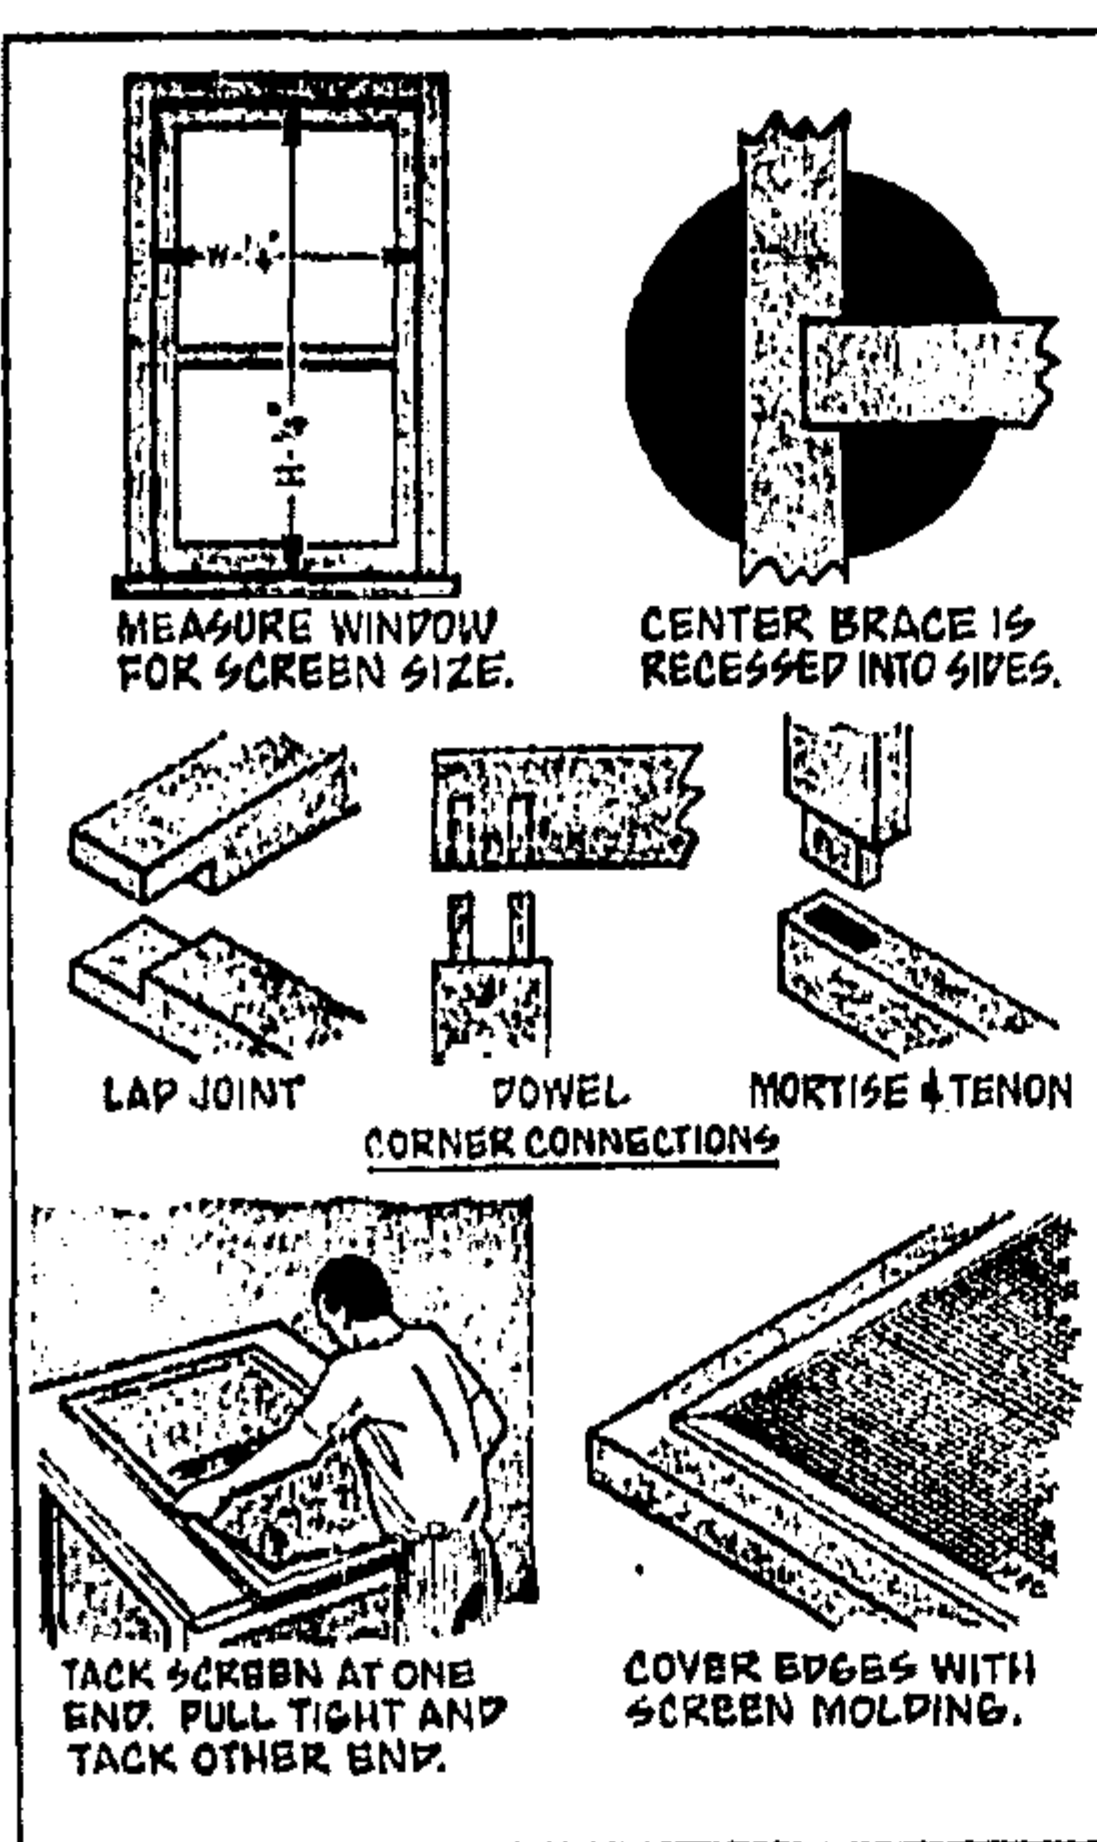

You have a choice of three methods for making the corner connections. If your energy is limited, use a lap joint, where you remove half the thickness of the wood at the corners and secure the pieces with glue and wire brads.

If you prefer to impress the family with your expertise at carpentry, use either of the other two methods.

For a dowel connection, you will need either a dowel jig or dowel points to obtain proper alignment. Two 3/8-inch holes are drilled 1/4-inch deep. Dowel points are inserted in the holes and the joining piece is tapped against the points to mark the wood for drilling. The dowels are glued into both pieces. Instructions for using will be furnished with the dowel jig.

The mortise and tenon joint is the strongest. The tenon is cut with a saw. Make the length two-thirds the width of the joining piece. Carefully mark the tenon on the joining piece. Use a wood drill to remove most of the wood to three-fourths the width of the piece, then remove the remaining wood with a chisel. Assemble the parts with glue. When the glue is dry, paint the frames.

Plastic screening is the most practical material for your use. After folding cut edges of the screening double, take copper tacks or a staple gun and tack one end first, then stretch and tack the other end. Tack the sides last.

J.J.C.A. — You have only a slightly better chance of sealing double glazed windows to prevent moisture from collecting between the glass as you have for growing pineapples in Antarctica.

Mrs. F.C.A. — Mildew stains on the room side of outside walls are due partly to high humidity in the house, but mainly because of the absence of insulation within the walls.

Mrs. N.M. — Tell your sister that hot air heating systems are provided with filters to remove the dust that is soiling the area around the diffusers. She should replace the filters at least every three or four months.

T.R. — Soiled phonograph records can be cleaned by washing with lukewarm water and a dishwashing detergent.

Dear House Doctor: This summer, I plan to replace the putty on my windows. Is there a special method for making this easier? Mrs. G. McN.

I believe you will find that most of the putty can be pried out with a putty knife. Any that remains firmly attached can be easily removed by heating, which softens it. An electric soldering iron is best for this purpose.

Dear House Doctor: When we installed an oak parquet floor in our kitchen a year ago, we were told to wash it with soap and water. As you can imagine, it is covered with water and grease stains that we cannot remove. The installer left us a can of floor conditioner which does no good. Do you know anything about this product? Mrs. S.M.

Herman Baum

The house doctor

I know nothing about the floor conditioner, but I do know that a wood floor has no place in a kitchen. I suggest you have it covered with a resilient flooring of your choice.

Dear House Doctor: I am refinishing birchwood cabinets in our kitchen. All is going well except for a black stain caused by oven cleaner on a cabinet door beneath a built-in oven and a door above the oven which is darkened by the heat. Can these be restored? L.J.

All the varnish must be removed, and the doors must be bleached.

Oxalic acid may do the bleaching. Pour the acid powder into boiling water until no more can be dissolved. Remove the doors and place them on a flat surface. Apply the hot solution and allow it to remain until dry.

If this does not remove the stains, the use of a two-solution bleach may be necessary. Directions will be on the label.

It will surely be necessary to restain the wood to match the other doors.

Dear House Doctor: I am considering insulating the walls of my home. Please give me your thoughts on the use of glass fiber or foam, insulation and aluminum or vinyl siding. E.A.K.

According to insulation manufacturers, urea-formaldehyde foam has almost twice the insulating value of glass fiber for the same thickness. Aluminum and vinyl siding, without additional insulation beneath them, do not have sufficient insulating value to be considered for this purpose.

Most parking lots too big: study

The average shopping center parking lot is more than 25 per cent larger than necessary and wastes space that would better be used for landscaping, libraries or other productive installations, the national accounting firm of Coopers & Lybrand reports.

In its real estate newsletter, the firm tells of a report by Barton-Aschman Associates, a transportation planning organization, which surveyed parking needs for several shopping centers.

While most shopping centers are built with 5.5 parking spaces for each 1,000 square feet of gross leasable area in the center, the survey showed that even on the busiest shopping days of the year — weekends between Thanksgiving and Christmas — only a tiny fraction of the shopping centers needed so much parking space.

"OF THE 141 parking accumulation counts, the average parking demand was 4.1 spaces used," the firm says. Less than eight per cent of the parking accumulation counts equaled or exceeded the industry standard of 5.5 (spaces per 1,000 square feet of leasable space) even during peak shopping periods, it says.

A demand ratio of more than five spaces per 1,000 square feet existed for no more than three hours on the busiest days — less than one-tenth of one per cent of annual store operating hours.

The report showed that of the remaining 92 per cent of parking demands, 39 per cent required a 4.0 to 5.0 parking demand ratio, and 32 per cent required less than a 4.0 ratio.

The report says that less parking spaces are needed now than when the industry standards were set partly because there are now many more regional shopping centers, resulting in a decrease in the average number of shoppers at a given center. Moreover, many services are provided by shopping centers which require peak parking periods different than those of retail stores: libraries, theaters, banks, health clubs and ice arenas, for example.

"MUCH MORE sophistication exists about the use of parking facilities which has increased their efficiency. More feasibility has developed for park-and-shuttle transportation because of advanced technology. More development of public transit systems has resulted from environmental concern about noise and air pollution," the newsletter says.

Some shopping centers do have less than a 5.5 ratio of parking spaces to 1,000 square feet of sales space.

"The resulting land savings for parking can range from four acres for a center of 800,000 square feet . . . to as much as 10 acres for a center of two million square feet . . ." the study shows.

The study suggests that this land could better be used for landscaping or such amenities as libraries, museums, hotels and government offices. Peripheral areas of parking lots might be developed by theaters, grocery stores, banks or private offices.

Even more land could be saved from asphalt by developing improved shuttle service and remote parking facilities, the newsletter says.

$2,225,000 loan for office complex

Percy Wilson Mortgage and Finance Corp., Chicago has arranged a $2,225,000 30-year loan on a 10-building office complex to be constructed in Rolling Meadows.

The complex, which will contain 10 single-story office buildings arranged in a park-like setting, will be located at the southwest corner of Lincoln Avenue and Hicks Road. The complex will contain a total of 74,268 square feet of net leasable area, and parking will be provided for 295 cars.

When You Want to Sell Fast, Think of Us First

Minerals on mom's land? Take the money and run

The saying has its roots in Wall Street and in the never-never land of the stock market, but it has the same application in any investment area, including real estate: "Nobody ever went broke taking a profit."

Dear Mr. Campbell: My mother owns almost six acres of farm and forestry land in Wisconsin. She is 75 years old and has no use for the land. She has had it up for sale for over a year. Recently, she has had several offers to buy the land at a large sum — about $25,000. Do you think this could have anything to do with the fact that certain minerals have been found in this area?

There was an article about this in the papers recently and the rumor is that land in this area has become very valuable. Would you advise her to sell the land? I wish I had the money to buy it myself, but the economy, unfortunately, has me plucked.

Would there be a legal way to sell for the $25,000 with the stipulation that if any minerals or such are found, she would receive a percentage? — Mrs. C. T. (Cicero, Ill.)

There's certainly nothing illegal about going after mineral rights in a situation like this and I think that it is quite obvious that this possible presence of riches under the surface has to be the reason why it has suddenly become so "hot."

Whether to negotiate for mineral rights or not is something that you'll have to talk over with an attorney, of course, but I'm a little less than lukewarm on the matter. You should realize that if $25,000 is the current top price being offered, any allocation of mineral rights will necessarily scale this down.

You should realize, too, that mining corporations plan far into the future and that it could be five, 10 or more years before they get around to developing the property, and perhaps another four or five years before they get into meaningful production. And finally, the supposed minerals may turn out to be a dud.

If your mother were 25 it might pay her to angle for a slice of the production, but at age 75, I would take the money and run.

Dear Mr. Campbell: My husband,

Don G. Campbell

About real estate

who is 60, lost his business and all of our assets except our house three years ago. We still owe $6,000 on our home which is worth about $50,000 ($215 a month). Would we be better off selling our house and buying a condominium unit for about $40,000? We would then be able to bank our monthly payments. — Mrs. J.R. (Long Beach, Calif.)

It's a rational way to go — depending on your present income. A better way, however, would be to buy the condominium unit and make a substantial enough down payment on it so that the monthly payments would be considerably under what you are paying now and still leave you some bankable savings.

If, for instance, you were to pay $20,000 down on the condominium and finance the balance (for 25 years at 9 per cent), your monthly payments would be about $168 a month, which would leave you about $48 a month to invest — but, please, not in your pass-book savings account. There are more productive places to put this money.

Your decision, however, must hang on your present financial situation, and you didn't give me much to go on.

Dear Mr. Campbell: Is an absentee landlord responsible for noise, partying, traffic and horn-blowing caused by tenants in his multiple apartment building? We have suffered this nuisance for several years, and are at a loss as to what to do about it. — Mr. J.Q.P. (Belmont, N.Y.)

I'm afraid that he (you) is, but — taking the practical, if callous, view of the matter — just how legally threatening are the complaints being lodged with you?

Of course, you do feel responsible to the neighbors and it's just too bad that more absentee landlords aren't as conscientious as you are about it. Your best bet, I think, is to pick yourself a good, reliable — and stern — manager, from among the present tenants (from the nonpartying element) and, on the basis of a rent concession (like free) make him responsible for conduct in the apartment. Then give him a free hand in enforcing your code, even to the point of eviction for repeaters.

Dear Mr. Campbell: As a landlord, what can one do about a pornographic book store that has moved into an adjoining building and has driven out one good tenant after another? — Mr. W.F. (Buffalo, N.Y.)

See a lawyer, but the outlook is pretty bleak, I'm afraid.

Savings deposits take a big jump

Savings deposits in March moved up by an estimated $8 billion, the U.S. League of Savings Associations reported today.

The league based its monthly estimate on reports received from 935 associations holding 51.3 per cent of the assets of the business.

"This is the largest monthly savings gain in the 146-year history of the savings and loan business," said Norman Strunk, executive vice president of the league. "The previous high month was March of 1976, but last month topped that by 13.6 per cent."

Strunk said that the savings deposit gain at associations was not typical of other financial institutions. At commercial banks, consumer type savings and time deposits grew by $2.6 billion in March compared to $3.1 billion for that month a year ago. Similarly, mutual savings banks experienced slightly slower growth in savings deposits.

"On the mortgage lending side of the business," Strunk said, "the record was even more impressive. Mortgage loans closed for the month came to an estimated $8.1 billion, almost 40 per cent higher than the March 1976 figure."

Total loan closings for the first quarter of 1977 reached an estimated $19.2 billion, substantially topping the previous record closings of $13.9 billion in the first three months of 1976.

"With loan commitments at a high level, mortgage lending should remain strong for the next few months," Strunk said.

New facility for retarded to open in June

The Northwest Suburban Aid for the Retarded, 31 N. Grace St., Park Ridge, is accepting applications for admission to its community living facility.

This specialized residence for retarded and cerebral palsied ambulatory adults is under construction at 100 N. Clifton, Park Ridge. Completion is slated for June.

The facility has six 2-bedroom apartments, main kitchen and dining room and recreation room and will house a maximum of 20 residents.

Officials said the objectives of the facility's staff are to train the developmentally disabled for independent living and forestall their institutionalization. It will be operated with individual purchase-of-care grants from the Illinois Dept. of Mental Health and the resident's Social Security or supplemental security income.

Five or six full-time professionals will provide supervision, training and 24-hour coverage, officials said. The residents will be expected to work in sheltered workshops or in community-based jobs if feasible.

Northwest Suburban Aid for the Retarded is a nonprofit agency operating two workshops for the disabled in Park Ridge and Wheeling. It is supported in part by the United Fund of Park Ridge, Des Plaines and Mount Prospect and a yearly grant from the Illinois Dept. of Mental Health.

NSAR has served the retarded of Northwest Chicago and suburbs since 1953. For further information, call 825-6464 from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays.

Real estate licensing class offered in area

Palatine area residents interested in qualifying for the Illinois real estate salesman exam will be able to enroll in the required basic real estate transactions course offered locally at Howard Johnson's on Northwest Highway and Ill. Rte. 53 in Palatine.

Co-sponsored by the Illinois Assn. of Realtors and Real Estate Education Co., the class begins May 3 and will meet from 8:30 to 10:30 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays for eight weeks.

D'Ann McClain, director of training for firm, said "A recent survey has shown that of the students successfully completing our course, over 92 per cent have passed the state licensing exam on the first try."

The course fulfills the state requirement for a 30-hour course in basic real estate transactions for eligibility to take the Illinois real estate salesman's exam. The course is approved by both the Dept. of Registration and Education and the Illinois Office of Education.

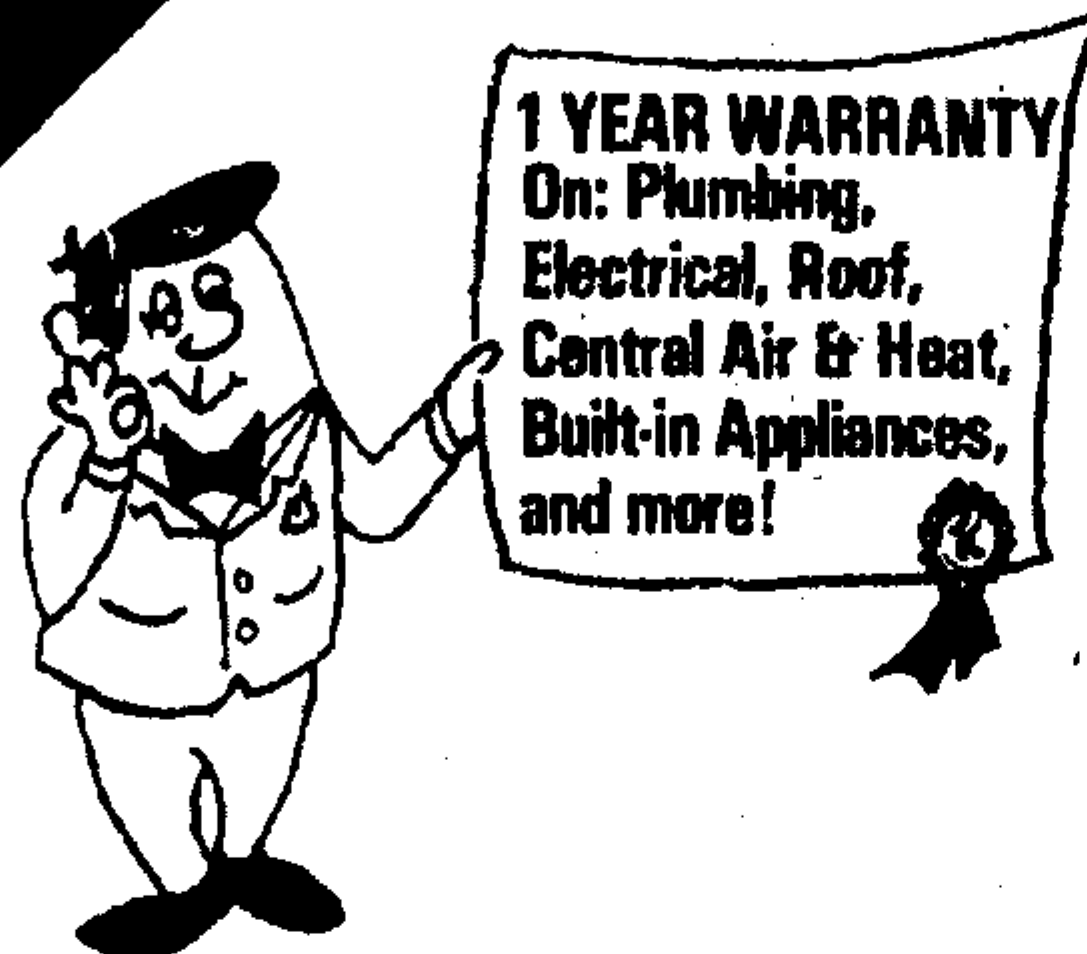

For those unable to attend scheduled classes, the company also offers a home study program.

For more information, call Real Estate Education Co. at 972-8303. Pre-registration is required for the classroom course.

We're better off today than in 'The good ol' days'

I'm sure you've heard the oft-repeated cry, "Nothing is like it used to be." However, when you examine this statement it turns out not to be accurate, even when applied to the way houses "used to be built."

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I'm 68 years old, and it grieves me when I look back and remember the way houses used to be built. Today they are put together with "spit." And look what they cost!

Isn't it depressing to think that we pay through the nose for a house that is not sturdy or well built, when years tillfully built, substantial house? Nostalgic.

That old, much-repeated maxim is not necessarily true. Down through the ages people have been complaining that "things are not what they used to be." But saying that doesn't make it true.

Houses built today are more comfortable, more weather-tight, they settle less, etc. There are standards and regulations today which will not allow many faulty building practices that existed way back when.

I am not suggesting that houses built today are perfect, but they are certainly better than they were in the old days.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I am all agog, since I plan to be married in a couple of months. Though I am not a dew-eyed teen-ager, I am still very romantic at 38. My husband-to-be is 46, and he has never been married. Isn't that fantastic?

Well, to get to the problem. He has been living in his lovely home for about 10 years, and owns it free and clear. We plan to live there together. My fiancé told me he planned to give me the house as a wedding gift, which I thought was a lovely thing to do.

However, after conferring with his lawyer, he says he has been advised not to make me the present of the house until after we are married. Then the deed will be made out to me in my married name.

I am very hurt that my fiancé does not trust me enough to give the house to me now. After all, he knows I love him very much, and it makes me feel that he is suspicious of me.

Do you think I should break the engagement? — Uncertain and Sad.

No, I don't think you should break the engagement. I think your fiancé is taking the advice of his lawyer. If you think about it, I'm sure you will be able to understand why the attorney would make such a suggestion. After all, we all know that there are some unscrupulous people in this world. His lawyer is merely looking out for his interests.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My wife is one of those meticulous housekeepers — the kind that can drive a husband nuts!

She is a crazy-clean lady. The stall shower in our master bedroom has mildew forming on it all the time. Though she scrubs a lot, the mildew persists.

Can you suggest a way to get rid of this thing that drives my wife up the wall — and as a result, drives me up the wall? — Beleaguered husband.

Try opening the window after showers to allow the steamy air out. The fact that the stall shower doesn't dry is what allows the mildew to form.

Also, if you use a cleaner which contains bleach, it should help. Bleach tends to kill the mildew spores.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Our house is great! It's the neighbors who are a pain in the neck. Our kitchen window faces the kitchen window of the house next door. Someone from over there is always peering in at us. I feel as though I am in a goldfish bowl.

Is there anything I can do to "frost" my kitchen window? I want to have enough light, but also want to discourage those prying eyes that drive me batty. — Need some privacy.

There is an aerosol product which can be purchased in a hardware store. When sprayed on, it gives a frosted appearance to the glass. You may also find this in a paint store.

And speaking of goldfish bowls, there are products available for frosting aquariums which work quite well on windows. Check pet stores for these.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Our mortgage lender is really something! We are charged interest on every dollar we borrowed. In spite of that, we get no interest on the money they get from us each month for real estate taxes and insurance.

Though they do pay the bills at year end, they have the use of our money for the entire year without any inter-

On real estate

When you signed your mortgage, you agreed to make the monthly payment, including interest on the mortgage, principal, taxes and insurance.

Though there are some mortgages in which the owner is permitted to pay his own taxes and insurance (thus having the use of his money throughout the year), yours is not that type.

Once the contract is signed, it is too late to begin asking questions.

Cities put faith (and cash) into malls

by DAVID L. LANGFORD
United Press International

Mayor W. Donald Schaefer rubbed the toe of his shoe on a large Oriental rug underneath three massive chandeliers in the refurbished Ceremonial Room of Baltimore's 101-year-old city hall.

"You're sitting on a $25,000 rug," he bragged to his visitor. "Not one person criticized that rug when we remodeled this room."

"There's a new attitude in Baltimore. There's pride."

"BALTIMORIANS used to be always apologizing for being Baltimoreans. We don't do that anymore."

Schaefer's rug is a symbol of that renewed civic pride manifested in an ambitious and expensive program to spruce up the old Maryland city and lure people back downtown.

Baltimore, like many other cities, is revitalizing scruffy inner city areas with pleasant pedestrian malls, where shoppers stroll among greenery, fountains and attractive facades beyond the threat of growling, smelly buses and cars.

That $25,000 rug is a trifle when the Greater Baltimore Committee, an organization of business executives, unfolds its plans for the $210 million Lexington Square Mall, a shoppers promenade, and a $25 million downtown people mover, a 1.6-mile elevated railway much like the monorails at Disney World.

PEDESTRIAN malls of varying size and cost have been built in such cities as Fresno, Calif.; Minneapolis; Trenton, N.J.; Philadelphia; Raleigh, N.C.; Memphis, Tenn.; Honolulu; New London, Conn., and Lake Wales, Fla. to name a few.

Even troubled New York City, if it can get its hands on enough federal money, has plans to convert a seedy section of Times Square into a pedestrian mall.

Some urban planners, in fact, foresee the day when no private automobiles will be allowed on the entire island of Manhattan and delivery trucks would be permitted only at night.

Have such pedestrian malls helped the downtown merchants reclaim business which was siphoned off by the suburban shopping centers?

In many cities the answer is yes. In others the jury is still out.

FOR MORE than a year Fayetteville Street in Raleigh, N.C., has been torn up in the four blocks stretching from the state capitol to the old Sir Walter Hotel and a new $18 million civic center is under construction.

Merchants grumble that it's interrupting business while workmen lay 14 different kinds of paving stones, transplant shrubbery and install benches and fountains.

It will be a common park for stores large and small, the big Hudson Belk Dept. Store and Brigg's Hardware Store, which has been there since the Reconstruction following the Civil War.

"We get some complaints," said Graham Beachum, a retired Air Force colonel who is assistant director of the city's public works department and coordinator of the mall project.

"I'VE EVEN HAD some people complain that we're just putting in benches for the black people to sit on."

With so many state offices in the downtown area, Raleigh also has a serious parking problem. There are only 7,000 parking places for 14,000 workers.

While the $1.8 million mall, scheduled to be finished in June, is being financed with equal shares of city, county and state money, Raleigh did get a $60,000 federal grant to buy some statues. That has given Beachum another headache.

"What kind of statues do you buy," he asks. "I'm afraid people will complain if we go in for this modern stuff."

DESPITE SOME complaints, Beachum and others felt that something had to be done to pump life back into downtown Raleigh. With the opening of the big Cameron Village shopping center in the 1950s, it was one of the first Southern cities to suffer from the exodus to the suburbs. Then came other suburban shopping centers such as North Hills and Crabtree Valley.

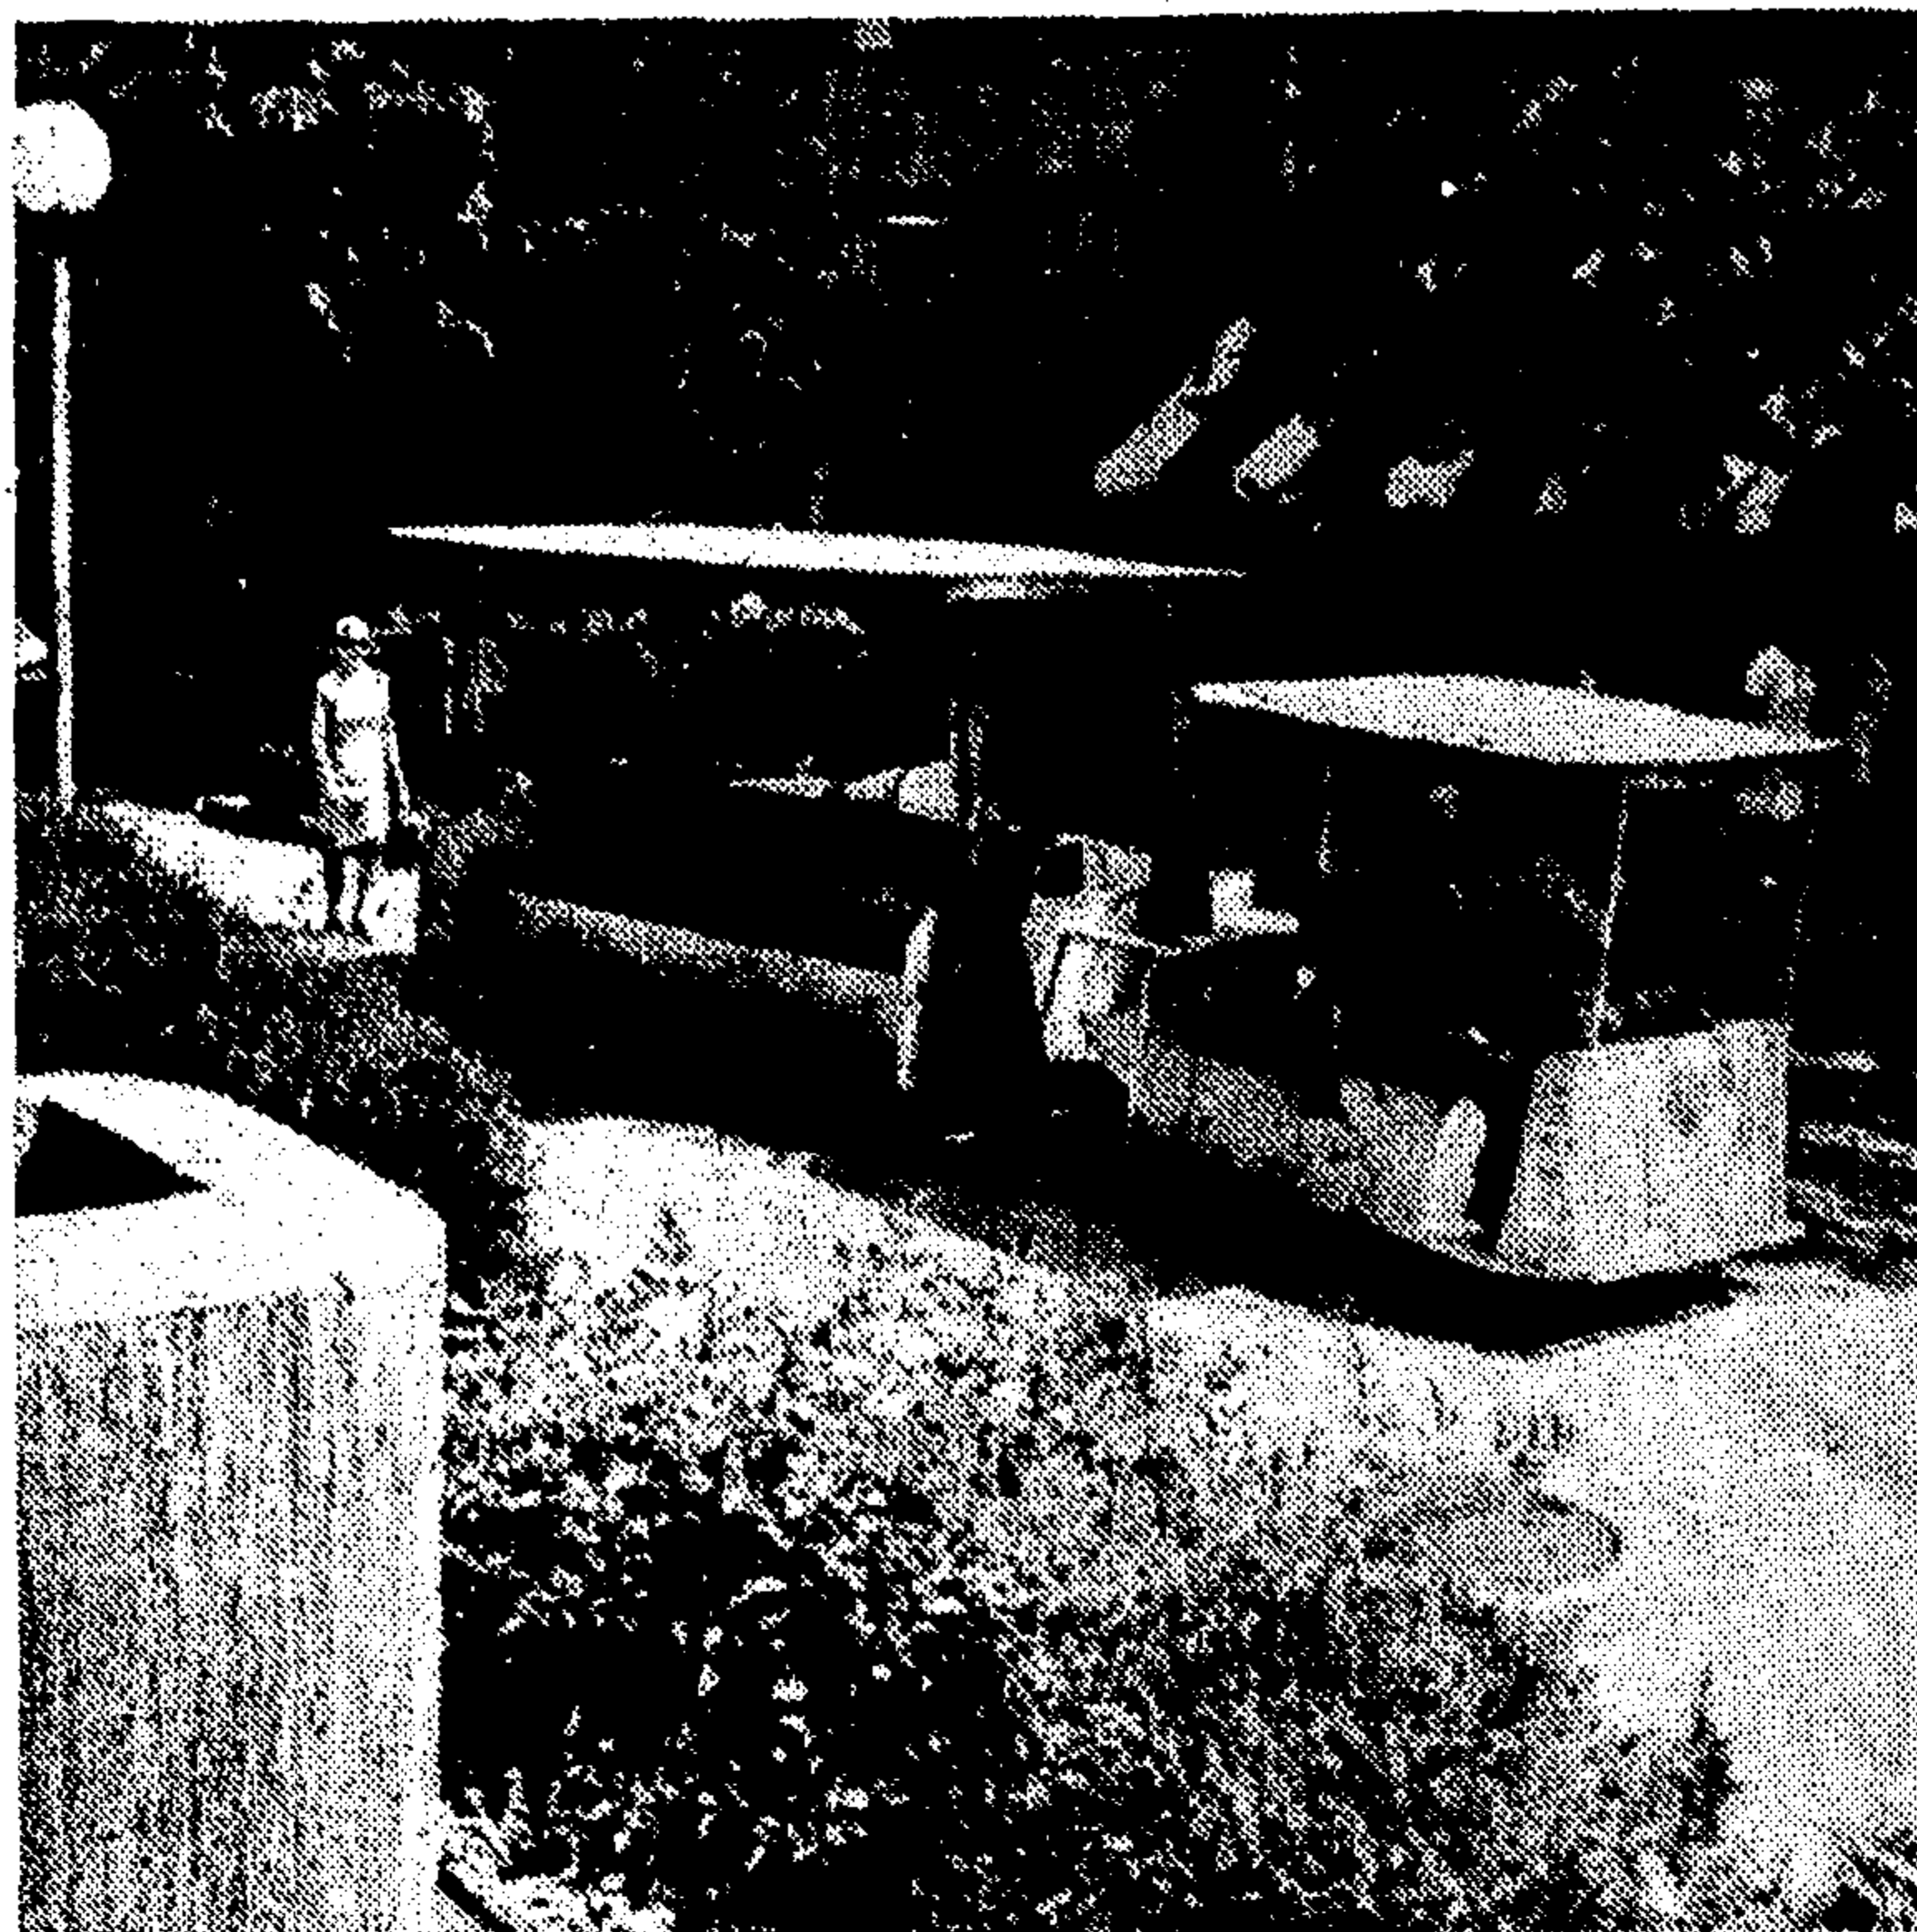

Downtown Raleigh dried up. While Belks and a few other smaller businesses "hung in there," as Beachum put it, no new businesses came in. Eventually there were 20 to 30 buildings standing vacant.

"Downtown was old anyway," he said. "And the tax rate was high. But we had a lot of absentee owners who had enough money that the taxes didn't bother them. They would write off their tax losses and let the building stand empty. Even when we started enforcing the building code, some of them would just make the repairs and still let it stand empty."

While it remains to be seen whether the Fayetteville Street Mall will put new tenants in those Raleigh buildings, the first city in the nation to construct a downtown pedestrian mall has seen mixed results.

FRESNO, CALIF., a town of 171,000 opened its six-block downtown mall on Fulton Street in September 1964, the first built under the federal urban renewal program.

It is lush, with fountains, ponds and rivulets throughout. Trellises and trees shade sitting areas and playgrounds. A slow-speed tramway runs the length of the mall.

'Strolling' down the mall in Fresno, Calif.

A year after the opening city officials declared the project a huge success, citing increases in retail sales up to 40 per cent.

That good fortune continued for 10 years, until several large stores, including Wards and Sears, moved to outlying shopping centers. Some of the businesses moved to the huge Fashion Fair Mall on the city's North Side, with its large Penney's store.

THE CITY, in cooperation with the Downtown Assn., fought back in 1975 with the opening of free parking lots in the area surrounding the Fulton Street Mall. That helped some. By the third quarter of 1976 downtown merchants were reporting retail sales up by 5.1 per cent.

In 1976 several new stores opened in the mall, with only one moving out. On the whole, officials are optimistic the renewed upswing will continue.

Gruen Associates, a Los Angeles architectural firm which did much of the design work for the Fresno mall as well as the newer and smaller Financial Plaza of the Pacific in Honolulu, says, "The completed mall has lived up to most expectations of success."

Gruen's top planner is Edgardo Contini, one of the nation's foremost advocates of malls as the beginning point for attacking urban blight.

AS EARLY AS 1969 Contini was predicting that Manhattan would restrict private transportation and parking to the periphery of the island, with delivery trucks permitted only at night. Then it would be feasible, he said, to set aside Fifth Avenue, Wall Street and entire residential neighborhoods as "Pedestrian precincts."

If Fresno suffered some setbacks, another pioneer mall is hailed as an unqualified success.

The downtown business community in Minneapolis built and paid for the eight-block Nicollet Mall which opened in 1967 at a cost of $3.8 million.

It features glass-covered bridges and overhead pedestrian "streets" which run through stores and other buildings for cold-weather shopping.

"THE MALL HAS created a great deal of interest in downtown Minneapolis and has greatly exceeded the expectations of the business community," said Tom Duffee, assistant director of the Downtown Council. "From all the reports we can gather, stores are running good sales increases."

Some tips on shopping for a home

There is a right and a wrong way to go about buying a new home, according to Kenneth Struck, president of U.S. Home/Illinois Communities Corp. Struck believes every new home buyer should first determine what he is looking for in a community, a subdivision, and a style of home.

"He should force himself to first sit down and draw up on paper a list of preferences," Struck said. "Only when he has a list in hand is he ready to do his shopping, and the first place he should look is in the newspapers. Reading builder ads will help narrow his possible choices to a manageable few. Then, he can go out visiting model homes," he said.

This procedure for looking for a new home will save the buyer a great deal of time and many miles of driving, Struck said.

To assist new home buyers through the preliminary steps in buying a home, U.S. Home has prepared a brochure, "How to Buy a Home," listing 34 key points and suggesting several dozen questions about them. "The brochure was designed to help buyers determine where they want to live, which builder to buy from, and what type of home to buy," Struck said. "It is offered without charge at our sales offices and by mail from our headquarters at 3895 Greenbay Dr., Hanover Park, 60103," he said.

Asking the right questions is vital in buying a home, Struck said. The answers will either confirm that the buyer is making the right choice or may sway him from buying in one community or from one builder.

"As an example, a buyer should determine whether the home he is looking at is insured under the Home Owners Warranty program established by the National Assn. of Home Builders," Struck said. "It isn't enough to have a builder say, 'Sure, we fix up anything that isn't just right,'" he said. A HOW insured home is covered for 10 years against structural defects which can affect the safety or value of the home.

Other questions to be asked concern various aspects of the community in which the new home is built, the builder himself, the particular home's exterior and interior, its electrical, plumbing and heating systems, and its foundation.

"We've covered all of these topics in our brochure," Struck said. "We know we haven't listed every question to be asked, but we believe that the brochure is a good thought-starter which will stimulate buyer thinking and help him develop his own list of questions."

"Buying a new home is a personal thing," Struck said. "A home may save an ego or enable a particular lifestyle. Its location may serve as a convenient center for diverse family interests or requirements. Or, it may be a starting point for investment, which will lead one day to a more substantial home with personally desired amenities," Struck said.

"Whatever it may be to a particular buyer, his decision for buying must be based on a thorough effort in shopping and selection," he said.

Vending service in commerce center

Prestige Services Inc., a vending service company, became the first occupant to sign a lease for space in the new Des Plaines Commerce Center.

The center, designed for light industrial use, is at 1245 Forest Ave., Des Plaines. Wm. L. Kunkel & Co. is the leasing agent.

Rising demand for luxury homes

by United Press International
The biggest surprise in the Midwest housing market is the demand for luxury homes, those costing more than $100,000, according to a mortgage insurer.

Jackson W. Goss, president of Investors Mortgage Insurance Co., Boston, said home-buying habits have changed.

"They used to look for shelter, a roof over their heads. Today the luxury home buyer views his purchase as an investment, a source of nothing but continued appreciation and long-term gains. It is the best possible dollar investment today."

Goss said most of the nine-state region of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, the Dakotas and Wisconsin is undergoing a record-setting pace in luxury home demand.

Primary markets for the costly dwellings usually are the outskirt areas of principal cities such as Chicago and Peoria in Illinois; Indianapolis; Des Moines and Davenport, Iowa; south of Ann Arbor, Mich.; outlying areas of Minneapolis-St. Paul; a 50-mile radius around Omaha, and in areas outside of Madison, Wis.

Banks expand loans for home repairs

The nation's banks — which supply more than half of all home improvement loans — are forecasting an increased availability of consumer credit.

A national banking survey, released recently by the American Bankers Assn., reports that 95 per cent of the responding banks plan to expand consumer loans for home improvements. The same question in a survey last year, found that 85 per cent were expanding this type of credit.

There is currently more than $8.8 billion outstanding in consumer installment home improvement loans, of which about $5.4 billion has been supplied by banks.

The typical home improvement loan, says the ABA's installment lending division, is for about $3,000, requires no collateral, carries a 10 to 14 per cent annual interest rate and has a payback period of from five to seven years.

The 150 banks surveyed are members of the division's advisory board and represent a demographic sampling of the nation's 14,700 banks.

Cities putting faith (cash) into pedestrian malls

construction on a new four-block extension will begin this summer.

"For instance, before the mall was built the Woolworth store on Nicollet was struggling. Now it is one of Woolworth's top stores in the U.S. in sales," Duffee said.

Duffee said the mall also was "one of the key elements that prompted Investors Diversified Services to build their world headquarters here." The 57-story IDS Building is on the mall.

THE PICTURE is less bright in Trenton, N.J., which built a $1.6 million mall on East State Street in 1973 with city, state and federal money.

The New Jersey capital, like many other cities, has inadequate parking downtown where 27,000 persons work in governmental and commercial offices. It also has a crime problem which keeps shoppers away at night. Only a few stores remain open late.

The two-block mall, called Trenton Commons, also competes with two enclosed shopping malls with big-name New York and Philadelphia department stores just 10 minutes away.

Thus Trenton Commons so far has not done much to help the declining heart of town. There were 10 vacant stores in the area when the mall opened four years ago. Today there are more.

"THE MALL ITSELF" probably has not attracted more shoppers," said James Ort, executive director of the Trenton Commons Commission, a city agency. "But Trenton Commons has made the shopping area more appealing and more attractive to the people we already have. We have more or less solidified our base."

Ort is confident that with the city building 500 new parking places — offering two hours of free time — and with the coming of some new state office buildings, there will be an eventual upturn in the Trenton Commons market.

"We're looking for a bright future down here," he said.

Billed as the longest pedestrian promenade in the country is the new $6.7 million Mid-America Mall in Memphis, Tenn., 10 blocks of brick walkway, geometric block seating, skylit kiosks, and a dozen varieties of potted trees, just a breeze away from the Mississippi River.

GERALD R. FORD traveled to Tennessee in the final days of his presidency to dedicate the President's Fountain, a block-long fountain spraying water in profusion in the heart of the 12-acre mall.

At the entrance to the mall, which is being financed by adjoining property through a special taxing district, is the Civic Center Plaza, a publicly funded building with a broad courtyard and another huge fountain.

Now the city has earmarked another $23.2 million for construction of a park on Mud Island in the river, with a Mississippi River Museum, an amphitheater, gardens and restaurants.

The Mud Island Park will be connected to the city by a pedestrian bridge and a 200-passenger monorail.

DOWNTOWN MEMPHIS had been in decay.

"To a degree, it had been blighted and was in a period of decline," said Norman Brewer, manager of the Downtown Council. "It was old, noisy and dirty, with too many buses running up and down, too many automobiles."

During the next 15 years the tab for various civic developments in the old river town is expected to be as much as $400 million. Two-thirds of that will come from private financing with a little federal help.

"The downtown renewal also is beginning to spark interest in the construction of new, first-class housing," Brewer said.

Brewer said suburban building and transportation costs are forcing greater numbers of people back into the cities.

"People are generally coming back to the central city to live," he said. "And that's a trend that is going to accelerate."

BACK IN Baltimore, they kid Mayor Schaefer about his "fish tank," a $15 million aquarium the city is financing, half from the sale to the state of the old Friendship Airport.

But the mayor, 22 years in Baltimore city government, sees his fish tank as a showplace in the inner harbor where derelict wharves and warehouses have been razed to make way for public parks.

The newly restored frigate "Constellation" is tied up at a pier for visitors to look at.

"That inner harbor now belongs to the people," Schaefer said. "It's beautiful. White perch are coming in now and you can sit there and catch fish."

THE MAYOR also bragged about the Morris Mechanic Theatre in Charles Center, the development completed in 1967 in the heart of the city with its elevated walkways linking glass-front office buildings with new store buildings.

"People stood in line for six hours when Chorus Line came to town," he said.

J. Joseph Clarke, associate executive director of the Greater Baltimore Committee, said a new subway system being built from the Charles Center to the Northwest corner of the city eventually would be joined by a commuter train system operating on track which fell into disuse.

Clarke is still looking for federal financing for his pet project, the people mover. He said monorail cars carrying 12 to 28 passengers would arrive at one of nine stations every one to two minutes and make the 1.6-mile run through the heart of town in nine minutes.

BUT MAINLY, he wants to get the Lexington Square project off the ground.

Whose fault is 21-3 loss?

by ART MUGALIAN

They'll blame Mike Krukow for what happened to the Cubs at Wrigley Field Wednesday. They have to give the loss to somebody.

Krukow, the 25-year old Cub rookie righthander, wasn't responsible for giving the St. Louis Cardinals all 21 runs. He was just responsible for giving them the idea.

And when the final score is 21-3, responsibility is simply begging to be delegated.

BUT CUBS' MANAGER Herman Franks gave his young pitcher another vote of confidence in the wake of the worst pasting the team has absorbed since 1975 when the Pirates made history with a 22-0 shutout.

"Two little ground balls, that's all," moaned Franks. "That's what got him in all that trouble. Who knows what he would have done. The kid just got off to a bad start, that's all."

Krukow was making his fourth start but again failed to last more than a couple of innings. This time he faced only four Cardinal batters and all of them scored in the four-run first.

may be closer to Wichita than he is to his first major league victory.

But, as his manager pointed out, Krukow wasn't hit hard, though his relievers were. A bleeder by Lou Brock and a bunt pop just over Krukow's head by Garry Templeton preceded a pair of walks — and Franks had seen enough of Krukow for one day.

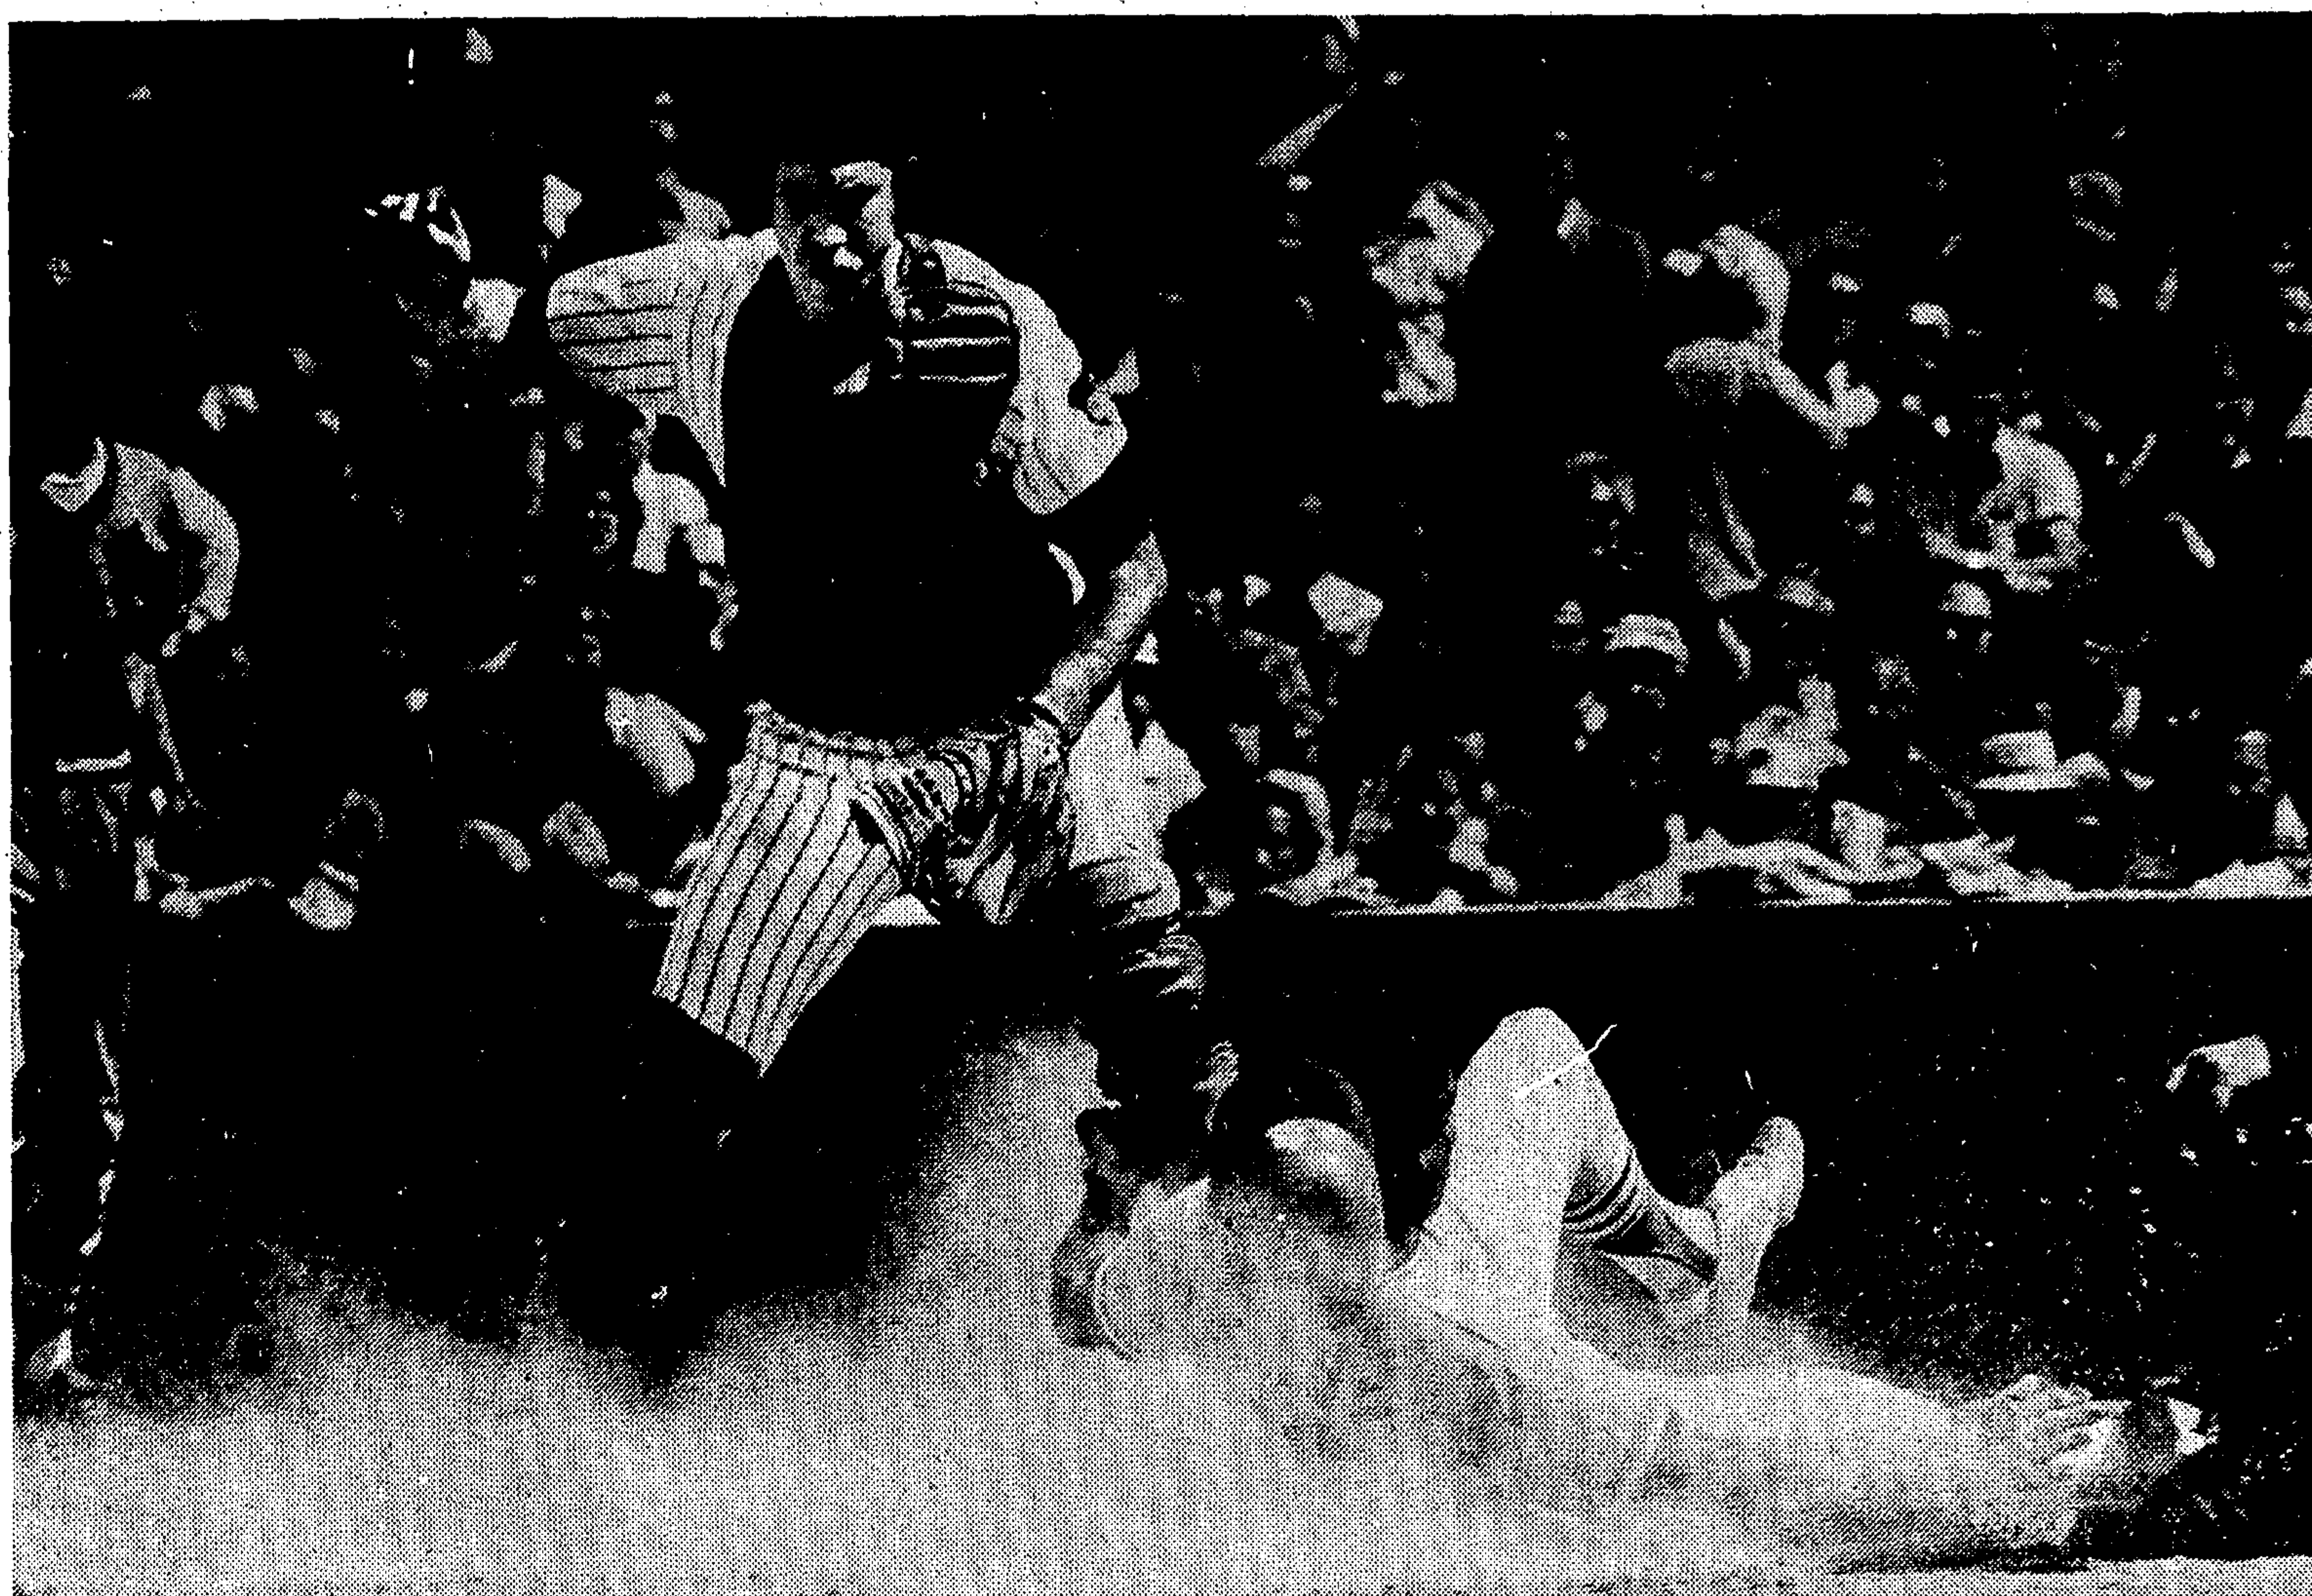

He immediately went to his bullpen — again and again and again. The Cubs eventually used six pitchers and only one — Paul Reuschel — escaped without yielding a run.

"I've never seen that many runs on the scoreboard," quipped Franks, who never saw the Bears play.

THE ST. LOUIS explosion included 19 hits — a homer by benchwarmer Mike Anderson in the eighth inning plus six doubles. Hector "Heity" Cruz and Ted Simmons led the assault with four RBIs apiece. Simmons continued his recent hot streak during which he has pounded out 15 hits in 31 at-bats over the last nine games. He's hitting .419 with 18 RBIs.

The victory pushed the Cards'

ANOTHER BAD DAY for Cub rookie pitcher Mike Krukow (left) who heads off the mound at the insistence of manager Herman Franks (3) in the first inning Wednesday. Krukow, 0-2, took the loss which several Cub relievers turned into a 21-3 nightmare. Catcher is George Mitterwald.

Sox erupt for 5 homers, but Tigers survive, 10-9

DETROIT — Jason Thompson's grand slam homer and Steve Kemp's two-run single proved to be the big hits Wednesday as the Detroit Tigers outslug the White Sox 10-9 despite a five-homer assault by the losers.

In other American League games Wednesday night, New York beat Baltimore, 4-3, Milwaukee shaded Boston, 4-2, Toronto nipped Cleveland, 6-5, Minnesota topped Seattle, 5-3 and Texas blanked Kansas City, 5-0.

Thompson connected in the third inning when the Tigers scored seven times to go in front 8-3. But the White Sox came back on home runs by Royle Stillman, Eric Soderholm and Chet Lemon to tie the game at 8-8 in the sixth.

EARLIER, RICHIE Zisk had socked his seventh homer for Chicago and Milt May his first for Detroit in the free-swinging affair.

The Tigers finally went ahead to stay off loser Bruce Del Canto (0-1) in the sixth. Singles by Rusty Staub and May and a walk to Thompson loaded the bases before Kemp lined a two-run single to right.

In the eighth, pinch-hitter Oscar Gamble homered to bring the White Sox within a run of a tie. It marked the first time since June, 1972 that

AL baseball

Chicago had hit five homers in a game.

Fernando Arroyo, the fourth Tiger pitcher, picked up his first victory after two defeats. He gave up one hit and no runs after taking over in the sixth inning.

REGGIE JACKSON'S second sacrifice fly of the game drove in Willie Randolph with the winning run in the ninth inning to give the Yankees a 4-3 victory.

Prior to that, Randolph, who coaxed the first of three Yankee walks in the first inning off Oriole starter Scott McGregor, dashed to third on a Thurman Munson single and gave New York a 1-0 lead on Jackson's sacrifice fly.

Oriole third baseman Doug DeCinces tied the game 1-1 in the second with a 450-foot solo homer, his fourth of the year. Rookie Eddie Murray doubled in the Baltimore fifth inning and scored on a Rick Dempsey double play ball after Larry Harlow singled.

A walk and a Billy Smith single in the sixth brought on Lyle, who gave up a run-scoring single to Lee May after getting Ken Singleton to bounce into a double play.

ROBIN YOUNT'S eighth-inning single scored pinch runner Tim Johnson to break a 2-2 tie and lift the Brewers to a 4-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Bob Bailor opened the game with a solo homer over the left field fence and ended it with a single in the 12th inning to give the Toronto Blue Jays a 6-5 victory over Cleveland and extend the Indians' losing streak to seven games.

Butch Wynegar's bases-loaded single capped a three-run seventh inning that gave the Minnesota Twins a 5-3 win over the Seattle Mariners.

Bert Blyleven, after hurling his sixth career shutout against Kansas City, admitted he deliberately hit Royals' catcher Darrell Porter with a pitch in the ninth inning.

BLYLEVEN SAID his action stemmed from an incident in the top of the inning when Kansas City pitcher Marty Pattin sailed a pitch over the head of Texas outfielder Juan Beniquez.

Beniquez earlier in the game hit a three-run homer to help the Rangers post a 5-0 victory.

Heavy MSL traffic at home plate

Knights, Bison post diamond wins

The Mid-Suburban League's two circuit leaders — Prospect and Buffalo Grove — took alternate routes to the same destination Wednesday.

Both were winners at home. While the once beaten Knights only squeaked by Conant, however, the undefeated Bison were thundering past Arlington.

And BG wasn't the only team to go on a tear Wednesday. A total of 90 runs crossed the plate in six MSL encounters while Fred Van Ilen and his Bison and Larry Pohlman and his Knights were keeping atop their respective divisional races.

POHLMAN'S BUNCH registered their fifth win in six loop contests by nipping Conant 3-2. Scott Springs delivered the key blow, dropping a solo homer just beyond the fence in left field to break up a 2-2 stalemate in the sixth frame.

Prospect had pounced on Cougar starter Jim Patino for a pair of first inning runs on singles by Dave Wille, Mike Jennings and Doug Clark. Conant countered on Scott Schafer's long bases empty home run in the fourth and knotted the game an inning later when Al Barnhill doubled and raced home on an error.

Tom Peterson went the route for the winners, fanning 10 and allowing just four hits and one walk.

BUFFALO GROVE pounced on Arlington starter Scott Holfeld for four runs before a batter was retired and Tim Prokof limited the Cardinals to just three hits as the Bison romped, 8-1.

The Grove greeted Holfeld with a walk and successive singles by Al Cymbal, Mike Marshall, Prokof and Phil Czosnyka. Bill Breister was summoned in relief and hit a batter before knocking down the side.

Prokof, a lefty, was never in serious danger despite yielding singles to Cards Gary Kempton and Doug Harth and a double by Scott Kempton in the seventh that blossomed into Arlington's lone run.

Dave Martin capped Buffalo Grove's 11-hit assist with a disputed home run in the sixth.

AFTER FALLING behind 4-0 in the first inning, Rolling Meadows charged

Mid-Suburban baseball report past Schaumburg for a 13-5 victory. The Mustangs sent nine batters to the plate in both the second and third innings to score 11 runs and settle the issue.

Rolling Meadows' catcher Bill Collis delivered the key blows, smacking a grand slam home run and a bases-loaded triple to drive in a total of seven runs.

Teammate Bill Bilsley also clubbed a home run, one of his three hits. Mustangs Bill Hopkins and Dennis Drolet also helped at the plate.

Paul Contine collected the win for Meadows in his first start of the season.

Leading Schaumburg at the plate were Rick Baker and Dan Taylor with two hits apiece.

A WIND-BLOWN three-run triple by Bill Luzinski helped carry Wheeling past Hersey, 7-4.

Luzinski smacked the bases loaded three-bagger in the fifth while the Huskies were nurturing a 4-3 lead. Jim Passolt and Rick Heredia singled and Bill Knuth was hit by a pitch to set the stage for the midjudged fly.

Gerry Schram went the distance on the hill for the Cats to earn the win. He was also aided by Ray Rusek's two-run double in the fourth and an unearned run in the second after Marty Geisler had walked and Luzinski singled.

Dan Vucovich, the first of three Hersey hurlers absorbed the loss. Joe Pusateri sparked the losers with three hits including a double.

HOFFMAN ESTATES almost gave one away in the seventh inning but held on to post a 13-10 win over visiting Elk Grove.

Hoffman starter Keith Bagley needed seventh inning relief help from Jay Langford to post the triumph.

Elk Grove tried a succession of pitchers but starter Tim Minnaugh was saddled with the defeat.

The Hawks overcame a 3-1 Elk Grove lead in the fourth inning with a seven-run outburst, highlighted by five hits.

The Hawks apparently put the contest away in the sixth inning when Jeff Mills singled and scored on John Whelan's triple. Whelan then scored on a double steal.

Elk Grove, down 13-6 going into the top of the seventh, made things tense for the Hawks with four runs. Kevin McCloughan, who had two doubles and a single, was the Greys' big bat.

PALATINE OUTSLUGGED visiting Forest View 15-9 in a contest that featured seven home runs. The Falcons got circuit blows from Jeff Nelson, Chris Hanson and Ron Laramie (two) while the Pirates countered with Dan McSweeney's three-run shot to kick off their 16-hit attack in the first frame.

Later Mike Mikulan and Mike Daniels hit back-to-back round trippers for the hosts. For Daniels it topped off a perfect four-for-four afternoon.

John Comerford emerged as the winning pitcher.

1977 schedule brings 'hope' to Bears' fans

It looks easy but looks can deceive.

The Bears' 1977 schedule, released Wednesday by the National Football League, has more "hope" in it than the murderous 1976 arrangement. Fans are happy.

Some so-called "breathers" actually appear in 1977 — if there is such a thing as a soft spot on any NFL schedule. Remember when the Bears were a soft spot?

The Bears open their regular season with Detroit on Sept. 18 in Soldier Field and close at New York on Dec. 18.

Holy Cross sinks Lion hopes, 6-2

The St. Viator Lions saw their hopes of a conference title just about slip away as they dropped a 6-2 decision to visiting Holy Cross Wednesday.

The Crusaders batted around in the fourth inning and chased Lion starter Tom Brady with four runs to take a 6-2 lead. Brady was charged with all six Crusader runs.

Don Shubeck came in in relief of Brady and held Holy Cross scoreless over the last 3-1/3 innings, giving up only one hit, but the Lions couldn't come up with any offense.

THE LIONS' only offensive outburst came in the very first inning when the first two men up singled and eventually scored. Nick Baffo and Rick Sanders both stroked singles to right and scored on John Josten's two-RBI single to left.

But Josten was thrown out trying to go to second on the throw in and the rally died when Mike Cusack grounded out to end the inning.

"Today's performance pretty much sums up our problems all season," said Lions coach Pat Mahoney, who saw his team drop to 3-4 in the East Suburban Catholic Conference, 4-8 overall. Pitching and defensive lapses helped the Crusaders to all their runs. Lion pitchers walked a total of eight men and two errors by Shortstop Rick Sanders in the fourth inning helped keep the Crusader rally alive.

Viator is now three games behind first place Marist, which has only lost once in loop play, with six league games left to go.

RIGHTHANDER Bob Marlovits, who no hit the Lions earlier this season, got the win in a distance performance, striking out four while walking only one. Marlovits scattered eight hits.

Reds, Pirates in series sweeps

From Herald Wire Services
Ken Griffey doubled in one run and scored another to back up Pat Zachry's five-hit pitching Wednesday night and give the Cincinnati Reds a 3-1 victory over Atlanta, completing a three-game sweep of the Braves.

Pittsburgh did likewise to Philadelphia as Dave Parker doubled home two runs in a four-run eighth inning while Bruce Kison scattered six hits over eight innings to spark the Pirates to a 7-3 triumph and a two-game sweep of the Phils. Elsewhere in the National League, Montreal beat the New York Mets, 3-2, Los Angeles played at San Diego and Houston at San Francisco.

As for the Reds, after Pete Rose opened the game with a walk, Griffey doubled to score Rose, then scored himself one out later on Dan Driessen's single. The Reds added their final run in the fourth when Driessen singled, stole second and scored on

NL baseball

Johnny Bench's single.

Atlanta scored its only run in the second when Jeff Burroughs singled, moved to third on Biff Pocoroba's double into the right-field corner and scored on Rod Gilbreath's sacrifice fly.

PIRATE KISON allowed two hits in the first inning then yielded just two other singles and a walk until the ninth when he was relieved by Kent Tekulve after yielding a home run to Dave Johnson and a single to Mike Schmidt. Kison struck out four and retired 12 straight batters during one stretch.

The eighth inning Pirates rally came off reliever Jim Kaat. Phil Garner led off the inning with a double and scored when Frank Taveras singled. Taveras took second on the throw home, stole third, then scored on Omar Moreno's third single after Kison had walked. One out later, Parker doubled to score Kison and Moreno.

ELLIS VALENTINE's two-run homer capped a three-run third inning and powered the Expos to a 3-2 victory behind Steve Rogers' six-hitter.

Valentine hit his fifth homer of the season with two out off Jerry Koosman after an error by first baseman Dave Kingman let in the Expos' first run and prevented the Mets from getting out of the inning unscathed.

Andre Dawson singled, went all the way to third on Rogers' sacrifice when third base was left uncovered and scored the Expos' first run when Kingman dropped a throw on Pepe Frias' apparent infield out. Valentine then followed with his fifth home run of the year over the 410-foot sign in center field.

Krukow gets 'blame' for 21-3 loss

record to 10-7 and prevented the Cubs from claiming a share of first place in the National League East. The North Siders are 7-7.

Franks, looking forward to a day off before resuming the wars Friday night in Cincinnati, refused to speculate on Krukow's current status as the Cubs' No. 4 hurler.

"I'm not gonna commit myself, I just don't know yet," said the manager. "He might come back again. I just don't know. I've got four or five days to think about it."

KRUKOW HIMSELF appeared to be in a hurry to leave the park after the long, two-and-a-half-hour game, most of which he watched on TV. Now 0-2 with a 15.30 ERA, Krukow waxed philosophic when waylaid by a group of reporters.

"Like Noah told his wife wife, it's gotta stop raining one of these days," Krukow said, sending the scribes scurrying for their Bibles. "Nobody said it would be easy to pitch in the big leagues."

Franks avoided the subject of pitching as much as possible and once again displayed his soon-to-be-famous optimism.

"Fellas, it's not the end of the world," he said. "Tomorrow's another day. We just got the bleep beat out of us today, that's all. That's baseball."

PART OF WHAT Franks calls baseball included five Cub errors that led to seven unearned runs, a passed ball by catcher George Mitterwald, and nine Cub runners left on base.

Of course, nothing the Cubs did Wednesday was going to deprive righthander John Denny of his fifth win, most in the majors. Denny, 5-0, could have pitched a lot worse than a 10-hitter and still gotten credit for the win, especially after the Cardinals scored eight runs in the fifth inning for a 14-1 lead.

The Cards batted around twice and scored more runs than they had scored in any game since at least 1962.

Even Jose Cardenal's first home run of the season couldn't brighten the Cubs' prospects.

FRANKS LOOKED toward the vengeful Reds.

"We'll have to go get 'em Friday," he said. "Everything went wrong today."

Zuccarini leads Maine West, 3-1

Maine West's Bob Zuccarini blasted a pair of triples to help Greg Herdzina beat Niles East, 3-1, in a Central Suburban League baseball game Wednesday.

Zuccarini, the Warriors' leadoff man, opened the game with a triple and scored on Tim Platek's RBI single. Platek, who quit indoor track to play baseball, promptly stole second base and eventually scored on Dean Carpenter's sacrifice foul fly.

It was all the runs Herdzina would need to stop Niles East, although the Trojans managed to cut the lead in half in the bottom of the first with a walk, a stolen base, an error and a single.

HERDZINA FANNED four and allowed seven hits in going the distance as Maine West improved its CSL mark to 4-2. The Warriors are 9-3 over-all.

Zuccarini's second three-base-hit came in the fifth inning following a walk to Wayne Wishniw. Wishniw had just stolen second when he rode home on Zuccarini's smash.

John O'Malley went all the way and took the loss for Niles East.

'Center hangup' continues

Illinois shows recruiting gains

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — If Lou Henson does not fill his fifth basketball scholarship, it is still an outstanding year in terms of lining up the premier talent from the home state for the University of Illinois.

Based on evaluations of men who judge talent for a living, those opinions corroborated for the most part by All-America selectors, Henson's 11th landed three of the four best Illinois seniors available — Eddie Johnson (6-7) of Chicago Westinghouse, Mark Smith (6-6) of Peoria Richwoods and Mike Jones (6-5) of Joliet Central.

Henson's only serious in-state "miss" was Mundelein's Greg Boyle, who chose Iowa, and the UI coach replaced him with 6-2 JC star Reno Gray of Lake Land.

"WE HAVE brought in good, solid players who can help us in many ways, and in particular give us the depth we need to add dimension to our game," says Henson. "We have more quickness now and we will move into a pressure-type, full-court defense and we'll try to break with the basketball every time we get it."

"And we plan to keep the game moving by using more players. This past season we became awfully thin when the injuries hit."

So Henson is encouraged. He is armed with a new 5-year contract and, as opposed to the Grunwald-Kraficisin-Holcomb-Shidler misfortunes of a year ago, has attracted almost exactly the players he wanted from the home state this year. The Illini haven't done that well in protecting home talent from the intrusions of Kansas, Marquette, Indiana, Oregon and the rest in many years.

Still, there is an unmistakable concern among the UI's basketball fan. You can call it the "center hang-up." The Illini have not had a blue-chip center on the court since an unhappy Billy Morris returned to St. Louis, and they're shy at a position where every other school in the Big Ten is set for years to come.

NOT THAT THE Illini are really lacking in the size department. Upcoming senior Rich Adams is 6-9 and

Loren Tate

Johnson is 6-7. The squad is loaded with 6-6 players. But all are natural forwards, and Adams has not found the demands on him to concentrate on rebounding and defense easy to accept.

Looking around, the Illini must face Michigan's sure-fire All-American Phil Hubbard for two more years, not to mention newly acquired 6-10 Mike Robinson (who chose the Wolverines over Illinois). If Minnesota loses 6-10 Mike Thompson to the pro draft, the Gophers still have 6-11 Kevin McHale, who averaged 12 points and 8 rebounds as a freshman, and newly signed Brian Pederson, 6-10 captain of the Minnesota All-State team.

Michigan State has leaping Greg Kelsor (6-7) for two more years plus incoming super-preps Earvin Johnson (6-8) and Jay Vincent (6-7); Purdue's 7-foot rookie Joe Barry Carroll, with great shot-blocking skills, could become the league's most dominant center; Ohio State has added 6-8 James Smith and is still in the running for 6-10 home townner Herb Williams; Bobby Knight has a corps of tall recruits including Hoosierland's Mr. Basketball, 6-9 Ray Tolbert; Iowa has attracted 6-11 Steve Kraficisin back from North Carolina and also got the state's top center, 6-9 Steve Waite, Wisconsin is bringing 6-9 All-American Larry Petty from New York's Power Memorial to team with 6-8 James Gregory; and Northwestern has 6-9 Bob Klaas and 6-10 Mike Campbell for starters.

SO HENSON is clinging to that one scholarship and continuing the search. But he isn't psycho about it.

"A big man would be a big bonus," he says, "but a team with mobility and ballhandling skills can win without a 6-10 guy."

"Offensively you can cause a slower team a lot of trouble. The big difficulty is on defense, and in rebounding which we consider a part of defense. We'll simply have to take advantage of our quickness."

"If we don't land a big man, we'll just have to wait until next year when there will be several good prospects in the state."

"But, for this year, I'm very pleased with the high calibre young men we have added to our program. I'm very pleased. When you get the best players in Illinois, that is a tremendous step in the right direction. We think we can win with the people we now have."

Orr's future clouded after sixth operation

TORONTO (UPI) — Bobby Orr, the most decorated player in NHL history, will be on crutches for at least four months and off skates for at least a year, and his doctors give him only a one-in-ten chance of ever playing hockey again.

The Chicago Black Hawks' 29-year-old superstar defenseman underwent a sixth operation on his left knee last week at Toronto General Hospital. The surgery was performed by Drs. John Palmer and John Kostuk.

"Putting Bobby back on ice as a big league hockey player was not a major part of the decision in this operation, although I'm sure Bobby is hoping for that one-in-ten chance he will be able to play again," Palmer told the Toronto Star.

"THIS WAS a pretty major operation on the knee," said Palmer. "We opened it up quite widely to remove bone chips and loose articular cartilage. Bobby understands that he must not even think about hockey for the coming season."

"He has agreed to one whole year of treatment for that knee. What we want is free movement and muscle development. As I said, Bobby will not be able to bear weight on that knee for the next four months. He will, however, be using a crutch."

Orr participated in only 20 games with the Black Hawks this season, scoring four goals and 19 assists. He had played in only ten games with the Boston Bruins in the 1975-76 campaign before being sidelined by his injured knee.

Orr SIGNED with Chicago as a free agent last June for a reported $3 million, after a ten-year career with the Bruins during which he became the most honored player in the NHL.

He is an eight-time winner of the James Norris Memorial Trophy as the league's top defenseman. He twice won the Art Ross Trophy as the leading scorer and is a three-time winner of the Hart Memorial Trophy as the most valuable player. He was twice awarded the Conn Smythe Trophy as MVP in the playoffs. He won the Calder Memorial Trophy as rookie of the year in 1966-67.

Girls to compete in tennis tourney of national champs

On Monday, May 16, 204 girls from all over the country will arrive at Mission Viejo, Calif., to compete in Seventeen Magazine's Tennis Tournament of Champions.

Among the girls competing will be Susy and Andrea Jaeger of Lincolnshire.

Susy, a freshman at Stevenson High School, won the Illinois state singles championship last fall and also was champion of the 1976 River Forest Invitational, the 1976 Western Closed and the 1976 Louisville Invitational.

ANDREA, 11, is a sixth grader at Daniel Wright Junior High School and is the second-ranked 12-and-under player in the United States.

The Jaeger sisters often team up to raise money for bicycle paths and cancer research through tennis exhibitions.

Also competing in the Seventeen tournament is former Illinois champion Suzie Replogle of River Forest, a freshman at Princeton University.

Located 50 miles south of Los Angeles, Mission Viejo is a 10,000-acre, planned community which, because of its outstanding recreational facilities, has been the site for a number of major sports events, from the Women's Pro Tennis Classic to The Challenge of the Sexes.

Both Suzie Replogle and Susy Jaeger competed in last year's Seventeen tournament. Replogle reached the third round of the 18-and-under competition before being defeated by Roberta McCallum of Pennsylvania.

Jaeger went all the way to the quarterfinals in the 14-and-under competition.

76ers blast Celtics for 3-2 series edge

PHILADELPHIA — Doug Collins scored 23 points and Julius Erving (22) led a first-half surge that sparked the Philadelphia 76ers to a 110-91 victory over the Boston Celtics and a 3-2 advantage in their NBA Eastern Conference semifinal series. The best-of-seven matchup goes back to Boston for Game 6 Friday night.

The 76ers broke open a raggedly played game with a 33-8 tear over a stretch of 8½ minutes in the first half, turning a 20-18 deficit into a 51-28 lead. The spurt began with 12 points in a row in the last 2:29 of the first quarter with Erving, Henry Bibby and Steve Mix hitting four points apiece. Philadelphia continued its hot play in the second quarter, outscoring the Celtics 21-8 in the first 6:14 of the period to take the 23-point lead. Erving had eight points during that rally. At halftime, the 76ers held a 62-44 advantage and the Celtics were never able to get closer than 12 points after that.

Yankees deal Ellis for A's Torre

BALTIMORE — The New York Yankees, in line with their policy of unloading potential free agents, Wednesday traded controversial right-handed pitcher Dock Ellis and shortstop Marty Perez, their last two unsigned players, and minor league outfielder Larry Murray to the Oakland A's for pitcher Mike Torrez.

Ellis, 32, was 17-8 with New York last year, his only season with the team following eight years with Pittsburgh, and had a 3.19 ERA. In recent weeks Ellis had blasted Yankee owner George Steinbrenner for failing to provide the pitcher with what he felt was a "respectable" raise based on his 1976 statistics.

Zikes hits 693 for 6th ABC title

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — Columbia 300 Bowling Balls of San Antonio, Tex., emerged victorious Wednesday in the team competition of the Classic Division of the American Bowling Congress tourney.

The top six teams in the first round of competition met in a roll-off and Columbia 300 pined up 3,122 as Les Zikes took his sixth ABC title by leading the team with a 693. He got support from Johnnie Wilcox (689), Don Johnson (618), Paul Coolwell (588) and Tommy Hudson (563).

Gus's Gutters, Endicott, N.Y., took second with 2,982 and third place went to first-round leader Tournament Bowlers Ledger, Ft. Wayne, Ind., (2891). Other money winners included Goose's Gang, Akron, Ohio (2887), Young Lions, Upland, Calif. (2651) and Basch Advertising, Baldwin, N.Y. (2555).

Ali-Evangelista fight on the rocks

NEW YORK — ABC sports said Wednesday the No. 10 world ranking of Alfredo Evangelista is under investigation, but denied the network is "on the verge" of cancelling its telecast of the May 16 heavyweight title fight between the Spaniard and champion Muhammad Ali.

"We are investigating the ranking," said Jim Spence, vice president of ABC Sports, "and if there is wrongdoing in the ranking that could well end in cancelling the telecast. But so far there is no evidence of wrongdoing." Evangelista is ranked 10th by both the World Boxing Council and World Boxing Association.

"We have had communication with the WBA and WBC and they have said the ranking is legitimate. What we are still studying is the evolution of those rankings — if they were not proper, then that would lead us to make a decision whether to go ahead with the telecast. We expect the investigation to be finished by the end of the week."

Blue Grass is final Derby tuneup

LEXINGTON, Ky. — A field of 11 3-year-olds was entered Wednesday for the $100,000-added Blue Grass Stakes today at Keeneland, the last major prep race for the Kentucky Derby.

Western Wind, recently shipped to Keeneland from New York, drew the No. 1 post position, while Run Dusty Run, expected to be one of the betting favorites with Canadian-owned Giboulee, drew the far outside starting berth.

The entries, from the inside post out, are: Western Wind, Kodlack, Cathy's Reject, For the Moment, Fort Prevel, Get the Axe, Ruthie's Native, John Washington, Giboulee, Bob's Dusty and Run Dusty Run.

Giboulee, who edged Run Dusty Run in a photo finish in last week's Calumet Purse at Keeneland, and Fort Prevel, will run as an entry, as will Run Dusty Run and Bob's Dusty.

Dazzling desserts with gelatine

Easy yet dazzling desserts — for the family, a dinner party or the neighborhood barbecue — can be yours when you effortlessly “cook” with unflavored gelatine. Making unflavored gelatine is as simple as boiling water and desserts can be made a day in advance. Because unflavored gelatine contains no colorings, flavorings or sugar, it allows you to create the flavors and textures you want.

BUTTERSCOTCH SWIRL CHEESECAKE

- *Graham Cracker-Walnut Crust
- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatine
- 2 1/3 cups milk, divided
- 4 eggs, separated
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 2 packages (8 ounces each) cream cheese, softened
- 1 package (6 ounces) butterscotch-flavored pieces
- 1/4 cup sugar

Prepare Graham Cracker-Walnut Crust; chill.

In a medium saucepan, mix unflavored gelatine with 1 cup milk. Beat egg yolks with 1 cup milk and stir into gelatine mixture. Stir over low heat until gelatine is completely dissolved, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat; add vanilla. In a large bowl, beat cream cheese until smooth; gradually beat in gelatine mixture. Chill, stirring occasionally, until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon. In a small saucepan, melt butterscotch pieces with remaining 1/3 cup milk; cool. In a medium bowl, beat egg whites until soft peaks form; gradually add sugar and beat until stiff. Fold in gelatine mixture. Combine butterscotch with 2 cups gelatine mixture and alternate spoonfuls with remaining gelatine mixture in prepared crust. Gently swirl with a knife to marble. Chill until firm, about 4 hours. Serves 10 to 12.

*Graham Cracker-Walnut Crust

- 1 cup graham cracker crumbs
- 3 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
- 1/2 cup finely chopped walnuts

In a small bowl, combine all ingredients. Press onto bottom of a 9-inch springform pan.

TWENTY-MINUTE LEMON MOUSSE

- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatine
- 1/2 cup cold water
- 1 cup boiling water
- 2 cups (1 pint) lemon sherbet*
- 1 container (9 ounces) frozen whipped topping, thawed

In a large bowl, mix unflavored gelatine with cold water. Add boiling water and stir until gelatine is completely dissolved. Gradually add sherbet; stir until completely melted. Blend in whipped topping. Spoon into dessert dishes; chill 15 minutes. Serves 8.

*Use any flavor sherbet in this with excellent results — orange, pineapple, lime, raspberry, or any kind you have handy in the freezer.

SPICED APPLE BLOX

- 4 envelopes unflavored gelatine
- 2 cups unsweetened applesauce, divided
- 3/4 cup boiling water
- Artificial sweetener to equal 1/4 cup sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/8 teaspoon ground nutmeg

In a medium bowl, mix unflavored gelatine with 1/2 cup applesauce. Add boiling water and stir until gelatine is completely dissolved. Stir in artificial sweetener, cinnamon, nutmeg and remaining 1 1/2 cups applesauce. Pour into an 8- or 9-inch-square pan and chill until firm. To serve, cut into 1-inch squares. Yields 60 to 80 squares.

PERKY PEPPERMINT PARFAITS

- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatine
- 1/2 cup cold milk
- 1 cup milk, heated to boiling
- 1 cup (1/2 pint) heavy cream
- 1/3 cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons vanilla extract
- 3 drops red food coloring
- 1/4 cup peppermint candies
- 1 cup ice cubes (6 to 8)
- 1 1/2 cups chocolate wafer crumbs

In a 5-cup blender container, sprinkle unflavored gelatine over cold milk; let stand 3 to 4 minutes. Add hot milk; process at low speed 2 minutes. Add heavy cream, sugar, vanilla, food coloring and peppermint candies. Add ice cubes, one at a time, and process at high speed until ice is melted. Let stand until mixture is slightly thickened, about 10 minutes.

In parfait glasses or dessert dishes, alternately layer chocolate crumbs with peppermint mixture. Chill until set, about 40 minutes. Serves 6.

Ethnic cooking is Sharon Hartman's speciality.

Ethnic cooking a daily delight

Reading cookbooks is a way of life for Sharon Hartman of Palatine and the other female members of her family. She exchanges recipes with her mother, sister and sister-in-law regularly, and ethnic recipes are commonly used in her everyday cooking.

"I grew up on variety, so this is my normal way of cooking, too," Sharon said. Thus, her children accept ethnic dishes as routine and never object to their mother's experimentation.

Sharon especially likes to prepare interesting dishes for company and makes appetizers that are quite unique. One, called Hawaiian Sea, is small balls consisting of raw, chopped shrimp, scallions and water chestnuts coated with Oriental bean threads. The bean threads (a type of noodle) may be purchased in the Cantonese section of Treasure Island or at Oriental groceries. When deep fat fried, the threads puff up and turn crispy and white.

SPINACH AND Cheese Pie also is unusual and delicious. A Greek recipe, it consists of many layers of thin, buttered filo pastry, with a filling of spinach, Feta cheese and eggs seasoned with onion, parsley and dill. Baked in a 9 by 12-inch pan, the pie may be cut in small squares for appetizers, or in large squares and served as the main dish for a luncheon. The pastry is delicate and crispy and the filling light-textured in this rich dish, which is very popular with guests.

Filo pastry and Feta cheese may be purchased at Columbus Grocery on Rand Road in Des Plaines or at Dominick's. This pie can be made ahead, frozen and reheated before serving. For a luncheon, Sharon recommends a tomato salad with a light dressing or a fruit salad and hot bread or rolls as accompaniments.

Crispy also describes Sharon's favorite chicken recipe, which is easy to make and always a success. Chicken pieces are simply brushed with oil, seasoned well, coated with light crushed Rice Krispies and baked in the oven. This method also may be used for chicken wings, which are then served as appetizers.

The chicken makes a big hit with Sharon's husband, Jim, and their children Eric, 14, Rachelle, 13, Brett, 11, and Craig, 9. Being sports enthusiasts, the whole family sails and snowmobiles. Sharon also plays racquetball and volleyball.

HAWAIIAN SEA

1/2 pound raw shrimp, shelled and finely chopped
2 tablespoons scallions, white parts only
5 water chestnuts, chopped
1 teaspoon sherry
1 1/2 teaspoons cornstarch

1 teaspoon salt
1/4 bunch Oriental bean threads, cut in 1-inch lengths

Combine first 6 ingredients. Scoop 1 heaping teaspoon of shrimp mixture and shape into round balls about the size of walnuts. Roll balls into cut bean threads, pressing lightly until they are covered with transparent threads. Deep fry shrimp balls in hot oil. Bean threads will puff up and turn white and crisp when cooked. Makes a dozen or more.

SPINACH AND CHEESE PIE

1/4 cup olive oil
1/2 cup finely chopped onions
1/4 cup finely chopped scallions
2 pounds fresh spinach, washed, drained and chopped
2 tablespoons dry dill weed
1/4 cup chopped parsley
1/2 teaspoon salt
Fresh ground pepper
1/3 cup milk
1/2 pound Feta Cheese, finely crumbled
4 eggs, slightly beaten
1/2 pound butter, melted
16 sheets filo pastry, 12x16 inches

Heat oil over moderate heat; and onions and scallions and cook 5 minutes, stirring frequently. Stir in spinach. Cover tightly and cook for 5 minutes. Add dill, parsley, salt and a few grindings of pepper. Stir and shake pan. Cook, uncovered, 10 minutes or until most liquid has evaporated.

Place spinach mixture in a bowl and stir in milk. Cool to room temperature and then add cheese and slowly beat in eggs.

Coat bottom and sides of a 9x12-inch pan with butter. Line pan with one sheet of filo, pressing edges firmly into corners and up the sides. Brush entire surface with 2 to 3 teaspoons butter. Lay another sheet on top, pressing sides and corners and brush again with butter. Repeat until you have used 8 layers of filo, forming bottom and side crust.

Spread spinach mixture evenly over last layer of filo. Place another sheet of filo on top and coat with butter. Repeat with remaining filo and butter. Trim excess pastry around rim of pan with scissors. Brush top of pie with remaining butter and bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour, or until pastry is crisp and delicately browned. Cut into squares and serve hot or at room temperature. Serves 8 for a luncheon or serve as appetizers.

RICE KRISPIE CHICKEN

Cut chicken into serving-size pieces. Lay pieces skin-side down on a piece of waxed paper. Brush each piece with oil. Season with salt, garlic salt and seasoned salt. Sprinkle with lightly-crushed Rice Krispies. Press into chicken to adhere.

Line a cookie sheet with foil and lightly oil foil. Place chicken on cookie sheet skin side up. Repeat with the oil, salts and cereal. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour.

Mastering the microwave market

More and more homemakers are discovering the joy of microwave cooking. Over the past few years these mini-ovens have evolved from a luxury into practically a standard kitchen fixture capable of cooking almost every kind of food in a matter of minutes.

As industry sales figures climb to an estimated $900 million this year, more and more persons will be scanning the stores to find the model that is right for them. But choosing the right microwave oven — like choosing the right dress — can be difficult when you are faced with an abundance of models, brands and added attractions.

"First you have to decide what features you're looking for, then look for this feature by manufacturer, then price," advises Mary Jo Bergland, a home economist and owner of Micro-cookery Center, Inc., Glen Ellyn.

"REALLY THE VARIABLE power settings offer more versatility in cooking. If all they (cooks) want to do is reheat, then the two-power setting is fine," she says, but adds that more extensive food preparation requires variable power.

Other factors to consider are the wattage and the size of the oven. Mrs. Bergland recommends purchasing a model with an output of 650 to 675 watts of power. Before buying the oven, the consumer should be sure that the food and cooking utensils will fit inside the oven cavity.

"If they're in a quandary about where to place it, get a cardboard box the size of the oven and place it where they want it to go in the kitchen," Mrs. Bergland suggests. And when buying the oven, they should consider the door and the direction it opens, making sure there is enough room for it to open after the oven is installed in the kitchen.

IDA SHELHAMER, microwave cooking teacher at the Continental Cooking School in Mount Prospect, agrees that variable power settings are a plus. Soups, stews and pot roasts cook better on lower settings, she says and more desserts can be made with the help of the various settings.

However, some of the other features may not be worth the money you pay for them.

Barbecue ribs in or out

The tantalizing aroma of meat cooking on a barbecue grill makes mouths water. The advent of various types of grills makes it possible to barbecue all year around. However, spring and summer naturally remain the favorite seasons for barbecue cooking.

Both dishes can be made in the oven, too. Keep in mind that they should be cooked over a "slow fire" or low temperature.

device is an added device. Although all microwaves, unlike conventional ovens, cook by time rather than temperature, some models include a probe, wired to a temperature gauge; which allows the users to cook roasts, casseroles and the like by temperature. "A lot of them are way off, some as much as 10 degrees off," says Mrs. Shelhamer, who believes prospective buyers should not consider this the primary feature. She says many of the probes do not function the way they should, as the meat or ingredients far from the probe are not always completely cooked when the temperature control indicates they are.

MOST MICROWAVE manufacturers offer browning dishes at an additional cost and at least two companies, Tappan and Ward's, offer models with a built-in browning feature. "Don't get carried away with browning dishes — they're for short-order things like

Studies test energy use

by JEANNE LESEM

A gas company expert in New York recommends Chinese stir-frying as one method of coping with the natural gas shortage.

Frances Saunders says Chinese stir-frying saves fuel because ingredients are cut so small dishes cook quickly, some in as little as 10 minutes. Miss Saunders is consumer affairs director for the Brooklyn Union Gas Co.

She also recommends using top burners instead of the oven. Much more gas is needed to heat an oven cavity than top burners, even if you cook an entire meal in the oven," she said.

Contrary to popular belief, in many situations microwave ovens, small electrical appliances and pressure cookers use more energy than conventional cooking on range-top burners or in a gas oven.

SHE SAID STUDIES made in the gas company's test kitchen showed pressure cookers reduce cooking time considerably, but use almost as much fuel to bring the food up to pressure. (Continued on Page 10) hamburgers and steaks," Mrs. Shelhamer warns. Some browning dishes have given roasts a crust of up to two inches of pure burn, she says, and with a little know-how, microwave browning is possible without a browning dish.

Some manufacturers offer models — usually the "memory" kind — with a control that keeps food warm for a specified length of time. "The warming feature works beautifully; but these things cost money and I don't consider them essential things," she says.

A possible factor in the surge of microwave sales has been energy crisis. Since most foods cook more quickly in (Continued on Page 10)

DU PONT ZEPHEL

How ZE PEL Carpet Protector Works
DuPont ZE PEL forms an invisible shield on the carpet which keeps dirt from lodging itself within the carpet fibers. Even mud doesn't seep in, and dries on the surface. Since dirt tends to settle on the top of the carpet, it can be easily vacuumed away. Less soil clings to the ZE PEL treated carpet, so your carpet won't need its first shampoo until much later than unprotected carpet.

Trichinosis aftereffects remain

by BARBARA LADD

Persons who eat raw beef or make their own sausage may be taking a big risk, according to health officials. The number of trichinosis cases is 2.5 times greater than five years ago.

Although only 285 cases of the disease were reported in the U.S. last year, many victims die or retain side effects that remain with them through their lifetime.

Take the case of Mrs. Alvira Hogan, Palatine.

Two years ago this month, Mrs. Hogan made herself a "cannibal" sandwich of uncooked raw beef, a delicacy found on the tables of many gourmet and ethnic cooks.

ON APRIL 29, 1975, she was admitted to Holy Family Hospital with puffy red eyes and a 104-degree fever. Her next memory is of Mother's Day the following month.

Mrs. Hogan nearly died. The trichinosis parasite lodged in her brain, causing paralysis in her right side. Today a tremor in her right hand and weakness still testify to her ordeal. She was unable to return to her job at Marshall Field's Woodfield store.

"I certainly don't have the nerve to eat raw beef any more," said Mrs. Hogan. "And I love it. It's been something I've eaten since a child — must be the German in me. But now I don't even eat pink hamburger."

SHE FILED suit against Jewel Food Stores, having purchased the meat Nov. 20, 1975, at one of its stores, and was offered $40,000 in an out-of-court settlement.

Trichinosis is found in some pork, as well as walrus, elk and bear meat. National Livestock and Meat Board in Chicago data show that the probability of trichinosis in grain-fed swine is less than one per cent.

The organism can be killed by thoroughly cooking pork until all the pink has vanished and the meat thermometer registers 170 degrees.

But the increased cases of trichinosis are attributed more to beef contaminated with minuscule portions of infected pork and to the popularity of homemade sausage, says Dr. Colette Rasmussen of the Cook County Department of Health.

"PEOPLE ARE tasting their sausage to adjust the seasoning before they cook it," she said. "And as for the beef, only improper sanitation by the butcher is the cause."

Law requires that the meat grinders be thoroughly cleaned of all pork before grinding any other product. Many, but not all, stores utilize two grinders — one for pork and one for beef, lamb and other varieties.

Dr. Rasmussen recommends use of two grinders but says that there is no guarantee that butchers will properly use them.

"The main thing is education," she said. "We've been trying to put a new emphasis on trichinosis. With top-notch education in the meat shop and at home the problem could be eliminated."

Hearty beef stews always in season

No matter the season, a hearty beef stew is welcome. Here are two versions. One is a quick beef stew that takes only the time to reheat pre-cooked cubed beef, carrots and potatoes. The other is closer to the classic Boeuf Bourignon or a Burgundy stew that is cooked slowly. Both stews improve in flavor after a day or two of "sitting" in the refrigerator. Serve with homemade biscuits and a green salad.

QUICK BEEF STEW

1 1/2 cups cooked cubed beef
1 cup chopped onion
1 small clove garlic, minced
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 can (15 ounces) beef gravy
2 large carrots, cooked and cut in 1-inch pieces

2 medium potatoes, cooked and cubed
1/2 teaspoon salt
Dash black pepper

In saucepan, brown beef and cook onion with garlic in butter until tender. Add gravy, vegetables and seasonings. Heat; stir occasionally. Garnish with parsley if desired. Makes about 5 cups. Serves 4 to 6.

BEEF BURGUNDY STEW

4 slices bacon
2 1/2 pounds beef cubes (about 1 1/2-inch)
1 can (15 ounces) beef gravy
1 1/2 cups Burgundy or other dry red wine
2 large cloves garlic, minced
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon thyme leaves, crushed

1/8 teaspoon pepper
1 1/2 pounds small whole white onions (about 24)
1/2 pound sliced fresh mushrooms (about 2 cups)
1 cup raw regular rice
Chopped parsley

In large heavy pan, cook bacon until crisp. Remove and crumble. Pour off all but 2 tablespoons drippings. Brown beef in drippings. Add gravy, Burgundy, garlic and seasonings. Cover.

Cook over low heat 1 hour 45 minutes. Add onions and mushrooms; cook 25 minutes. Add rice. Cook 25 minutes more or until done. Stir occasionally. Stir in bacon; garnish with parsley. Makes about 10 cups, serves 6 to 8.

REMODELING SALE

Sale Starts Thursday AT KARNES

Workmen are swarming through the store ripping out the old to rebuild KARNES into Chicagoland's most beautiful music center. We're desperate for working room. All this is happening right before the end of our fiscal year (it ends April 30). Our inventory is supposed to be "clean." Carl Sloan says, "If you can't sell it, give it away!" Mr. Berger, President of Karnes, who is also a CPA, says, "We're not running a charitable institution." Carl says, "We're unless you want wall paper and paint on these new pianos and organs. A rally stripe across the side of an organ is not what makes contemporary music come out of it!" Just for your information, when you come in, the men in the white suits are not from the "funny farm," they are painters and decorators.

Salads revive restless appetites

by GAYNOR MADDOX

Now that spring is in the air our appetites become restless. They crave something different. Eating sometimes becomes a bore. Preparing the usual meals seems increasingly tiresome. So why not try a thoroughly nutritious but different way — soup, sandwich, salad, dessert.

That formula actually works with pleasure. The soup comes from a can or an envelope. Today's variety of ready-to-use soups is extensive. Therefore stack up on your favorite kind and variety. On a moment's notice, these soups are ready as your first course for dinner.

A WORD ABOUT SALADS. A salad can be sliced ripe tomatoes with chopped chives; fresh cole slaw; canned beets sliced thin with sliced onion; iceberg lettuce with Thousand Island dressing; three or more kinds of greens with French dressing; or uncooked spinach leaves with raw sliced mushrooms and Italian dressing. To be both seasonal and extravagant, serve cold asparagus with vinaigrette sauce.

When preparing sandwiches stick to fine bread — French, Italian, excellent rye or pumpernickel and American white bread when traditionally made.

Hamburger with Sour Cream and Capers: Lightly butter a warmed roll, split in half, and place a leftover cooked hamburger on roll. Before putting the top half of the roll on, spread the hamburger with a little whipped sour cream mixed with capers. Before the hamburger, enjoy a cup of instant hot chicken soup with fine noodles. With it serve a crisp salad. Dessert might be fresh fruit and cheese.

Marilyn Kaytor, a well-known food expert, has a delightful sandwich article in the January-February issue of Sphere magazine. Her recipe for Hot Pork Sandwiches deserves reprinting.

Hot Pork Sandwiches: First mix together a tablespoon of fresh lemon juice; a clove of garlic, mashed; and a few drops of Tabasco, salt and paprika. Brush on four pork cutlets (about one half-inch thick). Let stand five minutes.

Heat a tablespoon of olive oil in skillet. Fry pork cutlets, turning once until dark brown, about 15 minutes. Reserve pork drippings. Place each cutlet over 2 roll halves. Sauté green pepper cut into strips and a sliced onion in pork drippings until light brown but still crisp, about five minutes. Place on pork and serve. Sphere magazine suggests if you desire wine with this sandwich, serve a rose.

With the next sandwich, it suggests a dry red wine. You'll find this novelty will answer your lazy spring appetite.

Pan Bagna From Provence: Use a one-pound loaf of French bread. Slice it lengthwise in half. Sprinkle cut sides with one-fourth cup olive oil. Cover bottom half in separate layers with about 1 pound of thinly sliced tomatoes; two cans of anchovy fillets, drained; and 10 pitted ripe olives, cut lengthwise in half. Sprinkle with parsley. Place top half of bread on bottom half; press together. Cut loaf diagonally into 4 to 6 serving pieces.

Baking bits

Never use raw wheat germ in yeast breads because it tends to inhibit the yeast action. Toasted wheat germ, however, is a fine, nutritious addition to the dough.

Never add chilled ingredients to a yeast bread mixture. Use them only after they have reached room temperature. This speeds rising, thus saving time.

While salt adds some flavor to bread, its main purpose is to control the yeast action so rising will not be too rapid.

State culinary a-fair now accepting entries

State fair season is fast approaching and now is the time to start cooking up your favorite recipes to enter in the 1977 Illinois State Fair Culinary Arts Contest Aug. 13-19. Categories include yeast breads, salads and salad dressings, pastry, cakes, baked casseroles and cake decorating. Entrants will be allowed to submit as many as five recipes.

The first and second place winners in each category will receive $25 and $15 respectively. The overall Culinary Arts winner, to be named the final day of the fair, will receive $50 in prize money, plus a trophy and a $50 government bond presented by Pillsbury Mills. The runner-up will receive a prize of $50 and a trophy.

Entries must be received by June 15 and are restricted to Illinois residents who are non-professional cooks and who have not previously won a Culinary Arts or Bake-Off contest.

For a complete set of rules, write the Illinois State Fair, Culinary Exhibits, P.O. Box 576, Springfield, Ill. 62705, or Mrs. Elaine Peppers, Culinary Superintendent, 2707 Curtis, Champaign, Ill. 61820.

a microwave oven than in a range, microwaves can conserve energy — but not always.

GENERALLY, microwaves cook food in about one-fourth the time of a conventional oven. But when used to cook eight or more servings, they may not be any more energy-efficient than conventional ovens, Mrs. Bergland says. And although a roast can be prepared in a microwave oven, it will take about one-half to three-fourths the time of roasting in a range.

Neither the Chicago-area utility companies nor the appliance manufacturers association has made any cost-comparison studies of microwaves and regular ovens, but Consumer Reports magazine, in a June 1976 article, claims microwaves do not always save energy.

Its researchers found that microwaves used less energy when cooking food in water, but that heating soups or sauces on the range uses about the same amount of energy as a microwave would. Microwaves are at a disadvantage in that the user usually can't cook more than one food at a time as often is done in a regular oven. Also, defrosting by microwave consumes power that would not be used when defrosting in the refrigerator. Consumer Reports found the Panasonic NE 5100 to be significantly more energy-efficient than the 15 other models tested.

SOME OTHER features to look for are a precise timer, with settings at least every 15 seconds; an end of cooking alarm; a glass tray or bottom with a lip to catch spills and keep them from running over onto the door seal, and an easy-to-clean interior. A stainless steel interior can get greasy and difficult to clean, Mrs. Shelhamer says, and the Food and Drug Administration warns that grease around the door seal can cause excess radiation emission.

All models, except the Amana and Frigidaire, must carry a warning from the FDA Bureau of Radiological Health, which states that the oven must not be operated when the door, hinge, latch or sealing surface is damaged or is not closed properly. Although all models meet federal safety standards, Amana RR4D, Frigidaire RCM3375, Panasonic NE6600 and Sharp R6460 models turned in the low-

How they compared

Here is a comparison of the various microwave brands as found in Northwest suburban stores. All prices are retail.

- Admiral: $469 model includes defrost setting and no provision for spills.
- Amana: One-power $198 model has no window and a 12-minute timer with 30-second settings. $419 model has six power settings, $559 model has the same plus "memory."
- Frigidaire: $529 model offers three power settings and no provision for catching spills.
- General Electric: $414 model has three power settings, temperature control and no provision for spills.
- Litton: Models, which start at $429, have no provision for spills. $449 model includes temperature controls and six settings, $489 model has nine settings and "memory."
- Magic Chef: Models have no spill provisions. $428 for five power settings, $469 for seven settings, $529 for 10 settings plus "memory."

- Panasonic: $189 model has 500 watts. $429 model has two power settings and defrost, $549 model has five settings and temperature control.
- Penney's: Most models don't have spill provisions. $219.95 for 500 watts, up to $449.95 for three power settings and temperature control.
- Sanyo: $229 for onepower setting and 15 minute timer with 30-second settings.
- Sears: $179 for 400 watts, up to $469 for 10 settings and temperature control. Most models have two or three power settings.
- Tappan: $409 for seven power settings, $459 model has browning feature, and $489 includes these plus temperature control.
- Wards: $299.99 model has two power settings and a timer with 30 second settings. $479.99 model has four power settings and $499 has 10 power settings, including browning feature.

est radiation leakage readings under normal operating conditions, according to the Consumer Reports tests.

Warranties are another factor to consider. Amana and Panasonic carry the most extensive warranties, covering both parts and labor for five years. All major brands have at least a five-year warranty on the magnetron (microwave generator) and at least a one-year warranty on parts and labor.

ing both parts and labor for five years. All major brands have at least a five-year warranty on the magnetron (microwave generator) and at least a one-year warranty on parts and labor.

Appliances don't always save energy

as is used for conventional range-top cooking.

She quoted findings by the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. of San Francisco that showed, among other things:

A portable skillet with a broiler lid uses much more energy than a gas oven broiler not preheated;

Two one-inch thick steaks and fish steaks broiled from a cold start in a gas range used less energy than the same food cooked in a vertical electric broiler, a skillet with a broiler lid, an electric broiler oven or an open rotisserie.

Small portable electrical ovens use less fuel for baking small things like biscuits or cookies at 350 to 400 degrees Fahrenheit, but a gas oven is cheaper for pies. Gas becomes more economical as the amount of food and temperature increase, Miss Saunders said.

In the West Coast utility's tests, one slow cooker used more than three times as much energy as a pressure cooker on the top burner of a gas range. Another slow cooker, tested at amount of energy as the other because of increased cooking time.

ITS TESTS of microwave ovens showed an energy-saving over gas and electric ranges only if the ovens were used to heat or reheat small amounts of small foods: one or two baked potatoes or individual servings. As the amount of foods heated or cooked at one time increases, so does energy usage, so that a conventional gas oven becomes more economical.

The PG&E study, which was released in 1975, described the most energy-saving meal as a skillet main dish and a dessert prepared on a surface burner.

If you do want an oven meal, fill the cavity to capacity, the study said. It showed a complete oven meal or a double bread recipe or four pies baked at one time used very little more fuel than a single recipe.

And keep the door shut until the food is done. The study showed a 350-degree oven opened four times during a cooking period of one hour and 20 minutes used 65 per cent more energy than it would have if the door had remained closed throughout.

When you cook with gas, Miss Saunders urges close attention to the size of both pots and flames:

"Don't let the flame go full blast when the contents reach a boil. Turn the burner down to a simmer.

"Use a flame to fit the bottom of the pan; don't let it lick up the sides.

Trust.

In the banking business, as in life, trust is something that has to be earned. For more than 40 years, First Arlington National Bank has been earning the trust of its community. That fact is obvious to the bank's new management. Without trust from the community, the bank would not be the largest in Arlington Heights today. It would not service 25,000 accounts. And, without trust by the bank returned to the community, it could not have provided $50 million in loans to the people of this area. The stated policy of the New First Arlington is to continue to improve on the bank's record of service to the community. Improve. That's the key word here, for there are far greater goals to be reached in the future.

NEWBORN INFANT held by Dr. Joseph Bertucci, pediatrics department head at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, has a good chance to develop normally should the child have a thyroid deficiency, a cause of mental retardation. Screening for hyperthyroidism is now routine at Alexian for all babies born there. If a deficiency exists, hormone treatment begins immediately.

Thyroid test now routine

Improving baby's chances

by BILLIE BACHHUBER

One infant in about 6,000 is born with hypothyroidism, a thyroid hormone deficiency which causes mental retardation. That one child now may be helped.

Detected and treated early in life with the supplement hormone thyroxine, most newborns with underactive thyroid function will develop normally.

"If supplement therapy is started as soon as possible, 85 to 90 per cent of the babies' IQ's can be saved. In most cases, the sooner the detection, the better chances are for normal brain development," said Dr. Joseph Bertucci, chairman of the department of pediatrics at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village.

Alexian Brothers is the first hospital in the Northwest suburbs to perform routine screening for hypothyroidism of all babies born there. It's one of three hospitals in metropolitan Chicago to do such testing.

DR. HOWARD SINGER, staff pediatrician, noted that routine blood-spot (taken from the baby's heel) filter paper testing in Quebec, Canada, showed early diagnosis and treatment to be successful in preventing mental retardation in most thyroxine poor newborns. He suggested similar (but more precise) testing be done at Alexian Brothers.

Dr. Bertucci, with Dr. Mario Nunez, medical director of nuclear medicine, initiated and implemented the screen program this past March.

How does this screening work? A baby is born.

"We take blood from the umbilical cord right after birth. The baby is not affected at all," Dr. Nunez described the initial procedure.

"IN THE LABORATORY a technician measures the amount of thyroxine in the baby's blood by a very specific method. It's the same procedure used to determine that of adults', but different charts or curves are used to determine what thyroxine level is normal," said Dr. Nunez.

An antibody, formed when a laboratory animal is injected with thyroxine, is added to the patient's blood along with a very small amount of radioactive tracer.

The mixture is incubated (put in a special oven), then spun rapidly to separate, put into a small vial and fed into a gamma counter.

The animal antibody — tagged with radioactive tracer — attacks the patient's thyroxine, and the gamma counter zeroes-in on the hormone level, Nunez explained, simplifying what he terms a "very complex procedure."

BOTH NUNEZ and Bertucci emphasize the importance of early detection and diagnosis of hypothyroidism.

"The thyroid regulates metabolism of the cells in the body; therefore, if thyroid function is low the brain cells are very easily affected in the newborn," Bertucci said.

Once hypothyroidism is detected — and confirmed by two laboratory rechecks — therapy is lifelong.

"If nothing else is involved, a daily dose of thyroxine started as early as possible will help most children develop normally," said Dr. Bertucci.

It is the parents' responsibility to give their child daily medication, arrange for periodic physicals and blood tests, he advised.

The physician checks the young patient's progress by noting alertness, general appearance and height and weight gains, for some.

A BABY BORN without a properly functioning thyroid and examined by a pediatrician, but not screened for thyroid deficiency, may appear healthy . . . until later, perhaps too late.

If not detected and treated early, hypothyroidism symptoms may include lethargy, slower than normal progress in smiling, reaching, sitting up, standing.

Skin may be dry, tongue large and hair sparse. And the child may be mentally retarded.

"We can do the tests then, but it's too late," Dr. Nunez said.

"We know that one baby in 6,000 is born with hypothyroidism, and you can bet your life if it were my child, I'd want that test done!" added the physician and father of two.

"Babies are more precious now," said Dr. Bertucci. "People are choosing to have children, limiting families."

"HOSPITALS ARE recognizing that we should do the very best we can for mothers and babies. We are striving to bring a child into the world as safely as we possibly can," he said.

Pilot screening for neonatal hypothyroidism has been ongoing in Quebec, Toronto and Pittsburgh for the past three years, according to the October 1976 Journal of Pediatrics.

Based on accumulated results of that testing, the American Thyroid Association is recommending that screening programs for hypothyroidism in newborns be established and expanded.

Northwest Community Hospital, in Arlington Heights, now is seriously considering routine testing, and Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge, plans to do such testing in the near future.

At Alexian Brothers the test costs $5. Dr. Nunez suggests the cost is small compared to the trauma and expense of caring for a mentally retarded youngster.

Book tells how to get freebies

by HAROLD BLUMENFELD

Maybe all the best things in life aren't free. But there's a wealth of valuable material available to make life easier and more rewarding — and save us money. And most of this can be had free, except for a postage stamp and occasionally a fee of some small change. But never more than 50 cents.

I was recently given the new book "Super Treasury of Valuable Things You Can Get Free or for Next to Nothing" (Parker Publishing Company, West Nyack, N.Y. $8.95). Harriet Saalheimer has provided more than a thousand items which tell us where to write for magazines, booklets and samples on a great variety of subjects.

All of the 17 chapters in the book list a great many things of interest to retirees and those who will soon join the large congregation of Senior Citizens. Except possibly the first chapter "Things About Baby and Child Care." Unless someone is planning to adopt a newborn baby.

BUT THERE ARE other items of interest. For the retirees who now have time on their hands it tells where to get information how to remodel an old house or how to buy and move to a new home. For the man who can now become his own "Mr. Fix-it" information is available for all sorts of home improvements, indoor and outdoor painting, carpentry and cabinet work, furniture repair, new burglary protection devices, safety-first features around the house, fuel-saving tips and other odds and ends to assist the do-it-yourself man around the home.

For the woman around the house there's available informative material: cook books, how to freeze food, special diets and calorie and cholesterol counters, tips for making new drapes and cleaning furniture, and indoor and outdoor gardening. Also available are helpful beauty and health hints, dental care, hearing aids and eyeglasses, vitamins, how to buy and use drugs, home nursing — and medical information written simply for us and not in the confusing jargon used by our doctors.

And if we are wondering what to do with our leisure time, information is available to start us off on new hobbies — stamp and coin collecting, photography, building a hi-fi set, raising pets, home decoration, and even making our own greeting cards.

OUR FINANCIAL problems may be solved by available booklets about stocks and other investments, investment clubs, how to write a new will, information about buying a new house or condominium and how to finance it, the use of credit cards, and how save money on many items we contemplate purchasing. And advice for any retirees who are thinking of franchising a small business.

Some requests for this available information can be asked for with a 9-cent post office card. If a coin or two or a self-addressed and stamped envelope is requested, be sure to include it in the envelope. And print in block letters your name, address and zip code.

I thought I knew so much about so many things, but I've already sent out a dozen requests for information to some of the government agencies, business enterprises and institutions which are listed in the book.

Women as resource theme of conference

The conference, the first of its kind in the Midwest, will focus on work and the increasing roles that women are playing in America's work force. Participants are expected to be people in management roles; representatives of labor unions, government and higher education; and counselors.

Old stained glass windows being put to new use

I have a cousin whom I have good reason to dislike intensely, but I just can't — she's too nice! She wrote recently that she had seen a stained glass window hanging by chains in a store window in her town and it was such a pretty effect, she went home and asked her husband whatever happened to that old stained glass window they had out in the shed?

It seems years ago he had used it to temporarily patch a broken storage shed window, and sure enough, it was still there, dusty and cobwebby, but all in good condition.

She drew a picture of the window and described its colors, and that's why I have good reason to dislike her. It is a long narrow transom-style leaded and colorful window, with blue and gold fan-shaped design across and various other designs around the edges, sparked with cranberry-colored "jewels" of glass called "bullseyes." They cleaned the window and hung it from chains in front of the picture window, and she is just delighted with the effect.

NOW IT'S NOT that I'm jealous, not much. I, too, have a beautiful stained and leaded glass window, similar to hers, but I had to buy mine at an antique show for, as the kids put it, megabucks. And she just went out to the shed and brought one in!

For the past several years, architectural features such as these colorful windows have been popular with the decorators, and antique dealers have jumped at the chance to buy them from salvage companies and wreckers. But there probably were thousands of them destroyed before they became popular again, and I shudder to think of a wrecker's ball crashing against some of the beautiful work done in glass around the turn of the century. Some of these are even signed with the studio name, such as the famous Tiffany. They bring much higher prices than unsigned pieces, but almost any piece of colored leaded (meaning that the pieces are fastened into place with a lead solder by hand) is worth a great deal today. The plainer, uncolored leaded and beveled (slanted mirror-looking edges) glasses are popular too, but not so much as the vari-colored ones.

Grace Carolyn

MY OWN WINDOW, bought several years ago, is a long narrow lengthwise design with a garland of fruits and leaves, very beautiful, but it does not have the jewels or bullseyes described above. The window shown in the picture is dated (also making it more valuable) and has lily type flowers and other designs with bullseye centers in the flowers.

Churches, of course, are an original source of stained glass work, and some of this is outstanding. Many churches, I have noticed, have started covering their windows with plexiglass on the outside to prevent breakage by vandalism, which seems to be a very good idea.

And many craftsmen are reviving the old glass work with contemporary pieces which are beautiful and can almost compete with the old. I say "almost" for I think nothing compares to the old windows, but then in addition to the vice of jealousy of my cousin, I admit to prejudice about antiques.

EVEN A QUITE plain leaded window can be most attractive in a certain setting. I saw one with only two long strips of green "stems" and a stylized yellow lily at each end, with no other color. It was set into a bathroom window opening, still let in plenty of light and echoed the color scheme, naturally, of the towels! It was very Art Deco and the owner had carried out that theme in her other accessories.

If your house needs a focal point, think about a stained glass window. In sunshine or even a gloomy day, it will sparkle or glow and lift your spirits.

The doctor says

Diet should contain sufficient calcium

I am 59 and my problem is my back. I have osteoporosis. It started about 10 months ago. I had pains in my back and difficulty getting up from a chair. I didn't see my doctor for about two months. By then the pain was unbearable. I was X-rayed and they showed I had three collapsed vertebrae and my upper spine was beginning to bend forward.

I was fitted with an orthopedic back brace and I wore it for seven months. I didn't think it helped. My stomach was protruding. My waist was 26 inches all my life and now it is 34. I haven't gained any weight; I'm still 116 pounds.

The hunch in my back is worse. In fact I'm pushed forward so much that it is affecting my heart. It has a rapid irregular beat. I'm taking fudinal.

Now I have started having leg cramps at night. So bad I can't sleep. Last month I went to see an orthopedic specialist. He took X-rays and told me the same thing as my own doctor — there is no cure for osteoporosis.

He told me to walk two or three miles a day, take calcium, stick to a high protein diet which I can't because of my high cholesterol count — no eggs, whole milk, cheeses or anything with oils.

He prescribed Premarin. I still have all my female organs, and I have gone through the menopause with no problems. Why should I take Premarin and take a chance on getting cancer?

I hope you have some suggestions as I am at my wit's end.

Osteoporosis, dissolving bones, is hard to treat. It can progress to cause the type of problems you describe. That is why I urge women to be sure they get enough calcium in their diet. This problem is five times as common in women on calcium deficient diets.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-10 which outlines what we know about the treatment of osteoporosis. You may want to discuss the possibility of taking fluoride tests, vitamin D and calcium treatments with your doctor. This method has been used with some success at the Mayo Clinic and the references to the work are included in that issue. How much reversal you can get is questionable, but it is important to you that the progression be stopped. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

You are probably not getting enough calcium. You can take calcium pills if you need to do so. Despite your high cholesterol you can use fortified skim milk — almost devoid of fat and cholesterol and rich in calcium. You can use low-fat cottage cheese — the type that is not creamed — and you can use buttermilk. All of these foods are rich in protein and calcium. You can use mature bean seeds and spinach.

Meats do not contain much calcium. If you use lean meats, fish and poultry, you will not be getting too much cholesterol. The lean flesh raw contains only about 70 milligrams in a three-and-a-half ounce (100 gram) portion. You can consume 300 milligrams of cholesterol a day and not exceed the usual allowance.

Your enlarging stomach is caused by the collapse of your vertebrae — shortening your waist and changing your posture. You need a good physical therapy program for exercises that will help but not hurt you.

(Because of the volume of mail Dr. Lamb cannot answer your letters personally but he will answer representative letters of general interest in his column. Write to him in care of Suburban Living, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.)

Sticky frypans are in need of treatment

Dear Dorothy: A couple of my best pans, one iron and the other aluminum, are giving me troubles. Food sticks to both of them. I was told they need a "treatment." Can you help? — Mrs. W. C. Petty You're probably not alone because a skillet is usually the most important cooking utensil in the kitchen and it does get "off" moments. Iron is porous so it's treated differently from aluminum. What you do with the iron pan is to wash, rinse and dry it well. Then grease it well with unsalted fat and put in a 200-degree oven for several hours. After this, wash it with soap and water and dry thoroughly. Never let iron dry by itself. Aluminum pans are treated pretty much the same way, except they never go into the oven. Put them on low heat for several hours, then wash and dry.

Dear Dorothy: I have a bunion. Do you think the shoe-stretch lotion would give some relief? And is this product easily obtainable? — Mary M. Spitzley Shoe-stretch lotion does a remarkable job of stretching a shoe width-wise, but I question whether it would help a bunion problem. Ask your shoemaker to put the shoe in a stretcher with a bunion attachment, then use the stretch lotion. Different manufacturers make this lotion and most shoe repair stores keep it on hand.

Dear Dorothy: Is there some trick to use when a gelatin mold doesn't come out of the pan? — Maryann Philbin

It's tricky, but the experts slip the mold in lukewarm water, maybe one or two seconds, then place the serving plate over the mold and quickly invert it. I've been too cowardly to try it. I just wait until it's ready to slip out.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Hearth broom good item for giving or bazaars

Craft fairs, which I always enjoy, can sometimes furnish you with hand-some accessories for the home, in addition to good ideas for your own projects.

The illustrated piece is a hearth broom that's really too pretty to use. Instead, I keep it hung on my brick fireplace wall.

The broom is the handmade kind usually found at import specialty shops. It has a bamboo handle that was sawed off at a joint to a length of about six inches.

Here's how this very attractive decoration was made:

First, pieces of dark-green plastic foliage were wired together in a spray

Judy Harper

Traditional crafts

effect and then wired to the broom in several places for security. One heavy wire was pushed through to the back of the broom, with the ends twisted together for maximum strength.

NEXT, THREE LARGE double bows were made and wired tightly at the center of each bow with very fine wire. These can be made either from 2-inch-wide strips of calico fabric or from commercially available ribbon lengths.

The bows were then wired securely to the foliage.

Next, four fringy burlap flowers were added. The flowers are natural burlap color — cream-colored — and are made as follows:

Cut strips of burlap about 2 inches by 18 inches. Now, ravel the burlap strip by pulling out the threads, leaving about one-half inch unraveled at the bottom. Each thread you pull out should be 18 inches long.

Cut a piece of wire about eight inches long. Double it, leaving a loop at the top, and twist the ends together.

Begin rolling the burlap very tightly around the wire, placing the still-woven bottom just under the wire loop.

USE WHITE CRAFT glue along the entire length of the woven burlap strip to hold it securely. Let it dry thoroughly. (This probably will take a day or two.)

Finish the flowers by gluing a ball from a length of ball fringe into the center of each flower. Be sure to select colors that coordinate with the colors in the fabric bows.

Wire the flowers securely to the foliage already on the broom.

The broom can be hung by drilling a hole through the broomstick, close to the top, and inserting a leather thong.

This project would be good for a group, since one person could bunch and wire foliage, while another makes bows and still another makes the fringed burlap flowers.

These hearth brooms make good bazaar items that could be started early in the year. They would also be great hostess or housewarming gifts — and heaven forbid that anyone should use them for sweeping the hearth!

John Amico and the HAIR PEOPLE

Cleopatra used Henna. So did Neferetti.

Even in the days of ancient Egypt you could probably find Salons up and down the banks of the Nile using Henna. Today, Henna is not just a color, it's a super conditioner too. That's because Henna naturally adheres to every strand of hair, making it fuller... thicker. You get the rich sheen of glamorous red, brown and shining black. It's a sure thing you'll love it! (We at the Hair People have been doing Henna for over 2 years... and it's just now being featured in Vogue Magazine).

Today on TV

Diane Mermigas

TV returns to its 'golden days'

Television has completed another full circle and is looking back now on what it calls its better days — its golden days.

The fifties, in all of its black and white scratchiness, was rich in comic genius. It was a decade that saw the likes of Lucille Ball, Dinah Shore, Red Skelton, Jack Benny, Burns and Allen, Sid Caesar, Milton Berle, Imogene Coca and Howdy Doody in their prime.

Much of what made America laugh back then was experimental and innovative. The world was weary of its wars, violence and disparity and wanted to laugh.

Film clips of the McCarthy-Army hearings, the Korean War, the nomination of Eisenhower in 1952, the Democratic Convention of 1956 and the television quiz-show scandal were all the reality that the viewing public wanted to stomach.

In glancing back over our shoulders at the humorous escape of that era, we may discover we are groping for much of the same in our television programming today.

CBS tonight will broadcast "When Television Was Young," a two-hour special that traces the development of television through the 1950s with kinescope clips of programs and news events. The special will air from 8 to 10 p.m. on Channel 2.

Saturday NBC will telecast "TV: The Fabulous 50s," billed as a nostalgic look at some of the top stars, popular shows and most memorable moments on the tube. The special will air from 8:30 to 10 p.m. on Channel 5.

Both shows will serve to remind us just how far television production and technology has come. The specials will also point out that the current television programming trend toward comedy is only an attempt to recapture the entertaining, fantasy-like diversion that television has always been able to afford.

The surge toward comedy saturation in network programming is on. ABC announced its new fall line-up of shows earlier this week. It has sacrificed a few of its "violent" jewels for six new situation comedies that may not come off as being very intellectual but will make you laugh instead of worry.

"The Streets of San Francisco," "Most Wanted" and "Bionic Woman" were the action-packed shows among the ones cancelled for the new season. But, some of the network's most "violent" programs will remain: "Starsky and Hutch," "Baretta" and "Charlie's Angels."

Although ABC comedies like "The Feather and Father Gang," "Tony Randall Show" and "Blansky's Beauties" (which was a second loser in one season for Nancy Walker who lost her "Nancy Walker Show" last winter) were cancelled, there will be six new comedies to take their place.

CBS and NBC, who will announce their program line-up for the new fall season within the next several weeks, are expected to do the same. They will no doubt retain its high ratings-getters, beefing up the comedy and cutting back on the gratuitous violence in the returning shows to keep a protesting viewing public happy.

CBS is sure to highlight a few new situation comedies out of the Mary Tyler Moore (MTM) mill and NBC looks to be working on hour-long comedy programs hosted by funny men like Richard Pryor.

What groups like the National Parent-Teachers Assn. and Action for Children's Television have been telling the three major networks the past year or so is that they know the world is filled with violence, but they don't want their children to have to watch it on television.

What the general viewing public has been telling the networks this past season, as evidenced by the weekly program ratings, is that they want to laugh at the ridiculous and the nostalgic as presented in smash hits like "Happy Days" and "Laverne and Shirley."

"I LOVE LUCY."

Lengthened and intensified newscasts in the early and late evening give a blow-by-blow account of the world's brutal and crucial happenings in living color. The network's "60 Minutes," "Weekend," documentaries and news specials provide concentrated, in-depth looks at the good and the bad of us.

So, it's no wonder that even "Kojak" is slipping a little these days. The public is only fantasizing on a handful of action, police-type dramas. For the most part, they seem to prefer an hour of Fonzie's birthday celebration to a run down of "What's my Crime?"

The film clips that will be highlighted during the two nostalgic specials tonight and Saturday of shows that were hot back in the 1950's won't really seem part of a lost past.

Just pick up a television program guide and flip through it and you'll see an abundance of reruns of shows like "I Love Lucy," "Bonanza," "Leave it to Beaver," "Ozzie and Harriet," "The Best of Groucho" and "The Andy Griffith Show" that are still goldmines for independent stations.

When you think about what we're watching, what we're laughing at and what we're going to see more of on television, you realize the past isn't too far gone.

TV NOTES:

It looks like WBBM-TV's "new" and "only" 10 p.m. newscast isn't making the ratings leaps and bounds anticipated. When the station premiered its revitalized 10 p.m. news show April 14, it received a 22 rating, but has averaged only about a 12.5 rating since then which is placing it in third place again behind WLS-TV in the top spot and WMAQ-TV coming in second.

HIGHLIGHTS:

- "Tiger, Tiger" at 7 p.m. on Channel 2 is a documentary narrated by Richard Widmark exploring the Bengal Tiger in India and Nepal which has become an endangered species.
- "Death Trap" at 7 p.m. on Channel 5 is narrated by Vincent Price and looks at carnivorous insects, reptiles and plants that use dangerous deception to capture their prey.
- "Snowbeast" is a premiere movie on Channel 5 at 8 p.m. about a Rocky Mountain ski resort that is terrorized by a Bigfoot-like creature.
- Dizzie Gillespie holds a be-bop reunion on "Soundstage" at 9 p.m. on Channel 11.
- Gerald Rivera takes a serious look at homosexuality at 10:30 p.m. on Channel 7 in a talk-show special.

Haldeman's list

may reveal psyche

If H. R. Haldeman, commander of Richard Nixon's "palace guard," could have any 10 people who ever lived as dinner guests, who would he invite?

Among others, two of history's most unscrupulous political manipulators and schemers — Niccolo Machiavelli and Grigori Rasputin.

So says Haldeman, who made out his historical fantasy guest list for a book filled with such stuff, "The Book of Lists," by Amy Wallace, Irving Wallace and son David Walleschinsky.

Noticeably absent from Haldeman's list was his former employer, Richard Nixon, although four other presidents would be invited: both Roosevelts, Abraham Lincoln and Woodrow Wilson.

We may find out how Nixon feels about Haldeman these days when the former President gives his first public interview since resigning from office in 1974 next month. He will be interviewed by David Frost in four 90-minute programs that begin Wednesday.

'War' in Long Island

Clam poachers 'love the chase'

GREAT SOUTH BAY, N. Y. (UPI) — Conservation officers took to helicopters and skimoobiles when even the winter's freeze failed to stop clam poachers on Long Island's Great South Bay.

As the "clam war" escalated, the poachers equipped themselves with CB radios to keep track of the lawmen.

Conservation boats rammed clammer boats, and vice-versa.

"THEY'LL NEVER really stop us," said Cliff Roberts, a 23-year-old shellfisherman and sometimes poacher, working with long rake-like tongs from the windwept deck of his clamboat.

"There'll always be someone who'd be willing to poach. As it is now some of these guys are so brazen they call the cops to let them know they're going out that night to poach."

"I guess they love the chase."

There have been some comic moments in the chase.

ONE CLAMMER, OUT on the frozen bay fishing through a hole, watched helplessly as his car broke through the ice and sank.

But it's not always funny for Roberts and others who make their living in Long Island's $100 million shellfish-ing industry, harvesting the rich clam beds of Great South Bay.

Sometimes illegally.

The dispute centers on an imaginary line the state has drawn along the bay to divide it into "polluted" and "non-polluted" zones.

THE STATE'S Environmental Conservation Department says the water in the "polluted" zone exceeds the federal limit, set in 1941, of 70 coliform organisms per 100 millimeters of water.

By comparison, swimming is allowed in water with a count of up to 2,400. The baymen contend that the 1941 standard is outmoded.

"The pollution level there is not dangerous," Cliff said from the windswept deck of his clamboat as he worked the mud with his rake-like tongs.

"No one's gotten sick from these clams in years."

THE POLLUTED ZONE is extremely rich in shellfish and most baymen often find themselves "working the other side of the line."

Roberts said that when the prices for a 500-count bag are good a clammer can make up to $300 in a few hours of poaching.

But if he is caught, he could end up paying a steep fine, lose his license and have his boat seized.

Suffolk County police and state conservation agents use high speed boats, helicopters and sometimes ski-mobiles.

"CONSERVATION LANDED a helicopter on my deck once, almost blowing over another clammer near me," Roberts said.

Roberts has received three summonses.

"The last time they gave me a summons they were going to seize my boat, but they couldn't find a trailer big enough to take it."

For their part, Roberts said, some of the clammers have CB radios on their boats to keep tabs on the authorities.

SO FAR THERE HAS not been any serious violence. But there have been a number of ramblings by both sides and police and conservation department equipment has been vandalized.

During the recent months when the bay was frozen, the clammers would cut holes in the 18-inch ice to dredge up the clams. The clams were bringing $40 to $50 a bushel.

That's when lawmen brought out their ski-mobiles.

"Conservation would come up on their ski-dos to tell us we were working across the line but we'd tell them we didn't see any buoys, and we didn't because they were under the ice, so they just left us alone," said Roberts, now sorting his catch on the deck.

HIS RUDDY FACE broke into a smile under his beard.

"Some of the guys got lazy though and drove their cars out onto the ice," he recalled. "One of them lost a brand new Toyota when it fell through."

"There was an army of us out there then but we all made good money."

On Long Island shellfishing is the third largest industry, employing 10,000 people.

Long Island legislators have sponsored legislation that would update the 1941 federal pollution standard and hopefully allow the clammers to prosper.

For the clammers it's all or nothing.

HARVEY BROTMAN, left, talks over basics of blacksmithing with student Bill Parks, of Missoula, Mont., one of six students learning the art at Brotman's Forge in this northern New Hampshire community of Lebanon. Brotman, 28, operates one of three blacksmith schools in the country.

Brotman Forge helps preserve blacksmithing

by PETER MAY

LEBANON, N.H. (UPI) — Bill Parks packed his German shepherd Jeremiah and his winterized teepee into his car and drove 2,000 miles from Missoula, Mont., to this Connecticut River Valley city.

Nellie Gordon, 84, a practicing lawyer in Lawersville, N.Y., also made the trip, as have persons from Arkansas, Alaska, Georgia and North Carolina.

They all come to the Brotman Forge to become blacksmiths.

The forge lies in the basement of the old Excelsior Mill, where Harvey Brotman, a 28-year-old nomadic blacksmith, instructs doctors, lawyers, social workers and anyone else wanting to learn the ancient craft. After six weeks, some of the students will open up their own shops or just be pleased to have acquired another trade.

"This is a non-judgmental course. People come here to learn what they can. You get out of it what you can or what you want," said Brotman, a contemplative sort whose long red hair, beard, overalls and green flannel shirt belie the stereotype of the village smith.

Brotman's school, he says, is one of three blacksmith schools around the country.

Students learn the basic blacksmithing and something of the history of the craft. Each has his own forge (with fires reaching a temperature of 3,000 degrees) and learn to make links, latches, poker and other hardware.

THE COURSE is held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

"You can't learn it on a weekend basis. There's a definite time element involved. Steel is very unforgiving. It's a very precise craft," he said. "Blacksmithing doesn't take strength, just hard work."

The Brotman Forge has been in business since last September and is booked solid through August.

Brotman advertises the school in Mother Earth News to attract the type of people he feels will be interested in the school.

"These are the type of people who own a farm and want to repair their tools or just people who want to do handicrafts," he said.

STUDENTS PAY $475 for six weeks or can take a four-week course for $350. All potential smithies must find their own accommodations.

Brotman's arrival in Lebanon ended a six-year sortie which saw him working in Santa Fe, N.M., Jamestown, N.D., and Cooperstown, N.Y. He dropped out of college after 3½ years "to tvaluate things" and while working in Estes Park, Colo., found a 1912 blacksmithing book.

"I still have it," he said.

He then learned blacksmithing at a school in Santa Fe and briefly had a fling with the graphic arts before working for the New York State Historical Assn. for about four years.

BUDGET PROBLEMS soon beset the association and Brotman decided the continual influx of tourists was not conducive to the work he wanted to do. He came to western New Hampshire, found his "little niche" and opened his forge.

The costs of blacksmithing, like everything else, are going up. Brotman said his overhead runs to $800 a month and is going up.

"They all come here thinking I'm making a fortune, but they don't see the hidden costs. The school is barely self-supporting," he said.

Parks, 23, who wants to work in children's education, said he came to the school to pick up the trade.

"When you start out, he really makes you conscious of quality," Parks said. "You keep going back and back and back. Sometimes I find it better just to put it down before I get frustrated."

Paid parking at Lutheran General

Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge, plans to start a paid parking plan May 2, and in so doing will become the first Northwest suburban hospital to charge patients, visitors and employees for parking.

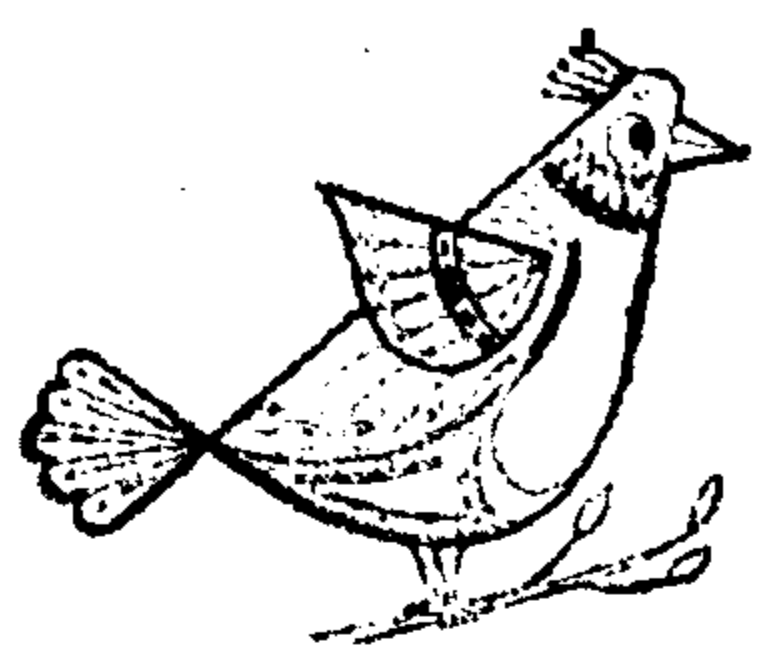

The parking lot directly south of Dempster Street will be an hourly lot where parkers will pay 25 cents an hour up to a maximum of $2, hospital officials say.

The lot due west of the main building will be a daily lot featuring a flat rate of 50 cents a day.

Free parking will continue in hospital lots north of Dempster Street, next to the alcoholic treatment center and south of the main hospital building, a spokesman said.

Paid parking is being implemented to provide more access to parking lots nearest the hospital and to help pay for a shuttle bus that operates in the various lots, the spokesman said.

Consultant hired without city OK

by SCOTT FOSDICK
Des Plaines Mayor-elect Herbert H. Volberding has hired, without city council approval, a Chicago consulting firm to advise him on what problems face him when he takes office Monday.

City aldermen criticized Volberding after they learned of the move this week. Volberding, a 23-year veteran of the Des Plaines Police Dept., won the mayor's job by defeating six other candidates April 19.

Although he campaigned hard on his knowledge of the city and its problems and put forth a 15-point campaign platform, Volberding has asked for the transition report to brief him on city government.

AL RONAN, WHO is coordinating the study for the accounting firm of Pandolfi, Weiss and Co., said, "We assume it will be at the city's expense."

City Atty. Charles Hug said that as mayor-elect, Volberding has no power to contract services for the city.

"Obviously he has no authority to hire anybody until he is mayor," Hug said. Volberding will be sworn-in May 2.

A telegram has been sent to the firm, saying the city will not pay for the report until the council approves a contract.

The city took the action after Hug told them of the study. Hug said Volberding mentioned the study to him last week.

VOLBERDING HAS been vacationing in Northern Wisconsin since Saturday and was not available for comment.

Council members, upset at Volberding's action, referred the matter to the city code and judiciary committee and the finance committee.

"It's very unusual for a man who isn't even sworn-in to be hiring people without talking to anyone about it," Ald. Daniel Kisslinger, 4th, a member of the finance committee, said. "We don't consider them engaged in any" (Continued on Page 5)

4 injured in area jet crash

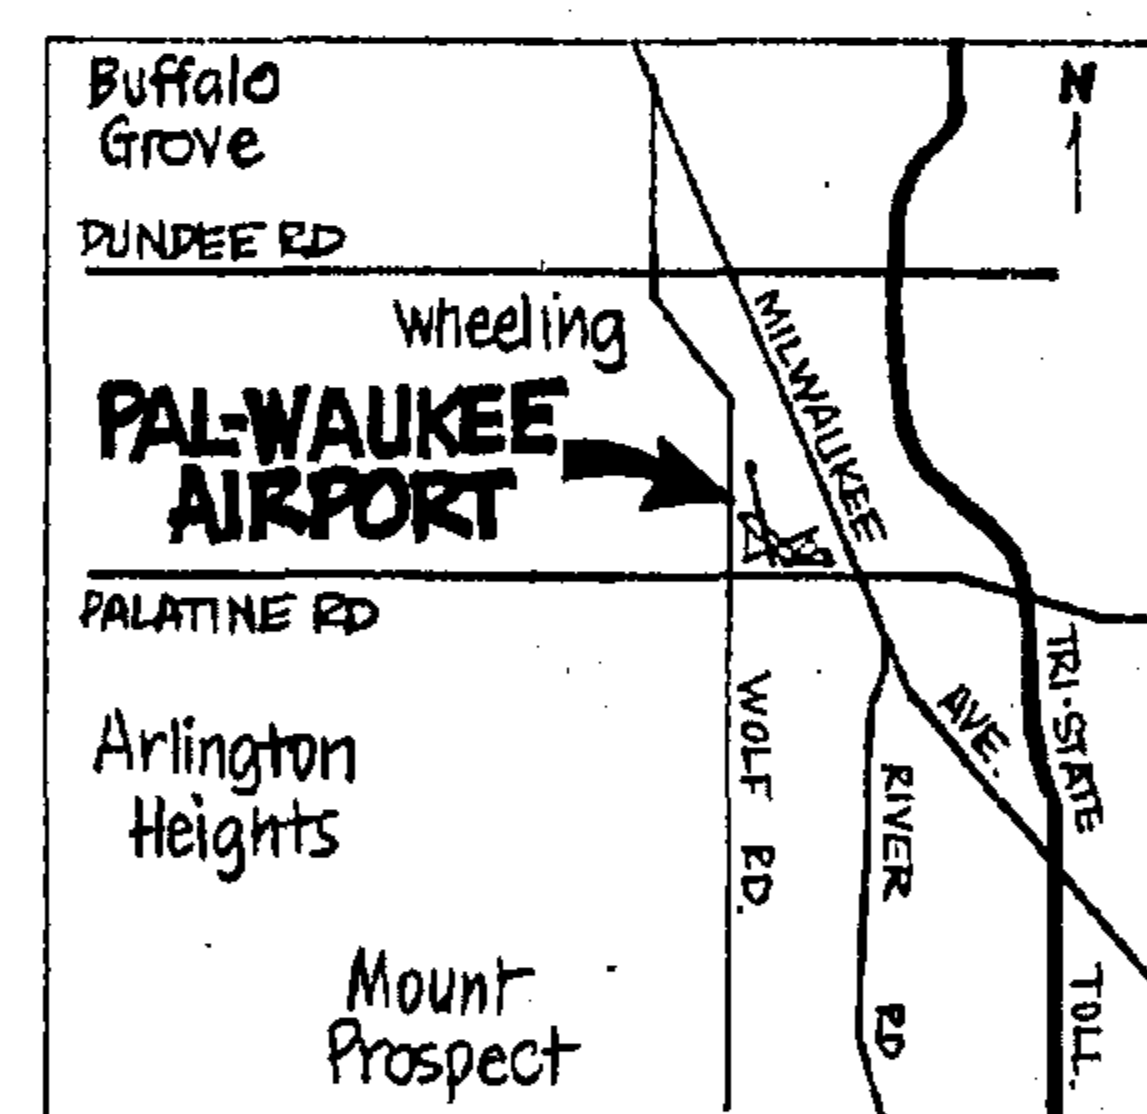

by LUISA GINETTI and DEBBE JONAK

Four persons were injured Wednesday when a small business jet attempting to land at Pal-Waukee Airport in Prospect Heights crashed into an equipment dealership after skidding across a runway and striking two cars on Palatine Road.

The Saberliner jet owned by Rockwell International Inc. with two persons aboard crashed into the Lewis International Inc. building, 55 E. Palatine Rd. shortly before 2 p.m.

Injured in the crash and taken to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines were the pilot, John Pilato, 49, of Ambridge, Pa.; the co-pilot, Ted Chitanvar, 32, of McKees Rock, Pa.; an employee at the building, Richard Pankratz, 22, of 1500 Seven Pine St., Schaumburg, and Richard F. Bauer, 32, of 821 Lily Ln., Palatine, driver of an auto struck by the plane. Dennis Van Ewyck, 25, of Elmhurst, was the driver of the other car. He was not injured.

HOSPITAL OFFICIALS reported Bauer and Pilato were released Wednesday afternoon. Chitanvar was listed in good condition with lacerations.

ations. Pankratz was reported in intensive care with lacerations on the face and arms.

Hospital officials said Pankratz, an employee who was in the building when the 47-foot plane plowed through the front wall, was in stable condition and was kept overnight for observation.

Cornelius Quill, investigating officer with the Cook County Sheriff's police, said the plane's jets failed to reverse, forcing the pilot to rely on his brakes for the landing.

The plane made three attempts to land on the runway adjacent to Palatine Road, west of Milwaukee Avenue, Federal Aviation Administration officials said.

ON THE THIRD attempt, the plane's brakes locked after the engines failed to reverse. The plane skidded the length of the runway onto the grass, bounced over Palatine Road, striking two westbound cars and then crashed nose first into the front of the building.

The plane, its tail and left wing section protruding from the building, stopped three-quarters of the way into the parts section of the building, crumbling the east wall.

Wheeling Fire Chief Bernie Koepen said that when firefighters arrived at the scene both Pilato and Chitanvar were free from the wreckage, stunned but apparently not seriously hurt.

Employees in the building said they heard a crash and ran out of the building when the plane came barreling into it. Nineteen employees were evacuated from the building including Pete Lewis, the owner.

"I don't remember what happened," Lewis said. "There was no explosion, thank God, or we all would have been gone. It was just a loud crash."

Fire officials made no attempt to move the wreckage but worked quickly to drain the plane of the 700 gallons of jet fuel in its tanks. Water hoses also were used to wash down the plane and channel leaking gasoline from inside the building to the street.

Koeppen said there was no immediate damage estimate to the building.

FAA officials arrived on the scene within an hour of the 2 p.m. crash. Koeppen said the plane would not be moved until today, and Wheeling fire and police officials were scheduled to monitor the area over night.

Cook County Sheriff's Police and Illinois State Police directed traffic on Palatine Road as onlookers caused traffic tie-ups. The site of the building is immediately south of the Milwaukee Avenue exit on eastbound Palatine Road.

FAA officials said the plane, based in Pittsburgh, was on a flight from Pontiac, Mich.

Pilato declined to comment following his release from the hospital.

Swooping descent lasts only seconds

by LINDA PUNCH

"I saw it for just an instant. Then it hit my car. I saw the plane and I knew it was going to hit."

That's how Dennis Van Ewyck, a carpeting salesman from Elmhurst, described the Wednesday afternoon crash of a Saberliner jet near Pal-Waukee Airport. Van Ewyck was driving west on Palatine Road south of the airport when he saw the plane.

"There was no way to avoid it. I instinctively put my head down. I heard a crash and as I looked up, I could see that my back window was knocked out," he said.

VAN EWYCK, 25, said the impact of the crash pushed his late-model, blue Buick LeSabre across the road, where it stopped several hundred yards later.

"It was all over in a matter of seconds. The right wing was over the car; the body of the plane fell over my trunk. I feel very lucky. I don't see how it could have been any closer," he said.

Mike Monckton, who was riding his motorcycle just behind Van Ewyck's car, said the jet hit a grass mound at the end of the runway and "skimmed the car."

"I was just about to pass the car and I saw the plane coming out of the corner of my eye. I knew he wasn't going to take off," he said.

Monckton said the plane barely missed another car, broke its landing gear on the median strip and plowed into the Lewis International Inc. building, 55 E. Palatine Rd.

"I went across to the building and there was a guy crawling out of the plane. We found a board and carried him away from the side of the plane. It was too much. I couldn't believe it," he said.

MONCKTON OF GLENVIEW said the "only loud noise was when the plane shattered that guy's windshield. I can't believe anybody crawled out of there (the plane) alive," he said.

Steve Rothbart, a pilot, said he was visiting a sign shop at the neighboring Palwaukee Center for Industry "when I heard the crash."

"This guy came out of the side of the building and rolled over. I thought there was still somebody left but he came through the wall," he said.

Judge grants duo's plea for death

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Two confessed murderers who demanded they be sentenced to death in the electric chair got their wish Wednesday after the district attorney suggested "maybe they could flip a coin to see who goes first — or sit in each other's lap."

Circuit Judge Joseph Hocklander sentenced the defendants, Wayne Eugene Ritter, 23, and John Louis Evans, 27, both of Indianapolis, Ind., to die at Holman Prison on or before July 25.

Both acknowledged their roles in the slaying of pawn shop operator Edward A. Nassar Jr. Jan. 5 and threatened reprisals against any juror who failed to recommend the death sentence.

THE JURY RETURNED the conviction Tuesday afternoon and Hocklander held a hearing Wednesday to determine whether there were mitigating circumstances warranting a reduction of the death sentence recommended by the panel.

Neither defendant would allow his court-appointed attorney to present arguments during the hearing and Hocklander ordered the executions be carried out.

Alabama law provides automatic review by the State Supreme Court for capital punishment cases and Dist. Atty. Charles Graddick said he has asked chief Justice C. C. Torbert to expedite the appeal.

Ritter, testifying over objections of his defense attorney, told the jury it had "no other choice" than execution.

"If you give me life imprisonment I'll be out in 10 or 15 years," he said. "I know where you live, and I wouldn't appreciate spending that much time in prison."

"I'd have to come after you," he said.

GRADDICK, who agreed with the defendants that they should be put to death, told the jury of 11 men and one woman: "It is a shame we only have one electric chair. Maybe they could flip a coin and see who goes first, or sit on each other's lap."

The panel deliberated only 17 minutes before returning the guilty verdict. The one-day trial was the first capital case in Alabama to be filmed by television crews and recorded by radio stations.

The two men were accused of shooting Nassar in the presence of his 6- and 9-year-old daughters after entering his pawn shop and asking to see a gun.

Nassar's widow, dressed in black, sat near the rear of the courtroom during the trial.

Nixon talks freely on Frost show

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Richard Nixon's reactions on camera to pointed questions by television personality David Frost ranged from pleasure to discomfort, according to Marvin Minoff, vice president of Frost's Paradine Co.

"Sometimes Nixon was pleased with an answer he gave and showed it," Minoff said. "Sometimes he appeared uncomfortable. But he did not refuse point blank to answer any question put to him."

Minoff said he has been meeting with the former president off and on for almost two years in preparing the groundwork for the four 90-minute television interviews conducted by Frost during the past month.

THE SHOWS WILL be telecast by some 135 stations across the country beginning May 4 and continuing at weekly intervals May 12, May 19 and May 25.

Minoff, who was present at 11 of the 12 Frost-Nixon taping sessions, said "Nixon was cordial with me and David and the people of the crew."

"Once the cameras were going he was able to concentrate without any trouble. He's not a man who shows his feelings easily. Over the two years I've been talking to him, he seems a bit stronger now. He wasn't the man we saw on TV during Watergate."

Housing panel drops development plan for seniors

Based on the low response to its recent survey, the Des Plaines Housing Commission Wednesday night decided not to recommend construction of a downtown housing development for middle-income senior citizens. The commission instead will recommend Mayor-elect Herbert H. Volberding direct it to investigate a rent-subsidy program for the elderly.

In January, the commission sent out questionnaires to 3,200 residents over 65 to try to determine whether there is a need here for moderate-income housing for senior citizens.

ABOUT 40 PER CENT of those responding said they would move to a low-rent housing development subsidized by the city if it were available, according to the final report on the survey released Wednesday.

About 13 per cent of those who received the questionnaire returned it. It was the informal consensus of the commission that the results show a lack of interest in the city housing project.

"That's not a bad response, but it doesn't indicate a groundswell of support saying, 'Yes, we want it,'" commission chairman Harold Harvey said.

Samuel Tapson, Des Plaines senior citizen coordinator, said the low response was due to confusion over how to fill out the form. He said he received numerous calls from persons who said they didn't know how to answer the financial questions.

"I FOUND MYSELF," that there was a problem with the form. I'm wondering if they knew how to fill it out. That may have had some effect on the number of people responding to it," Tapson said.

"Anyone who was really interested in the project would have filled out some part of it," Harvey said.

The Henrich House, 1301 Ashland Ave., currently is the only housing project designed for senior citizens. It does not admit applicants who earn more than $5,400 a year.

"We know we've got about 4,000 senior citizens in Des Plaines and that many of these people probably need some help," Harvey said.

He said he thought the city's money probably could be spent best in subsidizing senior citizens who are having trouble meeting rent payments, instead of building a new "quasi-institutional structure" to house them.

thing right now." "We're in total darkness as to who these people are and what they're doing," Ald. Alan Abrams, 8th, chairman of the city code and judiciary committee, said.

KISSLINGER SAID the city council always investigates a company before they hire it.

"Usually you have more than one company under consideration," he said.

Hug said the mayor may authorize expenditures up to $3,000, but that ultimately the city council must approve any contract.

If the council decides not to pay for the study, Hug said the courts could make Volberding personally liable for the expense.

RONAN SAID THE study should be in Volberding's hands early next week. He said it is a transition report aimed at telling Volberding what problems he faces in the individual departments, what sort of budget situation he has inherited and what decisions he will be faced with immediately. Ronan said the report will include recommendations for action.

"Mr. Volberding has said he is not going to make any replacements at first. He does need people to come in and evaluate the situation," Ronan said. He said the report will concentrate heavily on budget projections for the future.

"We're going ahead in good faith to do the work, even though we don't have a contract," he said.

RONAN SAID this initial study would probably cost "less than $3,000." He said the cost would be more if Volberding decides to continue the study in greater depth.

He admitted that as mayor-elect, Volberding has no real authority to hire a consultant.

"He's kind of betwixt and between. He has no authority, but come Monday he's going to have the responsibility for the city," he said.

Air Force to burn at sea defoliant used in Vietnam

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Air Force announced Wednesday it has at last found a way to get rid of a herbicide used in the controversial Vietnam war defoliation raids and will soon start burning the chemical at sea.

The state of Mississippi, where part of the 2.3 million gallons of the herbicide known as "Orange" is stored, will presumably be glad to see the unwanted stockpiles go.

ENVIRONMENTALISTS and anti-war groups denounced the defoliation. Tests showed the chemical caused birth defects in laboratory animals and "may be capable of doing the same thing to people," according to a spokesman for the Environmental Protection Agency.

It was banned from further use in April, 1970, and the Air Force stored about a third of its remaining supplies outdoors in oil drums at a naval base in Gulfport, Miss.

Since the 70 ban, officials said, the Air Force has been trying to find an acceptable way to get rid of the herbicide.

IT FIRST CONSIDERED selling it to foreign countries, but decided it would hurt the U. S. image. Officials to modify "Orange" chemically, filter, bury it, or the earth and burn it on a remote site and discarded.

Now, in a three-week operation beginning May 9, the "Orange" will be put into railroad tank cars in Mississippi, moved to a pier and transferred to the Dutch-owned tanker Vulcanus.

Officials said it will pass through a three-block long "commercial area" enroute.

The Vulcanus will sail through the Panama Canal to the Pacific Ocean, reaching an area 1,000 miles west of Hawaii in late June where it will burn the "Orange" in two special incinerators at temperatures of about 2,600 degrees Fahrenheit.

MARINE LIFE IN the area will be tested for ill effects and the air tested for residues, all goes well. The Vulcanus will work on the remaining stockpile located nearby on Johnston Island.

Glenn Wood, Mississippi antipollution official, told he hopes as much care is taken to prevent contamination during pumping and the trip to the pier in the burning operation.

"I should like to point out that 800,000 gallons of material have been stored for many years in the very center of a highly populated area immediately surrounded by recreational waters on all sides," he said.

Peabody graduate school to be created in Dist. 63

by PAM BIGFORD

A center for graduate studies run by the Peabody College for Teachers will be established in East Maine Dist. 63 in Des Plaines.

"This will give us the opportunity to serve our staff as well as the community and other districts," said James Bowen, Dist. 63 business manager.

Bowen said the Dist. 63 Board of Education Tuesday approved the center, which is scheduled to begin classes in January 1978.

BOWEN SAID teachers who want to get master's degrees or doctorates now usually have to go to Northern Illinois University in DeKalb or the National College of Education in Evanston.

Tentative plans are to hold classes in the Dist. 63 administration center, 10150 Dee Rd., Des Plaines, and to use the learning center in the attached school, Apollo Junior High, Bowen said.

Bowen said Peabody College has a main campus in Nashville, Tenn., another graduate center in New Orleans, La., and has plans to open a campus eventually in Washington, D.C. Harvard University also operates similar centers.

"Institutions of higher learning are finding they have to go outside their own physical facilities to reach students," Bowen said.

ESTABLISHMENT OF the center will cost Dist. 63 nothing, Bowen said. Peabody College will pay all costs from tuition paid by students.

Bowen said Peabody officials will be in charge of all college operations including deciding which students to accept. Plans are to enroll from 55 to 70 students the first term, he said.

"This is something we've been thinking about for a long time," Bowen said, "but we just never had the opportunity to do it until now."

Defeat of unit vote prompts rehiring of 106 in Dist. 214

High School Dist. 214 has rehired 106 of the 128 nontenured teachers who were released last month because of the "uncertainty" surrounding the Elk Grove Township unit school district question.

The Dist. 214 Board of Education Monday rehired 40 of the 57 first-year teachers who had been honorably dismissed and 66 of the 71 second-year teachers. Of the second-year teachers, 64 were granted tenure and two were put on third year probationary status.

"With the unit district question finally laid to rest we can now get back to the business of educating kids and staffing up for next year," Robert Cudney, assistant superintendent for personnel services, said.

As student enrollments in various subject areas are assessed and teacher resignations and leave requests filed, Cudney said he is confident most of the 22 probationary teachers "on hold" will be rehired.

"They're all excellent teachers," he said. "There was never any question about their performance."

The board dismissed the 128 nontenured teachers because officials were unsure whether an Elk Grove Township unit school district would be formed and how many teachers from Elk Grove and Forest View high schools would remain with Dist. 214 if voters approved the unit district.

Dist. 214 attorneys said they were unsure of the district's legal responsibility if more tenured teachers than could be accommodated chose to stay with the high school district rather than go with the unit district.

According to state law, teachers who are going to be dismissed at the end of the term must be given 60 days notice.

School bell rings earlier

Students at Forest View and Rolling Meadows high schools will start school 10 minutes earlier next year.

To optimize the use of buses, the Dist. 214 board voted to have the Forest View students begin school at 7:40 rather than 7:50 a.m. and to have the Rolling Meadows students start class at 8:20 rather than 8:40 a.m.

Starting times at the district's six other high schools will remain the same for the 1977-78 school year. Arlington High will begin at 8:20 a.m.; Prospect, Hersey and Wheeling high schools at 7:50 a.m.; Elk Grove High School at 8 a.m.; and Buffalo Grove High School at 8:40 a.m.

Bill to pay witnesses in delayed cases urged

A bill that would seek to protect trial witnesses from lengthy court delays by paying them for unwarranted continuances has been introduced by State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston.

Porter's proposal, now before the House judiciary committee, would give the court discretion to assess against delaying attorneys a $25 penalty to be paid to witnesses who repeatedly appeared in court only to learn a case would be delayed.

"It's about time that the law gives some recognition to the rights of witnesses," Porter, an attorney, said. He said the bill would provide a "mechanism to penalize the unscrupulous lawyer who would use this type of delay to discourage attendance of opposing witnesses."

"I THINK WITNESSES are victimized by our courts," Porter said. He said attorneys will seek repeated delays in both criminal and civil cases as a "tactic simply to wear down the witnesses" so that a case might be eventually dropped.

Clive Tobol, assistant counsel for the Illinois State Bar Assn., Tuesday said the association has not considered the bill and has adopted no stand on it.

Porter said he has received no feedback from attorneys or bar associations on the bill, but added, "I think you can assume that attorneys in general would oppose it but the average citizen would support it."

Lengthy court delays are common in both civil and criminal cases, particularly in the state circuit court, and Porter Tuesday said the pattern "is not getting any better to my knowledge."

"THERE SEEMS TO be no strong incentive to provide some limitation on the number of times (continuances) can be taken," he said. He said the State Supreme Court could take steps to deal with the problem of continuances but that action has not come because judges are reluctant to put limitations on attorneys.

"The difficulty is that judges deal with lawyers every day," he said. "The lawyers are their audience and they are the ones that rate them and many people use those ratings at retention time."

Porter said if the bill fails he will support another measure to pay witnesses $15 for each day in court, the money to come from county funds. He added, however, such legislation "would be a real fall-back position" since it proposes using tax money to pay witnesses.

4 injured in area jet crash

and DEBBE JONAK

Four persons were injured Wednesday when a small business jet attempting to land at Pal-Waukee Airport in Prospect Heights crashed into an equipment dealership after skidding across a runway and striking two cars on Palatine Road.

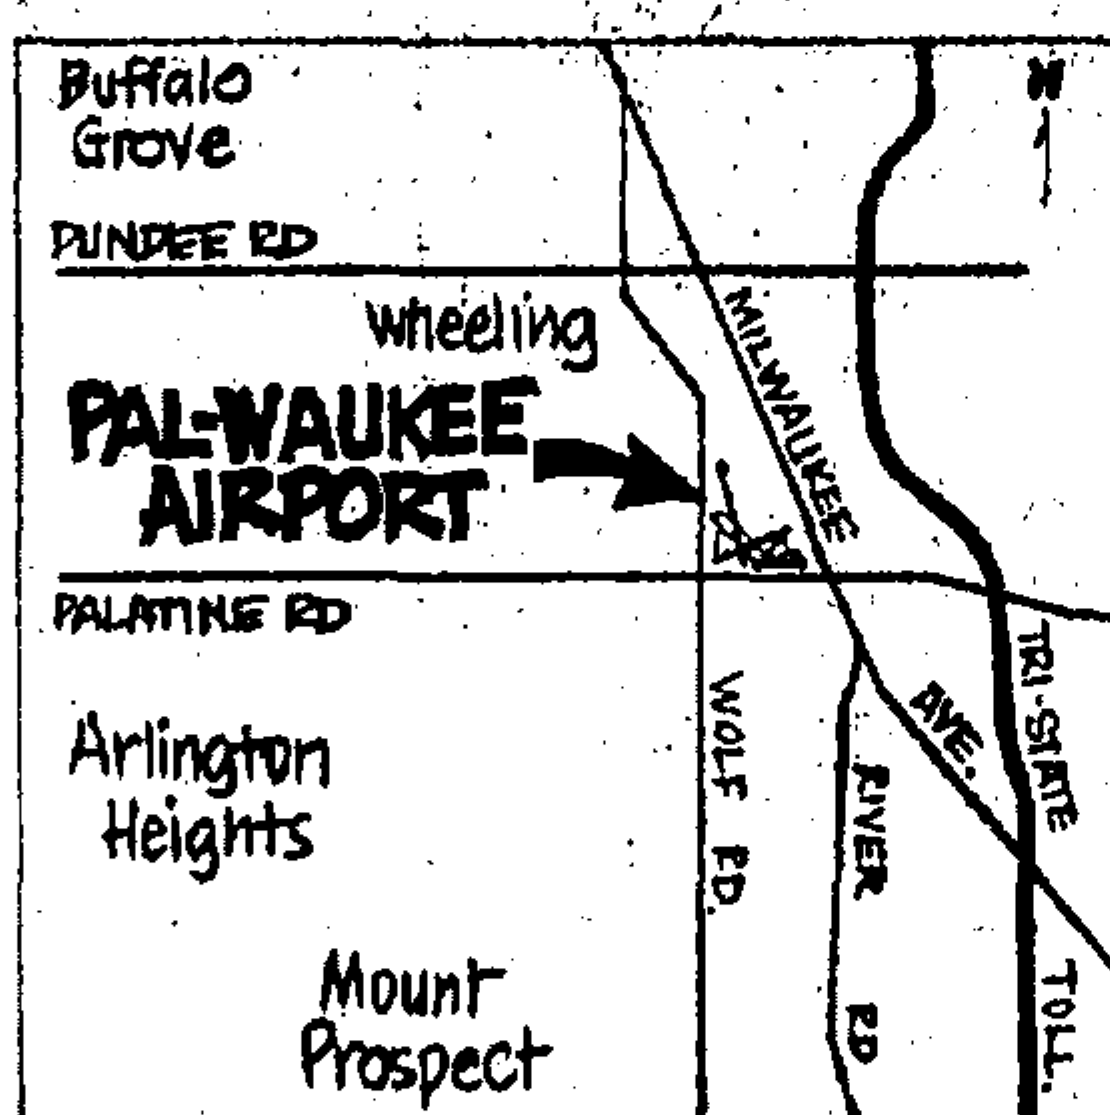

The Sabreliner jet owned by Rockwell International Inc. with two persons aboard crashed into the Lewis International Inc. building, 55 E. Palatine Rd. shortly before 2 p.m.

Injured in the crash and taken to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines were the pilot, John Pilato, 49, of Ambridge, Pa.; the co-pilot, Ted Chitanvar, 32, of McKees Rock, Pa.; an employee at the building, Richard Pankratz, 22, of 1500 Seven Pine St., Schaumburg, and Richard F. Bauer, 32, of 821 Lily Ln., Palatine, driver of an auto struck by the plane. Dennis Van Ewyck, 25, of Elmhurst, was the driver of the other car. He was not injured.

HOSPITAL OFFICIALS reported Bauer and Pilato were released Wednesday afternoon. Chitanvar was listed in good condition with lacerations. Pankratz was reported in intensive care with lacerations on the face and arms.

Hospital officials said Pankratz, an employee who was in the building when the 47-foot-plane plowed through the front wall, was in stable condition and was kept overnight for observation.

Cornelius Quill, investigating officer with the Cook County Sheriff's police, said the plane's jets failed to reverse, forcing the pilot to rely on his brakes for the landing.

The plane made three attempts to land on the runway adjacent to Palatine Road, west of Milwaukee Avenue, Federal Aviation Administration officials said.

ON THE THIRD attempt, the plane's brakes locked after the engines failed to reverse. The plane skidded the length of the runway onto the grass, bounced over Palatine Road, striking two westbound cars and then crashed nose first into the front of the building.

The plane, its tail and left wing section protruding from the building, stopped three-quarters of the way into the parts section of the building, crumbling the east wall.

Wheeling Fire Chief Bernie Koepfen said that when firefighters arrived at the scene both Pilato and Chitanvar were free from the wreckage, stunned but apparently not seriously hurt.

Employees in the building said they heard a crash and ran out of the building when the plane came barreling into it. Nineteen employees were vacated from the building including Pete Lewis, the owner.

"I don't remember what happened," Lewis said. "There was no explosion, thank God, or we all would have been gone. It was just a loud crash."

Fire officials made no attempt to move the wreckage but worked quickly to drain the plane of the 700 gallons of jet fuel in its tanks. Water hoses also were used to wash down the plane and channel leaking gasoline from inside the building to the street.

Koepfen said there was no immediate damage estimate to the building.

FAA officials arrived on the scene within an hour of the 2 p.m. crash. Koepfen said the plane would not be moved until today, and Wheeling fire and police officials were scheduled to monitor the area over night.

Cook County Sheriff's Police and Illinois State Police directed traffic on Palatine Road as onlookers caused traffic tie-ups. The site of the building is immediately south of the Milwaukee Avenue exit on eastbound Palatine Road.

FAA officials said the plane, based in Pittsburgh, was on a flight from Pontiac, Mich.

Pilato declined to comment following his release from the hospital.

Plane's swooping descent over 'in matter of seconds'

by LINDA PUNCH

"I saw it for just an instant. Then it hit my car. I saw the plane and I knew it was going to hit."

That's how Dennis Van Ewyck, a carpeting salesman from Elmhurst, described the Wednesday afternoon crash of a Sabreliner jet near Pal-Waukee Airport. Van Ewyck was driving west on Palatine Road south of the airport when he saw the plane.

"There was no way to avoid it. I instinctively put my head down. I heard a crash and as I looked up, I could see that my back window was knocked out," he said.

VAN EWYCK, 25, said the impact of the crash pushed his late-model, blue Buick LeSabre across the road, where it stopped several hundred yards later.

"It was all over in a matter of seconds. The right wing was over the car; the body of the plane fell over my trunk. I feel very lucky. I don't see how it could have been any closer," he said.

Mike Monckton, who was riding his motorcycle just behind Van Ewyck's car, said the jet hit a grass mound at the end of the runway and "skimmed

the car."

"I was just about to pass the car and I saw the plane coming out of the corner of my eye. I knew he wasn't going to take off," he said.

Monckton said the plane barely missed another car, broke its landing gear on the median strip and plowed into the Lewis International Inc. building, 55 E. Palatine Rd.

"I went across to the building and there was a guy crawling out of the plane. We found a board and carried him away from the side of the plane. It was too much. I couldn't believe it," he said.

MONCKTON OF GLENVIEW said the "only loud noise was when the plane shattered that guy's windshield. I can't believe anybody crawled out of there (the plane) alive," he said.

Steve Rothbart, a pilot, said he was visiting a sign shop at the neighboring Pal-Waukee Center for Industry "when I heard the crash."

"This guy came out of the side of the building and rolled over. I thought there was still somebody left but he came through the wall," he said.

Judge grants duo's plea for death

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Two confessed murderers who demanded they be sentenced to death in the electric chair got their wish Wednesday after the district attorney suggested "maybe they could flip a coin to see who goes first — or sit in each other's lap."

Circuit Judge Joseph Hocklander sentenced the defendants, Wayne Eugene Ritter, 23, and John Louis Evans, 27, both of Indianapolis, Ind., to die at Holman Prison on or before July 25.

Both acknowledged their roles in the slaying of pawn shop operator Edward A. Nassar Jr. Jan. 5 and threatened reprisals against any juror who failed to recommend the death sentence.

THE JURY RETURNED the conviction Tuesday afternoon and Hocklander held a hearing Wednesday to determine whether there were mitigating circumstances warranting a reduction of the death sentence recommended by the panel.

Neither defendant would allow his court-appointed attorney to present arguments during the hearing and Hocklander ordered the executions be carried out.

Alabama law provides automatic review by the State Supreme Court for capital punishment cases and Dist. Atty. Charles Graddick said he has asked chief Justice C. C. Torbert to expedite the appeal.

Ritter, testifying over objections of his defense attorney, told the jury it had "no other choice" than execution. "If you give me life imprisonment I'll be out in 10 or 15 years," he said.

"I know where you live, and I wouldn't appreciate spending that much time in prison."

"I'd have to come after you," he said.

GRADDICK, who agreed with the defendants that they should be put to death, told the jury of 11 men and one woman: "It is a shame we only have one electric chair. Maybe they could flip a coin and see who goes first, or sit on each other's lap."

The panel deliberated only 17 minutes before returning the guilty verdict. The one-day trial was the first capital case in Alabama to be filmed by television crews and recorded by radio stations.

The two men were accused of shooting Nassar in the presence of his 6- and 8-year-old daughters after entering his pawn shop and asking to see a gun.

Nassar's widow, dressed in black, sat near the rear of the courtroom during the trial.

Nixon talks freely on Frost show

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Richard Nixon's reactions on camera to pointed questions by television personality David Frost ranged from pleasure to discomfort, according to Marvin Minoff, vice president of Frost's Paradine Co.

"Sometimes Nixon was pleased with an answer he gave and showed it," Minoff said. "Sometimes he appeared uncomfortable. But he did not refuse point blank to answer any question put to him."

Minoff said he has been meeting with the former president off and on for almost two years in preparing the groundwork for the four 90-minute television interviews conducted by Frost during the past month.

THE SHOWS WILL be telecast by some 135 stations across the country beginning May 4 and continuing at weekly intervals May 12, May 19 and May 25.

Minoff, who was present at 11 of the 12 Frost-Nixon taping sessions, said "Nixon was cordial with me and David and the people of the crew."

"Once the cameras were going he was able to concentrate without any trouble. He's not a man who shows his feelings easily. Over the two years I've been talking to him, he seems a bit stronger now. He wasn't the man we saw on TV during Watergate."

"I think the interviews are in-

Bill on Lincoln County passes in Senate committee

by STEVE BROWN
SPRINGFIELD — Legislation paving the way for Northwest suburban residents to vote on seceding from Cook County, limped out of an Illinois Senate committee on one leg Wednesday with Chicago Democrats offering only limited opposition. One bill, sponsored by State Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, was approved by the Illinois Senate Local Government Committee. The bill drastically reduces the number of signatures needed to get the so-called Lincoln County issue, a drive to take six Northwest Cook County townships out of the county, on a referendum ballot.

The committee defeated another proposal to change the size of the majority needed to have a referendum approved. Regner delayed action on a third bill. He is the chief sponsor of the package.

"LINCOLN COUNTY is still alive," Regner said after the committee session.

State Sen. Richard M. Daley,

D-Chicago, voted "present" on SB 149, which changes the petition requirements. Several other Chicago Democrats followed Daley's lead. The bill passed by a 5-2 margin with three voting present.

Chicago Democrats, however, blocked passage of the second bill, SB 150, which would have reduced the number of votes needed for passage from a majority voting in an election to a majority voting on the referendum itself.

"It's nice that (Senate Bill) 149 got through but (Senate Bill) 150 is even more of a key. If 150 does not get out of committee, we have a problem," said former Palatine Village Pres. Wendell Jones, one of the main proponents of Lincoln County.

He said he sent a mailgram to members of the Senate's local government committee Tuesday urging them to approve Senate Bill 150.

Jones said that currently if 200,000 persons cast votes in a general election and the vote on a referendum to form Lincoln County is 100,000 to 0 the measure would lose by one vote.

"THE CREATION OF a new county should be made tough but not impossible," Jones said.

Regner said SB 150 probably was more important to the ultimate passage of the Lincoln County effort, but agreed the approval of the petition bill was important to getting the proposal on the ballot.

Regner said the petition bill reduces the number of signatures required from one-half of the registered voters in the affected area to 10 per cent. He estimated the change would cut the number of signatures needed to about 21,000.

The committee action still must pass through the full Senate and Illinois House and signed by Gov. James R. Thompson before becoming law.

The lack of Democratic opposition may have been triggered by a representative for the Cook County Board to take a position on the bills.

"They asked me and I told them County Board Pres. George Dunne said he will not interfere," said Herman Knell, the county's legislative coordinator. Knell hinted Dunne's publicly announced "hands-off" approach may have influenced the Chicago Democrats. While Knell and Regner hinted the full Senate might follow the committee's lead, neither would offer any firm forecast on the fate of the bill.

Buffalo Grove parcel excluded

Bond issue on forest land sought

Acquisition of a 200-acre parcel near Buffalo Grove is not included in the Lake County Forest Preserve District's proposed $14 million land acquisition bond issue.

Roland Sandee, chairman of the land acquisition committee is considering the bond issue, said the funds would be for the purchase of 1,150 acres to finish several forest preserve district projects.

If approved, the bond issue would raise district taxes an estimated 4.5 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. The tax is now 13.2 cents per $100 as-essed valuation.

Glenn Miller of Long Grove, a member of the land acquisition committee, has been advocating the purchase of the 200-acre Buffalo Creek parcel. The parcel is next to a proposed 150-acre flood retention area to be purchased by the Metropolitan Sanitary District and deeded to the forest preserve district.

SANDEE SAID the Buffalo Creek land, adjacent to the proposed four-lane Lake-Cook Road, would be the most expensive land the district has ever purchased with an estimated cost of $2.5 million.

The forest preserve district has been pushing the MSD to come up with the money and a mutually agreeable boundary for the original parcel, but has not been successful, George Bell, forest preserve president, said.

The land to be purchased with the bond issue includes 473 acres along the Des Plaines River; 300 acres near Lake Forest; 175 acres in the Green Belt Extension forest preserve between Waukegan and North Chicago; 200 acres in Lyons Woods north of Waukegan; and about 150 acres in scattered smaller parcels.

Miller said "power politics" are involved and the committee has no criteria for acquiring land. The commission just buys land in areas to stop residential developments.

BELL SAID the land acquisition list has been well-publicized and has been in existence for several years. The purchases are supported by the people in each area, Bell said.

Sandee said, "I don't know what his feeling is, that the money will drop from the blue? We feel purchasing land is a job to do now. Land values have risen 50 per cent in the last five years, and large tracts of land are disappearing.

"The real question is whether it is good for the county and in that respect I say yes with no reservations."

Four arrested in burglary ring

Four Palatine residents, including the son of a Palatine police lieutenant, have been arrested in connection with a burglary ring believed responsible for recent break-ins at eight Northwest suburban schools.

Jeffrey Centner, 18, of 500 Rohlfing Rd., son of Police Lt. Robert Centner, former village police chief, was charged with criminal damage to state-supported land. He was released on $2,500 bond.

George Stevenson, 19, of 1321 Michèle Dr., was charged with burglary and criminal damage to property. He is being held in Cook County Jail on $20,000 bond.

Gerald Downey, 18, of 810 Wente

Ct., was charged with criminal damage to property and released on $5,000 bond.

AN UNIDENTIFIED Palatine juvenile arrested in connection with the thefts has been released to his parents' custody.

Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows and Palatine police apprehended three of the suspects a few minutes after midnight Monday when a janitor at Arlington Heights High School, 502 W. Euclid Ave., heard glass breaking and called police.

Capt. Paul Bucholz of the Arlington Heights Police Dept. said during questioning the three suspects, told police they had been involved in a recent series of school burglaries and also implicated a fourth person.

Bucholz said announcement of the arrests had been withheld until the last member of the group, Centner, was brought into the police station by his father noon Wednesday.

The three adults will have a preliminary hearing in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court today. The juvenile will be petitioned into juvenile court.

A 1968 Lincoln Continental, recovered by police from one of the suspects was turned over to the Cook County Sheriff's Dept.

BURGLARIES THE four allegedly have been implicated in include:

- John Hersey High School, 900 E. Thomas Ave., Arlington Heights, April 25.
- Edgar Allen Poe School, 2800 N. Highland Ave., Arlington Heights, April 24.
- Palatine Township School Dist. 15 administration building, 505 S. Quentin Rd., Palatine, April 23.
- William Fremd High School, 1000 Wood St., Palatine, April 23.
- Palatine High School, 150 E. Wood St., Palatine, April 23.
- Sacred Heart of Mary High School, 2800 Central Road, Rolling Meadows, April 23.
- Central Road School, 3800 Central Rd., Rolling Meadows, April 23.

Bucholz said the exact amount of property taken in any of the burglaries is unknown, although the group is believed to have taken $350 in materials from one Rolling Meadows school.

Property taken from most of the eight schools was found by police inside the car the three persons allegedly were using in Monday's interrupted burglary attempt.

Former Dist. 54 janitor gets probation in thefts

Former Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 maintenance man Lawrence Wiegele Wednesday was sentenced to five years probation and fined $500 for stealing $5,700 in district property over a period of several months.

The sentence was handed down after Wiegele, 35, formerly of 7625 Manchester Manor, Hanover Park, pleaded guilty to a felony bill of information before Cook County Associate Judge Marvin J. Peters in Des Plaines.

Wiegele had been charged with three counts of felony theft, one count of petty theft and possession of stolen property by police in Hanover Park, Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates. A police search of the Wiegele home Jan. 24 uncovered the property after authorities received a telephone call from an undisclosed informant.

All charges were consolidated into one bill of information to which Wiegele entered a plea of guilty, Peters said.

PETERS SAID Wiegele was given five years probation for several reasons.

"He (Wiegele) is the father of 10 children. Four of his own and six step-children. He has lost his job and he has moved to Minnesota. Restitution has been made in full. I am told that everything has been returned," Peters said.

The felony probation will be transferred out of state so Wiegele will be able to complete the sentence in Minnesota.

In an executive session of the Dist. 54 Board of Education Jan. 31, Wiegele was fired as a maintenance employee.

Wiegele had told police several top administrators were involved in thefts from various schools, but police investigators said the charges were unfounded.

Among the items returned to Dist. 54 were a trampoline, tape recorders, a mixmaster, paint, tables, a television, tools, a drum set, books, toys, chairs, musical instruments and an ice cream maker.

DeLuca wept at arrest: cop

Frank DeLuca, accused slayer of an Elk Grove Village family, wept when police arrested him, accused him of the murders and confronted him with evidence, a police detective testified Wednesday.

Lt. Frank Braun of the Cook County Sheriff's police took the witness stand Wednesday in Cook County Circuit Court, and told how police apprehended and questioned DeLuca on July 17, 1976.

Braun testified at a pretrial hearing on a motion by DeLuca's defense attorney, Michael J. Toomin, to quash DeLuca's arrest and suppress statements he gave to police.

DELUCA, 39, AND Patricia Columbo, 20, are charged with the May 4, 1976 slayings of Miss Columbo's parents, Frank and Mary Columbo and her brother, Michael, 13, of 55 Brantwood Dr., Elk Grove Village.

Police arrested and charged Miss Columbo with the slayings May 15, 1976. Police arrested DeLuca two months later after a Cook County Grand Jury July 16 indicted him in the killings.

Braun said DeLuca offered no resistance when police arrested him at his apartment at 502 Ardmore Ave., Villa Park. Police transported DeLuca to the Elk Grove Village police station where he was questioned.

Speaking about DeLuca's statements, Braun said, "He was surprised it took us so long to arrest him because he knew he was going down on it."

Braun said police showed DeLuca photographs of handprints investigators had found on a Columbo family car investigators recovered on Chicago's West Side shortly after the May killings. The recovery of the stolen auto led to the discovery of the bodies of the Columbo family May 7, 1976.

THE HAND PRINTS reportedly are those of a man who is missing a finger on his left hand, police have said. DeLuca is missing one finger and part of another on his left hand as a result of a parachuting accident.

DeLuca told police, "Well, they ain't mine," Braun said. When pressed about the hand prints, DeLuca began to cry, Braun said.

Next pretrial hearing is 10 a.m. today in Judge R. Eugene Pincham's courtroom in the Cook County Criminal Courts building, 28th Street and California Avenue, Chicago.

Advanced degrees for teachers

Grad school slated for Dist. 63

by PAM BIGFORD
A center for graduate studies run by the Peabody College for Teachers will be established in East Maine Dist. 63 in Des Plaines.

"This will give us the opportunity to serve our staff as well as the community and other districts," said James Bowen, Dist. 63 business manager.

Bowen said the Dist. 63 Board of Education Tuesday approved the center, which is scheduled to begin classes in January 1978.

BOWEN SAID teachers who want to get master's degrees or doctorates now usually have to go to Northern Illinois University in DeKalb or the National College of Education in Evanston.

Tentative plans are to hold classes in the Dist. 63 administration center, 10150 Dee Rd., Des Plaines, and to use the learning center in the attached school, Apollo Junior High, Bowen said.

Bowen said Peabody College has a main campus in Nashville, Tenn., another graduate center in New Orleans, La., and has plans to open a campus eventually in Washington, D.C. Harvard University also operates similar centers.

"Institutions of higher learning are finding they have to go outside their own physical facilities to reach students," Bowen said.

ESTABLISHMENT OF the center will cost Dist. 63 nothing, Bowen said. Peabody College will pay all costs from tuition paid by students.

Bowen said Peabody officials will be in charge of all college operations including deciding which students to accept. Plans are to enroll from 55 to 70 students the first term, he said.

"This is something we've been thinking about for a long time," Bowen said, "but we just never had the opportunity to do it until now."

Loss of unit vote prompts Dist. 214 rehiring of 106

High School Dist. 214 has rehired 106 of the 128 nontenured teachers who were released last month because of the "uncertainty" surrounding the Elk Grove Township unit school district question.

The Dist. 214 Board of Education Monday rehired 40 of the 57 first-year teachers who had been honorably dismissed and 66 of the 71 second-year teachers. Of the second-year teachers, 64 were granted tenure and two were put on third year probationary status.

"With the unit district question finally laid to rest we can now get back to the business of educating kids and staffing up for next year," Robert Cudney, assistant superintendent for personnel services, said.

As student enrollments in various subject areas are assessed and teacher resignations and leave requests filed, Cudney said he is confident most of the 22 probationary teachers "on hold" will be rehired.

"They're all excellent teachers," he said. "There was never any question about their performance."

The board dismissed the 128 nontenured teachers because officials were unsure whether an Elk Grove Township unit school district would be formed and how many teachers from Elk Grove and Forest View high schools would remain with Dist. 214 if voters approved the unit district.

Dist. 214 attorneys said they were unsure of the district's legal responsibility if more tenured teachers than could be accommodated chose to stay with the high school district rather than go with the unit district.

According to state law, teachers who are going to be dismissed at the end of the term must be given 60 days notice.

School bell rings earlier

Students at Forest View and Rolling Meadows high schools will start school 10 minutes earlier next year.

To optimize the use of buses, the Dist. 214 board voted to have the Forest View students begin school at 7:40 rather than 7:50 a.m. and to have the Rolling Meadows students start class at 8:20 rather than 8:40 a.m.

Starting times at the district's six other high schools will remain the same for the 1977-78 school year. Arlington High will begin at 8:20 a.m.; Prospect, Hersey and Wheeling high schools at 7:50 a.m.; Elk Grove High School at 8 a.m.; and Buffalo Grove High School at 8:40 a.m.

Bill to pay witnesses in delayed cases urged

A bill that would seek to protect trial witnesses from lengthy court delays by paying them for unwarranted continuances has been introduced by State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston.

Porter's proposal, now before the House judiciary committee, would give the court discretion to assess against delaying attorneys a $25 penalty to be paid to witnesses who repeatedly appeared in court only to learn a case would be delayed.

"It's about time that the law gives some recognition to the rights of witnesses," Porter, an attorney, said. He said the bill would provide a "mechanism to penalize the unscrupulous lawyer who would use this type of delay to discourage attendance of opposing witnesses."

"I THINK WITNESSES are victimized by our courts," Porter said. He said attorneys will seek repeated delays in both criminal and civil cases as a "tactic simply to wear down the witnesses" so that a case might be eventually dropped.

Clive Tobol, assistant counsel for the Illinois State Bar Assn., Tuesday said the association has not considered the bill and has adopted no stand on it.

Porter said he has received no feedback from attorneys or bar associations on the bill, but added, "I think you can assume that attorneys in general would oppose it but the average citizen would support it."

Lengthy court delays are common in both civil and criminal cases, particularly in the state circuit court, and Porter Tuesday said the pattern "is not getting any better to my knowledge."

"THERE SEEMS TO be no strong incentive to provide some limitation on the number of times (continuances) can be taken," he said. He said the State Supreme Court could take steps to deal with the problem of continuances but that action has not come because judges are reluctant to put limitations on attorneys.

"The difficulty is that judges deal with lawyers every day," he said. "The lawyers are their audience and they are the ones that rate them and many people use those ratings at retention time."

Porter said if the bill fails he will support another measure to pay witnesses $15 for each day in court, the money to come from county funds. He added, however, such legislation "would be a real fall-back position" since it proposes using tax money to pay witnesses.

New evidence may reopen Lindbergh case

NEW YORK (UPI) — A New York author and a Florida handwriting expert claim they have new evidence which proves Bruno Richard Hauptmann was innocent of the 1932 kidnap-murder of the Lindbergh baby and are requesting New Jersey Gov. Brendan Byrne reopen the case.

Anthony Scaduto, author of "SCA-PEGOAT," said Wednesday that he has new police and FBI documents not mentioned in his book, which prove that Hauptmann was "innocent and the victim of a judicial murder."

Hauptmann was convicted and executed for the kidnap-murder of the 2-year-old son of aviator Charles A. Lindbergh.

ACCORDING TO handwriting expert Hilda Zaenglein Schaffer of Clearwater, Fla., who examined the Lindbergh ransom notes during Hauptmann's trial, the notes were forged and showed "overwritings" indicating that someone had tampered with them to make them appear like Hauptmann's writing.

Mrs. Schaffer said in a letter to

Gov. Byrne that Hauptmann could not have made the overwritings himself because they were done with a different blend of ink or were done at a much later period.

Scaduto said that many people involved in the case were part of a cover-up because they do not want to go against "the established wisdom."

"And also, telling people from the 1930s that Hauptmann isn't guilty is like telling them to give up a part of their childhood. They'd say: 'If this isn't true then what else do I have left from my childhood.'"

SCADUTO SAID virtually every piece of physical evidence introduced at the trial linking Hauptmann to various aspects of the crime, was either tampered with or manufactured.

According to Scaduto, the FBI and police have hundreds of documents that have been suppressed which cast much doubt on the entire trial.

Hauptmann's widow, Anna, has also requested that Gov. Byrne reopen the case "to vindicate my husband and clear our name."

Riders take to A Train as Duke's tribute

NEW YORK (UPI) — Harlem subway riders shouting "Soup me up! Soup me up!" joined Duke Ellington's old band aboard the A Train Wednesday for a frenetic nostalgia trip in tribute to the late, great musician.

To the delight of surprised passengers the band broke into "Take the A Train" as the subway roared into the 125th Street Station near the old Apollo Theatre and other Harlem nightspots that helped launch Ellington to greatness.

The riders climbed atop seats, clapped their hands and chanted "Do it, do it," when the four musicians hauled their instruments aboard the middle car, which police had tried in vain to empty.

"DUKE WOULD have loved this," said Arnold J. Smith of New York, a passenger who claimed to be an authority on Ellington, who would have celebrated his 78th birthday this Friday. "He loved trains."

Actually it was a publicity stunt for a Manhattan jazz spot called Storyville where the band is playing a gig. But a couple of Ellington myths were dispelled.

"Actually Duke always told me and mama to take a cab after we moved up here from Washington," confided Ellington's sister, Ruth.

Even the publicity agent said he did not know that "Take the A Train" was written by Ellington's co-composer and co-arranger, Billy Strayhorn, who died in 1967.

"In our opinion the difference between brand name drugs and top quality generic products is price."

If your doctor will prescribe generic drugs, you can save up to 50% on some prescriptions at Medicare Pharmacies in Missouri and Illinois.

Everyone is concerned about the cost of medication. Medicare Pharmacies is doing something about it. Here's how.

Many drugs are sold two ways: by a brand or trade name, or by a generic name which is the product's chemical name. There should be no chemical difference between a brand name drug and a top quality generic. But brand name drugs cost drug companies more to sample and promote, so they cost you more to buy.

Medicare Pharmacies now stock some 160 different generics, some of which cost you up to 50% less than brand names.

Not all brand name drugs have a generic equivalent, but ask your physician about using generics for your next prescription. LET HIM BE YOUR GUIDE. If he agrees to prescribe a generic drug, come in or call any Medicare Pharmacy and see how much you can save. At your request, Medicare pharmacists will call your doctor for you.

4 injured in area jet crash

by LUISA GINETTI and DEBBE JONAK

Four persons were injured Wednesday when a small business jet attempting to land at Pal-Waukee Airport in Prospect Heights crashed into an equipment dealership after skidding across a runway and striking two cars on Palatine Road.

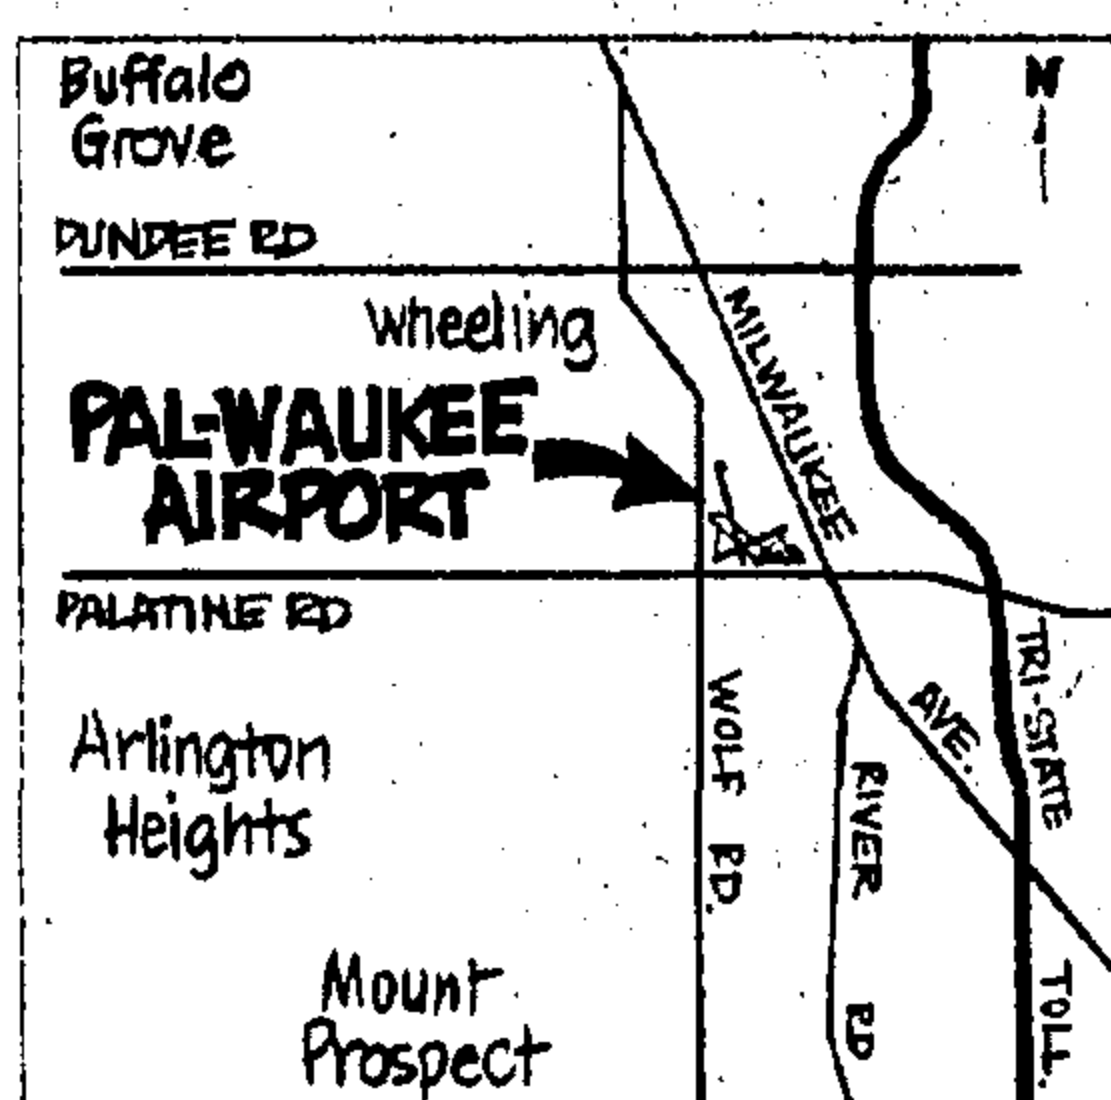

The Sabreliner jet owned by Rockwell International Inc. with two persons aboard crashed into the Lewis International Inc. building, 55 E. Palatine Rd. shortly before 2 p.m.

Injured in the crash and taken to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines were the pilot, John Pilato, 49, of Ambridge, Pa.; the co-pilot, Ted Chitanvar, 32, of McKees Rock, Pa.; an employee at the building, Richard Pankratz, 22, of 1500 Seven Pine St., Schaumburg, and Richard F. Bauer, 32, of 821 Lily Ln., Palatine, driver of an auto struck by the plane. Dennis Van Ewyck, 25, of Elmhurst, was the driver of the other car. He was not injured.

HOSPITAL OFFICIALS reported Bauer and Pilato were released Wednesday afternoon. Chitanvar was listed in good condition with lacerations. Pankratz was reported in intensive care with lacerations on the face and arms.

Hospital officials said Pankratz, an employee who was in the building when the 47-foot plane plowed through the front wall, was in stable condition and was kept overnight for observation.

Cornelius Quill, investigating officer with the Cook County Sheriff's police, said the plane's jets failed to reverse, forcing the pilot to rely on his brakes for the landing.

The plane made three attempts to land on the runway adjacent to Palatine Road, west of Milwaukee Avenue, Federal Aviation Administration officials said.

ON THE THIRD attempt, the plane's brakes locked after the engines failed to reverse. The plane skidded the length of the runway onto the grass, bounced over Palatine Road, striking two westbound cars and then crashed nose first into the front of the building.

The plane, its tail and left wing section protruding from the building, stopped three-quarters of the way into the parts section of the building, crumbling the east wall.

Wheeling Fire Chief Bernie Koepfen said that when firefighters arrived at the scene both Pilato and Chitanvar were free from the wreckage, stunned but apparently not seriously hurt.

Employees in the building said they heard a crash and ran out of the building when the plane came barreling into it. Nineteen employees were evacuated from the building including Pete Lewis, the owner.

"I don't remember what happened," Lewis said. "There was no explosion, thank God, or we all would have been gone. It was just a loud crash."

Fire officials made no attempt to move the wreckage but worked quickly to drain the plane of the 700 gallons of jet fuel in its tanks. Water hoses also were used to wash down the plane and channel leaking gasoline from inside the building to the street.

Koepfen said there was no immediate damage estimate to the building.

FAA officials arrived on the scene within an hour of the 2 p.m. crash. Koepfen said the plane would not be moved until today, and Wheeling fire and police officials were scheduled to monitor the area over night.

Cook County Sheriff's Police and Illinois State Police directed traffic on Palatine Road as onlookers caused traffic tie-ups. The site of the building is immediately south of the Milwaukee Avenue exit on eastbound Palatine Road.

FAA officials said the plane, based in Pittsburgh, was on a flight from Pontiac, Mich.

Pilato declined to comment following his release from the hospital.

Plane's swooping descent over 'in matter of seconds'

by LINDA PUNCH

"I saw it for just an instant. Then it hit my car. I saw the plane and I knew it was going to hit."

That's how Dennis Van Ewyck, a carpeting salesman from Elmhurst, described the Wednesday afternoon crash of a Sabreliner jet near Pal-Waukee Airport. Van Ewyck was driving west on Palatine Road south of the airport when he saw the plane.

"There was no way to avoid it. I instinctively put my head down. I heard a crash and as I looked up, I could see that my back window was knocked out," he said.

VAN EWYCK, 25, said the impact of the crash pushed his late-model, blue Buick LeSabre across the road, where it stopped several hundred yards later.

"It was all over in a matter of seconds. The right wing was over the car; the body of the plane fell over my trunk. I feel very lucky. I don't see how it could have been any closer," he said.

Mike Monckton, who was riding his motorcycle just behind Van Ewyck's car, said the jet hit a grass mound at the end of the runway and "skimmed

the car."

"I was just about to pass the car and I saw the plane coming out of the corner of my eye. I knew he wasn't going to take off," he said.

Monckton said the plane barely missed another car, broke its landing gear on the median strip and plowed into the Lewis International Inc. building, 55 E. Palatine Rd.

"I went across to the building and there was a guy crawling out of the plane. We found a board and carried him away from the side of the plane. It was too much. I couldn't believe it," he said.

MONCKTON OF GLENVIEW said the "only loud noise was when the plane shattered that guy's windshield. I can't believe anybody crawled out of there (the plane) alive," he said.

Steve Rothbart, a pilot, said he was visiting a sign shop at the neighboring Palwaukee Center for Industry "when I heard the crash."

"This guy came out of the side of the building and rolled over. I thought there was still somebody left but he came through the wall," he said.

Judge grants duo's plea for death

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Two confessed murderers who demanded they be sentenced to death in the electric chair got their wish Wednesday after the district attorney suggested "maybe they could flip a coin to see who goes first — or sit in each other's lap."

Circuit Judge Joseph Hocklander sentenced the defendants, Wayne Eugene Ritter, 23, and John Louis Evans, 27, both of Indianapolis, Ind., to die at Holman Prison on or before July 25.

Both acknowledged their roles in the slaying of pawn shop operator Edward A. Nassar Jr. Jan. 5 and threatened reprisals against any juror who failed to recommend the death sentence.

THE JURY RETURNED the conviction Tuesday afternoon and Hocklander held a hearing Wednesday to determine whether there were mitigating circumstances warranting a reduction of the death sentence recommended by the panel.

Neither defendant would allow his court-appointed attorney to present arguments during the hearing and Hocklander ordered the executions be carried out.

Alabama law provides automatic review by the State Supreme Court for capital punishment cases and Dist. Atty. Charles Graddick said he has asked chief Justice C.C. Torbert to expedite the appeal.

Ritter, testifying over objections of his defense attorney, told the jury it had "no other choice" than execution.

"If you give me life imprisonment I'll be out in 10 or 15 years," he said. "I know where you live, and I wouldn't appreciate spending that much time in prison."

"I'd have to come after you," he said.

GRADDICK, who agreed with the defendants that they should be put to death, told the jury of 11 men and one woman: "It is a shame we only have one electric chair. Maybe they could flip a coin and see who goes first, or sit on each other's lap."

The panel deliberated only 17 minutes before returning the guilty verdict. The one-day trial was the first capital case in Alabama to be filmed by television crews and recorded by radio stations.

The two men were accused of shooting Nassar in the presence of his 6- and 9-year-old daughters after entering his pawn shop and asking to see a gun.

Nassar's widow, dressed in black, sat near the rear of the courtroom during the trial.

Nixon talks freely on Frost show

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Richard Nixon's reactions on camera to pointed questions by television personality David Frost ranged from pleasure to discomfort, according to Marvin Minoff, vice president of Frost's Paradine Co.

"Sometimes Nixon was pleased with an answer he gave and showed it," Minoff said. "Sometimes he appeared uncomfortable. But he did not refuse point blank to answer any question put to him."

Minoff said he has been meeting with the former president off and on for almost two years in preparing the groundwork for the four 90-minute television interviews conducted by Frost during the past month.

THE SHOWS WILL be telecast by some 135 stations across the country beginning May 4 and continuing at weekly intervals May 12, May 19 and May 25.

Minoff, who was present at 11 of the 12 Frost-Nixon taping sessions, said "Nixon was cordial with me and David and the people of the crew."

"Once the cameras were going he was able to concentrate without any trouble. He's not a man who shows his feelings easily. Over the two years I've been talking to him, he seems a bit stronger now. He wasn't the man we saw on TV during Watergate."

Panel OKs homes plan on site zoned for industry

Plans for a 182-home development west of Arlington Heights Road and south of Nichols Road were approved Wednesday by the Buffalo Grove Plan Commission, even though half the 48.9-acre site is designated for industrial use on the village's master plan.

The chairman of the village's industrial commission had written the plan commission expressing his concern that land designated for industrial use on the master plan was being considered for residential development.

The plans for 182 single-family homes are being proposed by the Falcon Development Co. of Mount Prospect.

HOWEVER, FOUR of the five plan commissioners present Wednesday and commission chairman Carl Genrich said they did not believe the land in question is suited for industrial development.

"It really is not the place for an industrial development in our village" because it is not adjacent to a major road, Comr. Melvin Kandel said.

Comr. Stephen Goldspiel objected to allowing residential development on the western portion of the land, which had been designated an industrial site.

"With its proximity to Dundee Road and the existing Rte. 53, it is probably as good an area for industrial development as we have in the village," Goldspiel said.

"If we do let go of some planned industrial land we have to make sure we can make it back," he said.

The commissioners' discussion of the matter followed review of a board-requested report that showed that developing the site as half industrial and half residential in accordance with the master plan, would bring in more income to the village than developing the property on a strictly residential basis.

DEVELOPER Gerald Falcon also agreed to donate up to $6,000 to construct a sidewalk along Arlington Heights Road from Beechwood Road to Strathmore Court, south of his proposed development to quell board members' concerns for the safety of children trying to get to three schools on the east side of the street.

The commission agreed a sidewalk was needed from Beechwood Road, on the southern end of Falcon's property, south to Strathmore Court, to take children to an intersection where a crossing guard would be stationed rather than allowing them to cross Arlington Heights Road to school.

When the board began discussing whether the village should try to split the cost of sidewalk construction with Wheeling Township Dist. 21, Falcon offered to donate $6,000 for sidewalk construction.

$14 million bond issue sought on forest parcel

Acquisition of a 200-acre parcel near Buffalo Grove is not included in the Lake County Forest Preserve District's proposed $14 million land acquisition bond issue.

Roland Sandee, chairman of the land acquisition committee is considering the bond issue, said the funds would be for the purchase of 1,150 acres to finish several forest preserve district projects.

If approved, the bond issue would raise district taxes an estimated 4.5 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. The tax is now 13.2 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Glenn Miller of Long Grove, a member of the land acquisition committee, has been advocating the purchase of the 200-acre Buffalo Creek parcel. The parcel is next to a proposed 150-acre flood retention area to be purchased by the Metropolitan Sanitary District and deeded to the forest preserve district.

SANDEE SAID the Buffalo Creek land, adjacent to the proposed four-lane Lake-Cook Road, would be the most expensive land the district has ever purchased with an estimated cost of $2.5 million.

The forest preserve district has been pushing the MSD to come up with the money and a mutually agreeable boundary for the original parcel, but has not been successful, George Bell, forest preserve president, said.

The land to be purchased with the bond issue includes 473 acres along the Des Plaines River; 300 acres near Lake Forest; 175 acres in the Green Belt Extension forest preserve between Waukegan and North Chicago; 200 acres in Lyons Woods north of Waukegan; and about 150 acres in scattered smaller parcels.

Miller said "power politics" are involved and the committee has no criteria for acquiring land. The commission just buys land in areas to stop residential developments.

BELL SAID the land acquisition list has been well-publicized and has been in existence for several years. The purchases are supported by the people in each area, Bell said.

Sandee said, "I don't know what his feeling is, that, the money will drop from the blue? We feel purchasing land is a job to do now. Land values have risen 50 per cent in the last five years, and large tracts of land are disappearing.

"The real question is whether it is good for the county and in that respect I say yes with no reservations."

Bill on Lincoln County passes in Senate committee

by STEVE BROWN
 SPRINGFIELD — Legislation paving the way for Northwest suburban residents to vote on seceding from Cook County, limped out of an Illinois Senate committee on one leg Wednesday with Chicago Democrats offering only limited opposition.

One bill, sponsored by State Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, was approved by the Illinois Senate Local Government Committee. The bill drastically reduces the number of signatures needed to get the so-called Lincoln County issue, a drive to take six Northwest Cook County townships out of the county, on a referendum ballot.

The committee defeated another proposal to change the size of the majority needed to have a referendum approved. Regner delayed action on a third bill. He is the chief sponsor of the package.

"LINCOLN COUNTY is still alive," Regner said after the committee session.

State Sen. Richard M. Daley, D-Chicago, voted "present" on SB 149, which changes the petition requirements. Several other Chicago Democrats followed Daley's lead. The bill passed by a 5-2 margin with three voting present.

Chicago Democrats, however, blocked passage of the second bill, SB 150, which would have reduced the number of votes needed for passage from a majority voting in an election to a majority voting on the referendum itself.

"It's nice that (Senate Bill) 149 got through but (Senate Bill) 150 is even more of a key. If 150 does not get out of committee, we have a problem," said former Palatine Village Pres. Wendell Jones, one of the main proponents of Lincoln County.

He said he sent a mailgram to members of the Senate's local government committee Tuesday urging them to approve Senate Bill 150.

Jones said that currently if 200,000 persons cast votes in a general election and the vote on a referendum to form Lincoln County is 100,000 to 0 the measure would lose by one vote.

"THE CREATION OF a new county should be made tough but not impossible," Jones said.

Regner said SB 150 probably was more important to the ultimate passage of the Lincoln County effort, but agreed the approval of the petition bill was important to getting the proposal on the ballot.

Regner said the petition bill reduces the number of signatures required from one-half of the registered voters in the affected area to 10 per cent. He estimated the change would cut the number of signatures needed to about 21,000.

The committee action still must pass through the full Senate and Illinois House and signed by Gov. James R. Thompson before becoming law.

The lack of Democratic opposition may have been triggered by a representative for the Cook County Board to take a position on the bills.

"They asked me and I told them County Board Pres. George Dunne said he will not interfere," said Herman Knell, the county's legislative coordinator. Knell hinted Dunne's publicly announced "hands-off" approach may have influenced the Chicago Democrats. While Knell and Regner hinted the full Senate might follow the committee's lead, neither would offer any firm forecast on the fate of the bill.

Former Dist. 54 janitor gets probation

Former Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 maintenance man Lawrence Wieg-ele Wednesday was sentenced to five years probation and fined $500 for stealing $5,700 in district property over a period of several months.

The sentence was handed down after Wieg-ele, 35, formerly of 7626 Manchester Manor, Hanover Park, pleaded guilty to a felony bill of information before Cook County Associate Judge Marvin J. Peters in Des Plaines.

Wieg-ele had been charged with three counts of felony theft, one count of petty theft and possession of stolen property by police in Hanover Park, Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates. A police search of the Wieg-ele home Jan. 24 uncovered the property after authorities received a telephone call from an undisclosed informant.

All charges were consolidated into one bill of information to which Wieg-ele entered a plea of guilty, Peters said.

PETERS SAID Wieg-ele was given five years probation for several reasons.

"He (Wieg-ele) is the father of 10 children. Four of his own and six step-children. He has lost his job and he has moved to Minnesota. Restitution has been made in full. I am told that everything has been returned," Peters said.

The felony probation will be transferred out of state so Wieg-ele will be able to complete the sentence in Minnesota.

In an executive session of the Dist. 54 Board of Education Jan. 31, Wieg-ele was fired as a maintenance em-ployee.

Wieg-ele had told police several top administrators were involved in thefts from various schools, but police investigators said the charges were unfounded.

Among the items returned to Dist. 54 were a trampoline, tape recorders, a mixmaster, paint, tables, a television, tools, a drum set, books, toys, chairs, musical instruments and an ice cream maker.

Private funds needed

Civic groups asked to aid cause of history museum

Civic organizations in Buffalo Grove soon will be asked to contribute to the village's proposed historical museum.

"A museum, in order to be equipped, has to rely on private funds," said Ted Uskali, museum curator.

The historical society, a group of about 15 residents was formed under the guidance of the Buffalo Grove Park District. It currently plans a museum for the Raupp Memorial Building, 901 Dunham Ln.

"We're going to ask them (civic groups) to be the main sponsors. We're going to do the best we can in equipping the inside of the museum," Uskali said.

If civic groups are willing to support the museum by donating exhibits or display cases, some exhibits may be ready for showing Sept. 1, Uskali said.

The soon-to-be mailed requests for support will be followed by a meeting

That's probably the way it would be reported today by the news media if 15 cents an acre were the real price of land in Buffalo Grove. Well, it was at one time — back in 1833 when the federal government paid the Indians 15 cents an acre for land that today sells for $15,000 an acre.

That's just one of the facts residents will be able to learn about Buffalo Grove's past when the museum, planned by the historical society, becomes a reality.

"The museum is going to be a visual education for the kids," said Ted Uskali, who recently was elected curator for proposed museum.

the historical society plans to hold with representatives of the civic groups, May 16 Uskali said.

by LUISA GINETTI and DEBBE JONAK

Four persons were injured Wednesday when a small business jet attempting to land at Pal-Waukee Airport in Prospect Heights crashed into an equipment dealership after skidding across a runway and striking two cars on Palatine Road.

The Saberliner jet owned by Rockwell International Inc. with two persons aboard crashed into the Lewis International Inc. building, 55 E. Palatine Rd. shortly before 2 p.m.

Injured in the crash and taken to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines were the pilot, John Pilato, 49, of Ambridge, Pa.; the co-pilot, Ted Chitanvar, 32, of McKees Rock, Pa.; an employee at the building, Richard Pankratz, 22, of 1500 Seven Pine St., Schaumburg, and Richard F. Bauer, 32, of 821 Lily Ln., Palatine, driver of an auto struck by the plane. Dennis Van Ewyck, 25, of Elmhurst, was the driver of the other car. He was not injured.

HOSPITAL OFFICIALS reported Bauer and Pilato were released Wednesday afternoon. Chitanvar was listed in good condition with lacerations.

Pankratz was reported in intensive care with lacerations on the face and arms.

Hospital officials said Pankratz, an employee who was in the building when the 47-foot plane plowed through the front wall, was in stable condition and was kept overnight for observation.

Cornelius Quill, investigating officer with the Cook County Sheriff's police, said the plane's jets failed to reverse, forcing the pilot to rely on his brakes for the landing.

The plane made three attempts to land on the runway adjacent to Palatine Road, west of Milwaukee Avenue, Federal Aviation Administration officials said.

ON THE THIRD attempt, the plane's brakes locked after the engines failed to reverse. The plane skidded the length of the runway onto the grass, bounced over Palatine Road, striking two westbound cars and then crashed nose first into the front of the building.

The plane, its tail and left wing section protruding from the building, stopped three-quarters of the way into the parts section of the building, crumbling the east wall.

Wheeling Fire Chief Bernie Koepfen said that when firefighters arrived at the scene both Pilato and Chitanvar were free from the wreckage, stunned but apparently not seriously hurt.

Employees in the building said they heard a crash and ran out of the building when the plane came barreling into it. Nineteen employees were evacuated from the building including Pete Lewis, the owner.

"I don't remember what happened," Lewis said. "There was no explosion, thank God, or we all would have been gone. It was just a loud crash."

Fire officials made no attempt to move the wreckage but worked quickly to drain the plane of the 700 gallons of jet fuel in its tanks. Water hoses also were used to wash down the plane and channel leaking gasoline from inside the building to the street.

Koepfen said there was no immediate damage estimate to the building.

FAA officials arrived on the scene within an hour of the 2 p.m. crash. Koepfen said the plane would not be moved until today, and Wheeling fire and police officials were scheduled to monitor the area over night.

Cook County Sheriff's Police and Illinois State Police directed traffic on Palatine Road as onlookers caused traffic tie-ups. The site of the building is immediately south of the Milwaukee Avenue exit on eastbound Palatine Road.

FAA officials said the plane, based in Pittsburgh, was on a flight from Pontiac, Mich.

Pilato declined to comment following his release from the hospital.

Plane's swooping descent over in seconds

by LINDA PUNCH

"I saw it for just an instant. Then it hit my car. I saw the plane and I knew it was going to hit."

That's how Dennis Van Ewyck, a carpeting salesman from Elmhurst, described the Wednesday afternoon crash of a Saberliner jet near Pal-Waukee Airport. Van Ewyck was driving west on Palatine Road south of the airport when he saw the plane.

"There was no way to avoid it. I instinctively put my head down. I heard a crash and as I looked up, I could see that my back window was knocked out," he said.

VAN EWYCK, 25, said the impact of the crash pushed his late-model, blue Buick LeSabre across the road, where it stopped several hundred yards later.

"It was all over in a matter of seconds. The right wing was over the car; the body of the plane fell over my trunk. I feel very lucky. I don't see how it could have been any closer," he said.

Mike Monckton, who was riding his motorcycle just behind Van Ewyck's car, said the jet hit a grass mound at the end of the runway and "skimmed the car."

"I was just about to pass the car and I saw the plane coming out of the corner of my eye. I knew he wasn't going to take off," he said.

Monckton said the plane barely missed another car, broke its landing gear on the median strip and plowed into the Lewis International Inc. building, 55 E. Palatine Rd.

"I went across to the building and there was a guy crawling out of the plane. We found a board and carried him away from the side of the plane. It was too much. I couldn't believe it," he said.

MONCKTON OF GLENVIEW said the "only loud noise was when the plane shattered that guy's windshield. I can't believe anybody crawled out of there (the plane) alive," he said.

Steve Rothbart, a pilot, said he was visiting a sign shop at the neighboring Pal-Waukee Center for Industry "when I heard the crash."

"This guy came out of the side of the building and rolled over. I thought there was still somebody left but he came through the wall," he said.

Judge grants duo's plea for death

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Two confessed murderers who demanded they be sentenced to death in the electric chair got their wish Wednesday after the district attorney suggested "maybe they could flip a coin to see who goes first — or sit in each other's lap."

Circuit Judge Joseph Hocklander sentenced the defendants, Wayne Eugene Ritter, 23, and John Louis Evans, 27, both of Indianapolis, Ind., to die at Holman Prison on or before July 25.

Both acknowledged their roles in the slaying of pawn shop operator Edward A. Nassar Jr. Jan. 5 and threatened reprisals against any juror who failed to recommend the death sentence.

THE JURY RETURNED the conviction Tuesday afternoon and Hocklander held a hearing Wednesday to determine whether there were mitigating circumstances warranting a reduction of the death sentence recommended by the panel.

Neither defendant would allow his court-appointed attorney to present arguments during the hearing and Hocklander ordered the executions be carried out.

Alabama law provides automatic review by the State Supreme Court for capital punishment cases and Dist. Atty. Charles Graddick said he has asked chief Justice C. C. Torbert to expedite the appeal.

Ritter, testifying over objections of his defense attorney, told the jury it had "no other choice" than execution.

"If you give me life imprisonment I'll be out in 10 or 15 years," he said. "I know where you live, and I wouldn't appreciate spending that much time in prison."

"I'd have to come after you," he said.

GRADDICK, who agreed with the defendants that they should be put to death, told the jury of 11 men and one woman: "It is a shame we only have one electric chair. Maybe they could flip a coin and see who goes first, or sit on each other's lap."

The panel deliberated only 17 minutes before returning the guilty verdict. The one-day trial was the first capital case in Alabama to be filmed by television crews and recorded by radio stations.

The two men were accused of shooting Nassar in the presence of his 6- and 9-year-old daughters after entering his pawn shop and asking to see a gun.

Nassar's widow, dressed in black, sat near the rear of the courtroom during the trial.

Nixon talks freely on Frost show

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Richard Nixon's reactions on camera to pointed questions by television personality David Frost ranged from pleasure to discomfort, according to Marvin Minoff, vice president of Frost's Paradise Co. "Sometimes Nixon was pleased with an answer he gave and showed it," Minoff said. "Sometimes he appeared uncomfortable. But he did not refuse point blank to answer any question put to him."

Minoff said he has been meeting with the former president off and on for almost two years in preparing the groundwork for the four 90-minute television interviews conducted by Frost during the past month.

THE SHOWS WILL be telecast by some 135 stations across the country beginning May 4 and continuing at weekly intervals May 12, May 19 and May 25.

Minoff, who was present at 11 of the 12 Frost-Nixon taping sessions, said "Nixon was cordial with me and David and the people of the crew."

"Once the cameras were going he was able to concentrate without any trouble. He's not a man who shows his feelings easily. Over the two years I've been talking to him, he seems a bit stronger now. He wasn't the man we saw on TV during Watergate."

Des Plaines mayor-elect hires firm without city OK

by SCOTT FOSDICK

Des Plaines Mayor-elect Herbert H. Volberding has hired, without city council approval, a Chicago consulting firm to advise him on what problems face him when he takes office Monday.

City aldermen criticized Volberding after they learned of the move this week. Volberding, a 23-year veteran of the Des Plaines Police Dept., won the mayor's job by defeating six other candidates April 19.

Although he campaigned hard on his knowledge of the city and its problems and put forth a 15-point campaign platform, Volberding has asked for the transition report to brief him on city government.

AL RONAN, WHO is coordinating the study for the accounting firm of Pandolfi, Weiss and Co., said, "We assume it will be at the city's expense."

City Atty. Charles Hug said that as mayor-elect, Volberding has no power to contract services for the city.

"Obviously he has no authority to hire anybody until he is mayor," Hug said. Volberding will be sworn-in May 2.

A telegram has been sent to the firm, saying the city will not pay for the report until the council approves a contract.

The city took the action after Hug told them of the study. Hug said Volberding mentioned the study to him last week.

VOLBERDING HAS been vacationing in Northern Wisconsin since Saturday and was not available for comment.

Council members, upset at Vol-berding's action, referred the matter to the city code and judiciary committee and the finance committee.

"It's very unusual for a man who isn't even sworn-in to be hiring people without talking to anyone about it," Ald. Daniel Kisslinger, 4th, a member of the finance committee, said. "We don't consider them engaged in anything right now."

"We're in total darkness as to who these people are and what they're doing," Ald. Alan Abrams, 8th, chairman of the city code and judiciary committee, said.

KISSLINGER SAID the city council always investigates a company before they hire it.

"Usually you have more than one company under consideration," he said.

Hug said the mayor may authorize expenditures up to $3,000, but that ultimately the city council must approve any contract.

If the council decides not to pay for the study, Hug said the courts could make Volberding personally liable for the expense.

RONAN SAID the study should be in Volberding's hands early next week. He said it is a transition report aimed at telling Volberding what problems he faces in the individual departments, what sort of budget situation he has inherited and what decisions he will be faced with immediately. Ronan said the report will include recommendations for action.

"Mr. Volberding has said he is not going to make any replacements at first. He does need people to come in and evaluate the situation," Ronan said. He said the report will concentrate heavily on budget projections for the future.

"We're going ahead in good faith to do the work, even though we don't have a contract," he said.

RONAN SAID this initial study would probably cost "less than $3,000." He said the cost would be more if Volberding decides to continue the study in greater depth.

He admitted that as mayor-elect, Volberding has no real authority to hire a consultant.

"He's kind of betwixt and between. He has no authority, but come Monday he's going to have the responsibility for the city," he said.

DeLuca wept at his arrest, questioning, detective says

Frank DeLuca, accused slayer of an Elk Grove Village family, wept when police arrested him, accused him of the murders and confronted him with evidence, a police detective testified Wednesday.

Lt. Frank Braun of the Cook County Sheriff's police took the witness stand Wednesday in Cook County Circuit Court, and told how police apprehended and questioned DeLuca on July 17, 1976.

Braun testified at a pretrial hearing on a motion by DeLuca's defense attorney, Michael J. Toomin, to quash DeLuca's arrest and suppress statements he gave to police.

DeLUCA, 39, AND Patricia Columbo, 20, are charged with the May 4, 1976 slayings of Miss Columbo's parents, Frank and Mary Columbo and her brother, Michael, 13, of 55 Brantwood Dr., Elk Grove Village.

Police arrested and charged Miss Columbo with the slayings May 15, 1976. Police arrested DeLuca two months later after a Cook County Grand Jury July 16 indicted him in the killings.

Braun said DeLuca offered no resistance when police arrested him at his apartment at 502 Ardmore Ave., Villa

Park. Police transported DeLuca to the Elk Grove Village police station where he was questioned.

Speaking about DeLuca's statements, Braun said, "He was surprised it took us so long to arrest him because he knew he was going down on it."

Braun said police showed DeLuca photographs of handprints investigators had found on a Columbo family car investigators recovered on Chicago's West Side shortly after the May killings. The recovery of the stolen auto led to the discovery of the bodies of the Columbo family May 7, 1976.

THE HAND PRINTS reportedly are those of a man who is missing a finger on his left hand, police have said. DeLuca is missing one finger and part of another on his left hand as a result of a parachuting accident.

DeLuca told police, "Well, they ain't mine," Braun said. When pressed about the hand prints, DeLuca began to cry, Braun said.

Next pretrial hearing is 10 a.m. today in Judge R. Eugene Pincham's courtroom in the Cook County Criminal Courts building, 26th Street and California Avenue, Chicago.

4 Palatine residents held in break-ins at schools

Four Palatine residents, including the son of a Palatine police lieutenant, have been arrested in connection with a burglary ring believed responsible for recent break-ins at eight Northwest suburban schools.

Jeffrey Centner, 18, of 500 Rohlwing Rd., son of Police Lt. Robert Centner, former village police chief, was charged with criminal damage to state-supported land. He was released on $2,500 bond.

George Stevenson, 19, of 1321 Michele Dr., was charged with burglary and criminal damage to property. He is being held in Cook County Jail on $20,000 bond.

Gerald Downey, 18, of 810 Wente Ct., was charged with criminal damage to property and released on $5,000 bond.

AN UNIDENTIFIED Palatine juvenile arrested in connection with the thefts has been released to his parents' custody.

Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows and Palatine police apprehended three of the suspects a few minutes after midnight Monday when a janitor at Arlington Heights High School, 502 W. Euclid Ave., heard glass breaking and called police.

Capt. Paul Bucholz of the Arlington Heights Police Dept. said during questioning the three suspects, told police they had been involved in a recent series of school burglaries and also implicated a fourth person.

Bucholz said announcement of the arrests had been withheld until the last member of the group, Centner, was brought into the police station by his father noon Wednesday.

The three adults will have a preliminary hearing in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court today. The juvenile will be petitioned into juvenile court.

A 1968 Lincoln Continental, recovered by police from one of the suspects was turned over to the Cook County Sheriff's Dept.

BURGLARIES THE four allegedly have been implicated in include:

- John Hersey High School, 900 E. Thomas Ave., Arlington Heights, April 25.

- Edgar Allen Poe School, 2800 N. Highland Ave., Arlington Heights, April 24.

- Palatine Township School Dist. 15 administration building, 505 S. Quentin Rd., Palatine, April 23.

- William Fremd High School, 1000 Wood St., Palatine, April 23.

- Palatine High School, 150 E. Wood St., Palatine, April 23.

- Sacred Heart of Mary High School, 2800 Central Road, Rolling Meadows, April 23.

- Central Road School, 3800 Central Rd., Rolling Meadows, April 23.

Bucholz said the exact amount of property taken in any of the burglaries is unknown, although the group is believed to have taken $350 in materials from one Rolling Meadows school.

Property taken from most of the eight schools was found by police inside the car the three persons allegedly were using in Monday's interrupted burglary attempt.

Students take gripe to Dist. 211 tonight

Palatine High School students will appear tonight before the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education to discuss Principal Leonard Newendorp's decision to exclude boys from a program on rape.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. at the administration center, 1750 S. Roselle Rd., Palatine.

The students have said they will discuss why they believe the boys should not have been barred from the program, entitled "The Violent Crime — Rape."

The students already have met twice with Dist. 211 administrators, and said last week they were not satisfied with answers to their questions.

that sense of urgency."

There could be benefits in examining the tax possibility soon, however, Hall said. If a referendum was passed before the possible elimination of the revenue-sharing funds, he said, Elk Grove Township could use its funds on other projects.

"From that standpoint, there's no reason to delay it," Hall added.

MEANWHILE, THE center has hired a director of development and public affairs who is credited with the approval of a mental health tax in Lyons and Riverside townships.

Stanley Glickman was mental health director in that area for eight years, and he is "to identify unmet mental health needs of an expanding population" such as the "primary need" for a central building, Rosen said in a written statement.

Rosen denied that Glickman's referendum experience was the primary reason that he was hired.

"I just think he's got a variety of experiences," Rosen said.

Advanced degrees for teachers

by PAM BIGFORD
A center for graduate studies run by the Peabody College for Teachers will be established in East Maine Dist. 63 in Des Plaines.

"This will give us the opportunity to serve our staff as well as the community and other districts," said James Bowen, Dist. 63 business manager.

Bowen said the Dist. 63 Board of Education Tuesday approved the center, which is scheduled to begin classes in January 1978.

BOWEN SAID teachers who want to get master's degrees or doctorates now usually have to go to Northern Illinois University in DeKalb or the National College of Education in Evanston.

Tentative plans are to hold classes in the Dist. 63 administration center, 10150 Dee Rd., Des Plaines, and to use the learning center in the attached school, Apollo Junior High, Bowen said.

Bowen said Peabody College has a main campus in Nashville, Tenn., another graduate center in New Orleans, La., and has plans to open a campus eventually in Washington, D.C. Harvard University also operates similar centers.

"Institutions of higher learning are finding they have to go outside their own physical facilities to reach students," Bowen said.

ESTABLISHMENT OF the center will cost Dist. 63 nothing, Bowen said. Peabody College will pay all costs from tuition paid by students.

Bowen said Peabody officials will be in charge of all college operations including deciding which students to accept. Plans are to enroll from 55 to 70 students the first term, he said.

"This is something we've been thinking about for a long time," Bowen said, "but we just never had the opportunity to do it until now."

Dist. 214 rehires nontenured teachers

High School Dist. 214 has rehired 106 of the 128 nontenured teachers who were released last month because of the "uncertainty" surrounding the Elk Grove Township unit school district question.

The Dist. 214 Board of Education Monday rehired 40 of the 57 first-year teachers who had been honorably dismissed and 66 of the 71 second-year teachers. Of the second-year teachers, 64 were granted tenure and two were put on third year probationary status.

"With the unit district question finally laid to rest we can now get back to the business of educating kids and staffing up for next year," Robert Cudney, assistant superintendent for personnel services, said.

As student enrollments in various subject areas are assessed and teacher resignations and leave requests filed, Cudney said he is confident most of the 22 probationary teachers "on hold" will be rehired.

"They're all excellent teachers," he said. "There was never any question about their performance."

The board dismissed the 128 nontenured teachers because officials were unsure whether an Elk Grove Township unit school district would be formed and how many teachers from Elk Grove and Forest View high schools would remain with Dist. 214 if voters approved the unit district.

Dist. 214 attorneys said they were unsure of the district's legal responsibility if more tenured teachers than could be accommodated chose to stay with the high school district rather than go with the unit district.

According to state law, teachers who are going to be dismissed at the end of the term must be given 60 days notice.

School bell rings earlier

Students at Forest View and Rolling Meadows high schools will start school 10 minutes earlier next year.

To optimize the use of buses, the Dist. 214 board voted to have the Forest View students begin school at 7:40 rather than 7:50 a.m. and to have the Rolling Meadows students start class at 8:20 rather than 8:40 a.m.

Starting times at the district's six other high schools will remain the same for the 1977-78 school year. Arlington High will begin at 8:20 a.m.; Prospect, Hersey and Wheeling high schools at 7:50 a.m.; Elk Grove High School at 8 a.m.; and Buffalo Grove High School at 8:40 a.m.

Bill to pay witnesses in delayed cases urged

A bill that would seek to protect trial witnesses from lengthy court delays by paying them for unwarranted continuances has been introduced by State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston.

Porter's proposal, now before the House judiciary committee, would give the court discretion to assess against delaying attorneys a $25 penalty to be paid to witnesses who repeatedly appeared in court only to learn a case would be delayed.

"It's about time that the law gives some recognition to the rights of witnesses," Porter, an attorney, said. He said the bill would provide a "mechanism to penalize the unscrupulous lawyer who would use this type of delay to discourage attendance of opposing witnesses."

"I THINK WITNESSES are victimized by our courts," Porter said. He said attorneys will seek repeated delays in both criminal and civil cases as a "tactic simply to wear down the witnesses" so that a case might be eventually dropped.

Clive Tobol, assistant counsel for the Illinois State Bar Assn., Tuesday said the association has not considered the bill and has adopted no stand on it.

Porter said he has received no feedback from attorneys or bar associations on the bill, but added, "I think you can assume that attorneys in general would oppose it but the average citizen would support it."

Lengthy court delays are common in both civil and criminal cases, particularly in the state circuit court, and Porter Tuesday said the pattern "is not getting any better to my knowledge."

"THERE SEEMS TO be no strong incentive to provide some limitation on the number of times (continuances) can be taken," he said. He said the State Supreme Court could take steps to deal with the problem of continuances but that action has not come because judges are reluctant to put limitations on attorneys.

"The difficulty is that judges deal with lawyers every day," he said. "The lawyers are their audience and they are the ones that rate them and many people use those ratings at retention time."

Porter said if the bill fails he will support another measure to pay witnesses $15 for each day in court, the money to come from county funds. He added, however, such legislation "would be a real fall-back position" since it proposes using tax money to pay witnesses.

Boys' Club headquarters closed

by PAT GERLACH

The headquarters of the Hoffman Estates Boys' Club was ordered closed Wednesday when a fire department inspection revealed electrical and plumbing code violations and other problems said to jeopardize the safety of more than 200 children.

Village Mgr. George Longmeyer said the club, 181 Illinois Blvd., will not be allowed to reopen until the electrical wiring has been brought up to standard, the plumbing repaired and a "tilting" fire escape restored. The club rents the building from the village for $1 a year.

David Norris, the club's full-time executive director, called the village's action "a bombshell," saying closing the barn will put 240 boys "back out on the street in the summer when they have free time and that's going to spell big trouble."

"The kids will suffer. They don't pay taxes and they don't vote and now they have nowhere to go," Norris said. Boys 6 through 16 are eligible to join, but Norris said most of the members are in the 6 to 9 year age range. He said about 60 per cent of the boys come from "split homes, divorced or one-parent families."

A $4 ANNUAL membership entitles boys to use the club which has games, arts and crafts and athletic activities after school and on weekends.

Norris said the closing jeopardizes a May 14 state Boys' Club track meet scheduled in Hoffman Estates.

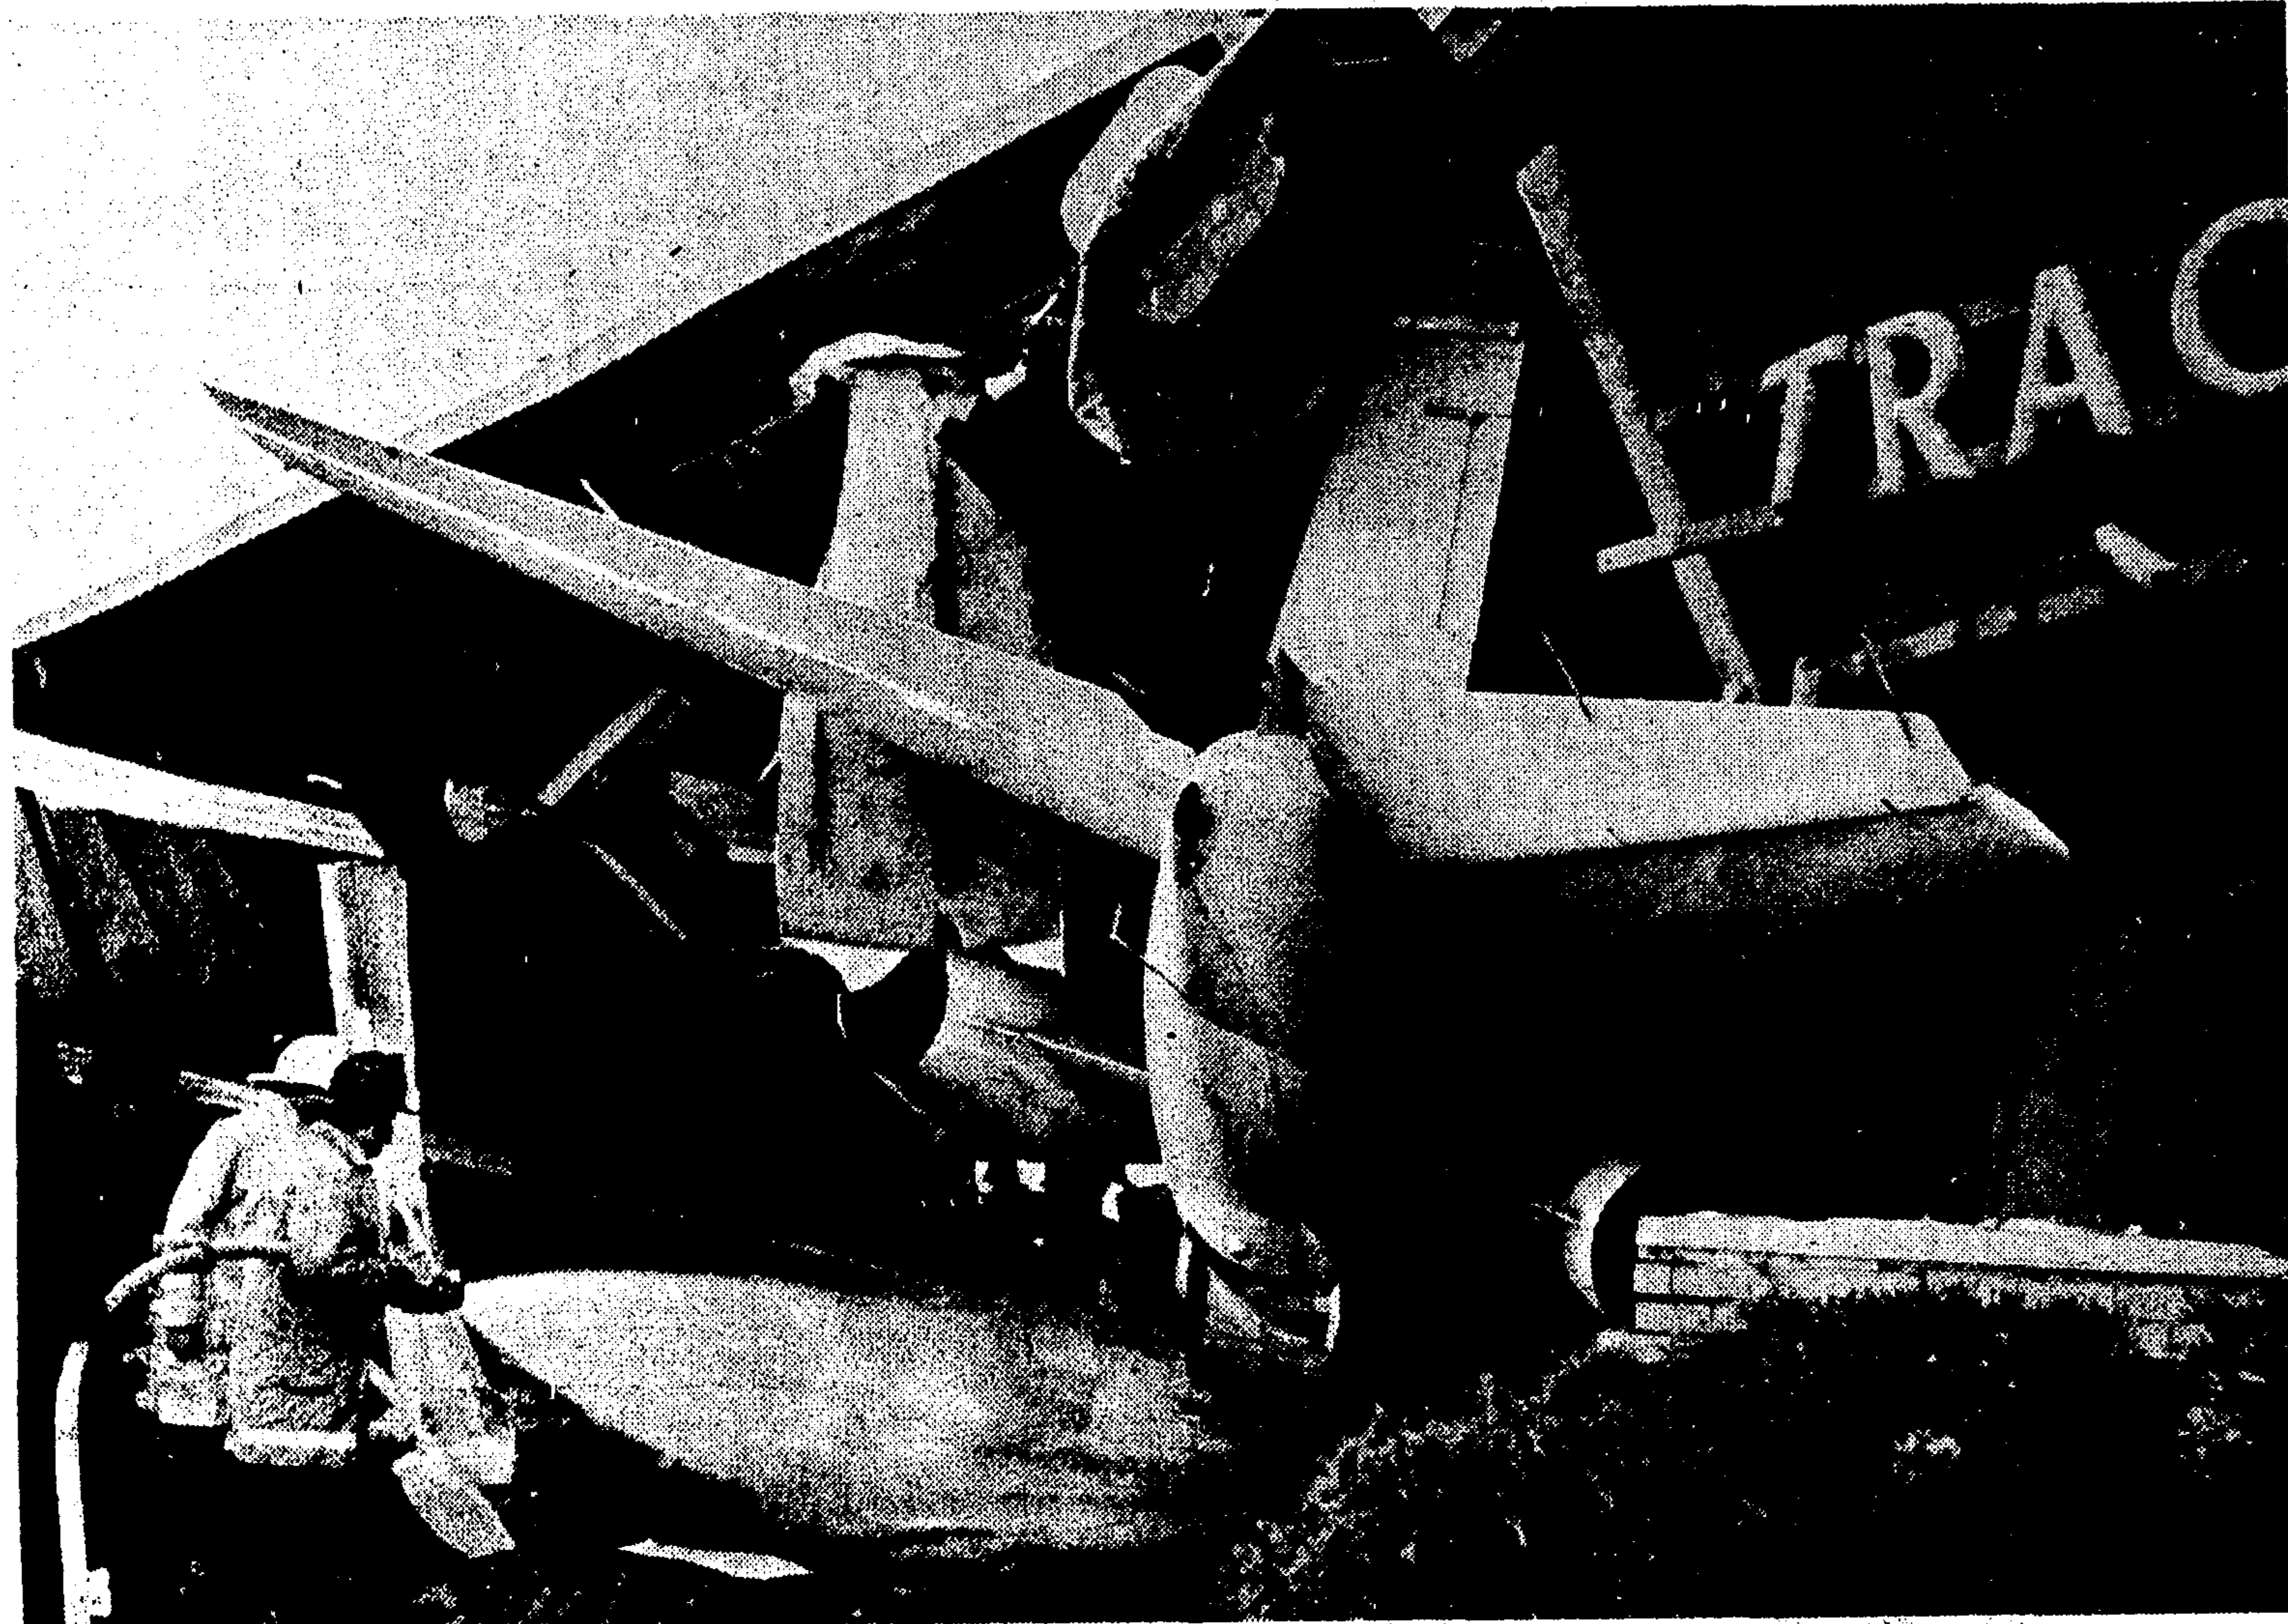

And he said evening programs, including a "ministerial rap session for the boys and parents" scheduled Wednesday night was canceled. But, he said, a satellite boys' club program at Armstrong School, 155 N. Kingsdale Rd., will continue.

Calling the closing "the biggest test" the 16-year-old club has ever faced, Norris said he will "hit the streets Thursday" in a plea for "money, material and manpower" from businessmen in the Hoffman Estates-Schaumburg community.

Norris said a "rough estimate" of the cost of repairs is probably somewhere between $5,000 and $10,000.

"If this community really wants the club to stay, the people are going to (Continued on Page 5)

by LUISA GINETTI and DEBBE JONAK

Four persons were injured Wednesday when a small business jet attempting to land at Pal-Waukee Airport in Prospect Heights crashed into an equipment dealership after skidding across a runway and striking two cars on Palatine Road.

The Saberliner jet owned by Rockwell International Inc. with two persons aboard crashed into the Lewis International Inc. building, 55 E. Palatine Rd. shortly before 2 p.m.

Injured in the crash and taken to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines were the pilot, John Pilato, 49, of Ambridge, Pa.; the co-pilot, Ted Chitanvar, 32, of McKees Rock, Pa.; an employee at the building, Richard Pankratz, 22, of 1500 Seven Pine St., Schaumburg, and Richard F. Bauer, 32, of 821 Lily Ln., Palatine, driver of an auto struck by the plane. Dennis Van Ewyck, 25, of Elmhurst, was the driver of the other car. He was not injured.

HOSPITAL OFFICIALS reported Bauer and Pilato were released Wednesday afternoon. Chitanvar was listed in good condition with lacerations.

ations. Pankratz was reported in intensive care with lacerations on the face and arms.

Hospital officials said Pankratz, an employee who was in the building when the 47-foot plane plowed through the front wall, was in stable condition and was kept overnight for observation.

Cornelius Quill, investigating officer with the Cook County Sheriff's police, said the plane's jets failed to reverse, forcing the pilot to rely on his brakes for the landing.

The plane made three attempts to land on the runway adjacent to Palatine Road, west of Milwaukee Avenue, Federal Aviation Administration officials said.

ON THE THIRD attempt, the plane's brakes locked after the engines failed to reverse. The plane skidded the length of the runway onto the grass, bounced over Palatine Road, striking two westbound cars and then crashed nose first into the front of the building.

The plane, its tail and left wing section protruding from the building, stopped three-quarters of the way into the parts section of the building, crumbling the east wall.

Wheeling Fire Chief Bernie Koepfen said that when firefighters arrived at the scene both Pilato and Chitanvar were free from the wreckage, stunned but apparently not seriously hurt.

Employees in the building said they heard a crash and ran out of the building when the plane came barreling into it. Nineteen employees were vacated from the building including Pete Lewis, the owner.

"I don't remember what happened," Lewis said. "There was no explosion, thank God, or we all would have been gone. It was just a loud crash."

Fire officials made no attempt to move the wreckage but worked quickly to drain the plane of the 700 gallons of jet fuel in its tanks. Water hoses also were used to wash down the plane and channel leaking gasoline from inside the building to the street.

Koepfen said there was no immediate damage estimate to the building.

FAA officials arrived on the scene within an hour of the 2 p.m. crash. Koepfen said the plane would not be moved until today, and Wheeling fire and police officials were scheduled to monitor the area over night.

Cook County Sheriff's Police and Illinois State Police directed traffic on Palatine Road as onlookers caused traffic tie-ups. The site of the building is immediately south of the Milwaukee Avenue exit on eastbound Palatine Road.

FAA officials said the plane, based in Pittsburgh, was on a flight from Pontiac, Mich.

Pilato declined to comment following his release from the hospital.

Mike Monckton, who was riding his motorcycle just behind Van Ewyck's car, said the jet hit a grass mound at the end of the runway and "skimmed the car."

"I was just about to pass the car and I saw the plane coming out of the corner of my eye. I knew he wasn't going to take off," he said.

Monckton said the plane barely missed another car, broke its landing gear on the median strip and plowed into the Lewis International Inc. building, 55 E. Palatine Rd.

"I went across to the building and there was a guy crawling out of the plane. We found a board and carried him away from the side of the plane. It was too much. I couldn't believe it," he said.

MONCKTON OF GLENVIEW said the "only loud noise was when the plane shattered that guy's windshield. I can't believe anybody crawled out of there (the plane) alive," he said.

Steve Rothbart, a pilot, said he was visiting a sign shop at the neighboring Palwaukee Center for Industry "when I heard the crash."

"This guy came out of the side of the building and rolled over. I thought there was still somebody left but he came through the wall," he said.

Judge grants duo's plea for death

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Two confessed murderers who demanded they be sentenced to death in the electric chair got their wish Wednesday after the district attorney suggested "maybe they could flip a coin to see who goes first — or sit in each other's lap."

Circuit Judge Joseph Hocklander sentenced the defendants, Wayne Eugene Ritter, 23, and John Louis Evans, 27, both of Indianapolis, Ind., to die at Holman Prison on or before July 25.

Both acknowledged their roles in the slaying of pawn shop operator Edward A. Nassar Jr. Jan. 5 and threatened reprisals against any juror who failed to recommend the death sentence.

THE JURY RETURNED the conviction Tuesday afternoon and Hocklander held a hearing Wednesday to determine whether there were mitigating circumstances warranting a reduction of the death sentence recommended by the panel.

Neither defendant would allow his court-appointed attorney to present arguments during the hearing and Hocklander ordered the executions be carried out.

Alabama law provides automatic review by the State Supreme Court for capital punishment cases and Dist. Atty. Charles Graddick said he has asked chief Justice C. C. Torbert to expedite the appeal.

Ritter, testifying over objections of his defense attorney, told the jury it had "no other choice" than execution.

"If you give me life imprisonment I'll be out in 10 or 15 years," he said. "I know where you live, and I wouldn't appreciate spending that much time in prison."

"I'd have to come after you," he said.

GRADDICK, who agreed with the defendants that they should be put to death, told the jury of 11 men and one woman: "It is a shame we only have one electric chair. Maybe they could flip a coin and see who goes first, or sit on each other's lap."

The panel deliberated only 17 minutes before returning the guilty verdict. The one-day trial was the first capital case in Alabama to be filmed by television crews and recorded by radio stations.

The two men were accused of shooting Nassar in the presence of his 6- and 9-year-old daughters after entering his pawn shop and asking to see a gun.

Nassar's widow, dressed in black, sat near the rear of the courtroom during the trial.

Nixon talks freely on Frost show

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Richard Nixon's reactions on camera to pointed questions by television personality David Frost ranged from pleasure to discomfort, according to Marvin Minoff, vice president of Frost's Paradime Co.

"Sometimes Nixon was pleased with an answer he gave and showed it," Minoff said. "Sometimes he appeared uncomfortable. But he did not refuse point blank to answer any question put to him."

Minoff said he has been meeting with the former president off and on for almost two years in preparing the groundwork for the four 90-minute television interviews conducted by Frost during the past month.

THE SHOWS WILL be telecast by some 135 stations across the country beginning May 4 and continuing at weekly intervals May 12, May 19 and May 25.

Minoff, who was present at 11 of the 12 Frost-Nixon taping sessions, said "Nixon was cordial with me and David and the people of the crew."

"Once the cameras were going he was able to concentrate without any trouble. He's not a man who shows his feelings easily. Over the two years I've been talking to him, he seems a bit stronger now. He wasn't the man we saw on TV during Watergate."

have to prove it," Norris said. THE DIRECTOR said he intends "to give it a good push" for a couple of weeks. "Then I'll look at things and if the situation is not recovering, then I will start looking for another job," he said.

When the Boys' Club of America hired him to run the Hoffman Estates facility last year, Norris said, he was told it would not continue to staff the local club if, like his predecessor, he lasted only a year.

Norris said the club receives $12,000 annually from the United Way and raises another $3,000 a year through fund raising projects.

Longmeyer called the closing a "strict safety measure," saying the village does not intend to harm the club "but we don't want to end up going to the funerals of three or four local boys who die in a fire either."

The village manager said Wednesday's inspection was scheduled because the club's lease on the building expires May 1.

HE SAID THE village's planning, building and zoning committee has recommended the club be given a 25-year lease on the building.

"The recommendation was to be brought to the village board Monday, but I'm going to ask that the decision be deferred until we have a chance to work the problems out," Longmeyer said.

He said he has scheduled a meeting next week with club officials "to discuss the violations in fine detail, set some mutual priorities and see what can be done."

But Longmeyer said he is not sure whether the village is in a position to help financially with the needed repairs.

"We do own the building and there is always the possibility that we may decide to spend some money, but I can't say for sure. It's up to the village board to set the spending priorities," he said.

Longmeyer said many of the code violations apparently resulted from "homemade wiring" and other volunteer work done by "people with good intentions."

"We are going to have to look at a situation and make some decisions that may say they can reopen in 30 days if some things are corrected immediately and give them six months to clear up other things. I just don't know," he said.

Students take gripe to Dist. 211 tonight

Palatine High School students will appear tonight before the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education to discuss Principal Leonard Newendorp's decision to exclude boys from a program on rape.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. at the administration center, 1750 S. Roselle Rd., Palatine.

The students have said they will discuss why they believe the boys should not have been barred from the program, entitled "The Violent Crime — Rape."

The students already have met twice with Dist. 211 administrators, and said last week they were not satisfied with answers to their questions.

When the bell rang at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday, Preston Sattipani grabbed his books, slipped into his green baseball jacket and raced out the classroom door.

The warm spring sunshine felt good as he skipped across St. Hubert's playground toward the Boys' Club where he and two other 11-year-olds were considered "regulars." The boys played with the electronic games and some days worked on crafts after a round of softball.

But as Preston walked up to the door of the old barn, he sensed something was different. It was too quiet and nobody had arrived.

EAGERLY PUSHING the creaky old door open, Preston looked up to see the club director Dave Norris frowning.

"Sorry fella. You can't come here today because the village closed us down," Norris said.

"They said it's not safe for you guys in here anymore and the fire department will be around pretty soon to put a sign on the door that says 'closed,' so you better just go on home," Norris said.

But Preston just stood in the doorway, taking a long look at the familiar pool tables, the games, the club's library and the big bulletin board.

"IT'S A BIG rip-off. We shouldn't be closed. They could keep it open and make repairs Saturday and Sunday... Couldn't they?" he asked.

"And what about tonight, Father (Pat) Brennan said he'd be here for the 'rap' session. What's going on?"

Finally, turning to leave, Preston shot a disappointed look at Norris.

"This was the best ever, you know, the games and stuff kept us active," he said. "Now I guess I'll just have to sit around."

WORK HAS begun on widening Schaumburg Road from two to four lanes between Springinsguth and Roselle roads. The $2.5 million county construction job is being done by Palumbo & Co. Cook County officials say the widening should be completed by Sept. 1. The western part of the project, from Barrington Road to Springinsguth, was finished last fall and the stretch from Roselle Road east to Meacham Road will be done next year.

Ex-Dist. 54 janitor gets probation

Former Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 maintenance man Lawrence Wiegeler Wednesday was sentenced to five years probation and fined $500 for stealing $5,700 in district property over a period of several months.

The sentence was handed down after Wiegeler, 35, formerly of 7626 Manchester Manor, Hanover Park, pleaded guilty to a felony bill of information before Cook County Associate Judge Marvin J. Peters in Des Plaines.

Wiegeler had been charged with three counts of felony theft, one count of petty theft and possession of stolen property by police in Hanover Park, Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates. A police search of the Wiegeler home Jan. 24 uncovered the property after authorities received a telephone call from an undisclosed informant.

All charges were consolidated into one bill of information to which Wiegeler entered a plea of guilty, Peters said.

PETERS SAID Wiegeler was given five years probation for several reasons.

"He (Wiegeler) is the father of 10 children. Four of his own and six step-children. He has lost his job and he has moved to Minnesota. Restitution has been made in full. I am told that everything has been returned," Peters said.

The felony probation will be transferred out of state so Wiegeler will be able to complete the sentence in Minnesota.

In an executive session of the Dist. 54 Board of Education Jan. 31, Wiegeler was fired as a maintenance employee.

Wiegeler had told police several top administrators were involved in thefts from various schools, but police investigators said the charges were unfounded.

Among the items returned to Dist. 54 were a trampoline, tape recorders, a mixer, paint, tables, a television, tools, a drum set, books, toys, chairs, musical instruments and an ice cream maker.

Lincoln County bill passes in Senate panel

by STEVE BROWN

SPRINGFIELD — Legislation paving the way for Northwest suburban residents to vote on seceding from Cook County, limped out of an Illinois Senate committee on one leg Wednesday with Chicago Democrats offering only limited opposition.

One bill, sponsored by State Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, was approved by the Illinois Senate Local Government Committee. The bill drastically reduces the number of signatures needed to get the so-called Lincoln County issue, a drive to take six Northwest Cook County townships out of the county, on a referendum ballot.

The committee defeated another proposal to change the size of the majority needed to have a referendum approved. Regner delayed action on a third bill. He is the chief sponsor of the package.

"LINCOLN COUNTY is still alive," Regner said after the committee session.

State Sen. Richard M. Daley, D-Chicago, voted "present" on SB 149, which changes the petition requirements. Several other Chicago Democrats followed Daley's lead. The bill passed by a 5-2 margin with three voting present.

Chicago Democrats, however, blocked passage of the second bill, SB 150, which would have reduced the number of votes needed for passage from a majority voting in an election to a majority voting on the referendum itself.

"It's nice that (Senate Bill) 149 got through but (Senate Bill) 150 is even more of a key. If 150 does not get out of committee, we have a problem," said former Palatine Village Pres. Wendell Jones, one of the main proponents of Lincoln County.

He said he sent a mailgram to members of the Senate's local government committee Tuesday urging them to approve Senate Bill 150.

Jones said that currently if 200,000 persons cast votes in a general election and the vote on a referendum to form Lincoln County is 100,000 to 0 the measure would lose by one vote.

"THE CREATION OF a new county should be made tough but not impossible," Jones said.

Regner said SB 150 probably was more important to the ultimate passage of the Lincoln County effort, but agreed the approval of the petition bill was important to getting the proposal on the ballot.

Regner said the petition bill reduces the number of signatures required from one-half of the registered voters in the affected area to 10 per cent. He estimated the change would cut the number of signatures needed to about 21,000.

The committee action still must pass through the full Senate and Illinois House and signed by Gov. James R. Thompson before becoming law.

The lack of Democratic opposition may have been triggered by a representative for the Cook County Board to take a position on the bills.

"They asked me and I told them County Board Pres. George Dunne said he will not interfere," said Herman Knell, the county's legislative coordinator. Knell hinted Dunne's publicly announced "hands-off" approach may have influenced the Chicago Democrats. While Knell and Regner hinted the full Senate might follow the committee's lead, neither would offer any firm forecast on the fate of the bill.

Township chief opposes tax vote on health center

Elk Grove Township appears more eager than Schaumburg Township to embrace a tax referendum to finance the joint township mental health center.

Elk Grove Supervisor Richard Hall Wednesday called the possible tax "a realistic approach" while Schaumburg Supervisor Vernon Laubenstein said his board "would have to be sold" on the idea before it would support a referendum.

Center officials are looking toward the referendum as a way of finding $264,000 to finance a new building. State law allows townships to levy a mental health tax of 15 cents per $100 assessed valuation — $15 on a house assessed at $10,000 — if approved in referendum.

ALTHOUGH SAYING that a referendum is "one of the alternatives that would be seriously considered," Laubenstein said that Schaumburg Township officials must "Keep in mind" that the main center would be located in Elk Grove Township.

"How soon will Schaumburg Township be of a population where it's got to have a mental health center of its own?" he added, saying that his board has "concerns about a long-term commitment" to a joint center.

"The decision (on a referendum) isn't going to be reached abruptly or easily," Laubenstein said.

The referendum is one alternative, he said while "Elk Grove and Schaumburg going their separate ways" is another.

PART OF THE reason the referendum is being suggested is that federal-revenue sharing funds — the mental health center's main source of income — may not be continued in 3½ years.

If that funding source dries up, Hall said the center would be faced with a "serious" funding situation and a tax levy may be the "reasonable solution."

"It's something that we're seriously looking at," Hall said. "Really, for mental health to lay some solid plans, they need some confidence that the funds will continue to be available."

Jordan Rosen, executive director of the center, said that consideration of a tax levy is "only preliminary," but when asked if that means a referendum will not be in the offing for at least a couple of years he said that the immediate plan for a main center is "a very crucial issue."

LAUBENSTEIN SAID he believes Rosen feels a "sense of urgency" about a referendum even though the revenue sharing picture will not get tight for at least 3½ years.

"I don't have that same sense of urgency," Laubenstein added. "I may feel differently in a year and a half from now, but as of now, I don't feel that sense of urgency."

There could be benefits in examining the tax possibility soon, however, Hall said. If a referendum was passed before the possible elimination of the revenue-sharing funds, he said, Elk Grove Township could use its funds on other projects.

"From that standpoint, there's no reason to delay it," Hall added.

MEANWHILE, THE center has hired a director of development and public affairs who is credited with the approval of a mental health tax in Lyons and Riverside townships.

Stanley Glickman was mental health director in that area for eight years, and he is "to identify unmet mental health needs of an expanding population" such as the "primary need" for a central building, Rosen said in a written statement.

Rosen denied that Glickman's referendum experience was the primary reason that he was hired.

"I just think he's got a variety of experiences," Rosen said.

Court backs village in Shefner suit

Hoffman Estates Wednesday won what may be the final test of its 1974 decision to zone land on the village's west side for industry.

The 1st District Illinois Appellate Court upheld a March 27, 1975, Cook County Circuit Court ruling against a lawsuit filed by developer Nathan Shefner.

Shefner had sued the village after it refused to zone 53 acres between Barrington and Freeman roads, south of Mundhank Road, for 490 townhouses. The village had zoned the property for manufacturing as part of a plan to develop its western borders as industrial area.

THE FOCUS of Shefner's appeal had been that village officials had encouraged his development of the property and then failed to allow him reasonable time to present and discuss his plans.

"Although the officials were encouraging," responded Justice Melvin Jiganti in delivering the appellate court's opinion, "they did not indicate that the property would be rezoned to accommodate plaintiff's (Shefner) plans. No formal action was taken by the plan commission or the board of trustees."

Village Mgr. George P. Longmeyer applauded Wednesday's ruling.

"The court decision takes things out of the realm of the zoning being reviewed and solidifies the village's manufacturing zoning for the parcel," he said.

The decision ends 2½ years of court battles since Hoffman Estates rejected the Shefner proposal.

The Barrington Area Council of Governments also had worked on the side of Hoffman Estates in the legal dispute.

Advanced degrees for teachers

by PAM BIGFORD
A center for graduate studies run by the Peabody College for Teachers will be established in East Maine Dist. 63 in Des Plaines.

"This will give us the opportunity to serve our staff as well as the community and other districts," said James Bowen, Dist. 63 business manager.

Bowen said the Dist. 63 Board of Education Tuesday approved the center, which is scheduled to begin classes in January 1978.

BOWEN SAID teachers who want to get master's degrees or doctorates now usually have to go to Northern Illinois University in DeKalb or the National College of Education in Evanston.

Tentative plans are to hold classes in the Dist. 63 administration center, 10150 Dee Rd., Des Plaines, and to use the learning center in the attached school, Apollo Junior High, Bowen said.

Bowen said Peabody College has a main campus in Nashville, Tenn., another graduate center in New Orleans, La., and has plans to open a campus eventually in Washington, D.C. Harvard University also operates similar centers.

"Institutions of higher learning are finding they have to go outside their own physical facilities to reach students," Bowen said.

ESTABLISHMENT OF the center will cost Dist. 63 nothing, Bowen said. Peabody College will pay all costs from tuition paid by students.

Bowen said Peabody officials will be in charge of all college operations including deciding which students to accept. Plans are to enroll from 55 to 70 students the first term, he said.

"This is something we've been thinking about for a long time," Bowen said, "but we just never had the opportunity to do it until now."

Lindbergh case may be reopened

NEW YORK (UPI) — A New York author and a Florida handwriting expert claim they have new evidence which proves Bruno Richard Hauptmann was innocent of the 1932 kidnap-murder of the Lindbergh baby and are requesting New Jersey Gov. Brendan Byrne reopen the case.

Anthony Scaduto, author of "SCA-PEGOAT," said Wednesday that he has new police and FBI documents not mentioned in his book, which prove that Hauptmann was "innocent and the victim of a judicial murder."

Hauptmann was convicted and executed for the kidnap-murder of the 2-year-old son of aviator Charles A. Lindbergh.

ACCORDING TO handwriting expert Hilda Zaenglein Schaffer of Clearwater, Fla., who examined the Lindbergh ransom notes during Hauptmann's trial, the notes were forged and showed "overwritings" indicating that someone had tampered with them to make them appear like Hauptmann's writing.

Mrs. Schaffer said in a letter to Gov. Byrne that Hauptmann could not have made the overwritings himself because they were done with a different blend of ink or were done at a much later period.

Scaduto said that many people involved in the case were part of a cover-up because they do not want to go against "the established wisdom."

"And also, telling people from the 1930s that Hauptmann isn't guilty is like telling them to give up a part of their childhood. They'd say: 'If this isn't true then what else do I have left from my childhood.'"

SCADUTO SAID virtually every piece of physical evidence introduced at the trial linking Hauptmann to various aspects of the crime, was either tampered with or manufactured.

According to Scaduto, the FBI and police have hundreds of documents that have been suppressed which cast much doubt on the entire trial.

Hauptmann's widow, Anna, has also requested that Gov. Byrne reopen the case "to vindicate my husband and clear our name."

Bill to pay witnesses in delayed cases urged

A bill that would seek to protect trial witnesses from lengthy court delays by paying them for unwarranted continuances has been introduced by State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston.

Porter's proposal, now before the House judiciary committee, would give the court discretion to assess against delaying attorneys a $25 penalty to be paid to witnesses who repeatedly appeared in court only to learn a case would be delayed.

"It's about time that the law gives some recognition to the rights of witnesses," Porter, an attorney, said. He said the bill would provide a "mechanism to penalize the unscrupulous lawyer who would use this type of delay to discourage attendance of opposing witnesses.

"I THINK WITNESSES are victimized by our courts," Porter said. He said attorneys will seek repeated delays in both criminal and civil cases as a "tactic simply to wear down the witnesses" so that a case might be eventually dropped.

Clive Tobol, assistant counsel for the Illinois State Bar Assn., Tuesday said the association has not considered the bill and has adopted no stand on it.

Porter said he has received no feedback from attorneys or bar associations on the bill, but added, "I think you can assume that attorneys in general would oppose it but the average citizen would support it."

Lengthy court delays are common in both civil and criminal cases, particularly in the state circuit court, and Porter Tuesday said the pattern "is not getting any better to my knowledge."

"THERE SEEMS TO be no strong incentive to provide some limitation on the number of times (continuances) can be taken," he said. He said the State Supreme Court could take steps to deal with the problem of continuances but that action has not come because judges are reluctant to put limitations on attorneys.

"The difficulty is that judges deal with lawyers every day," he said. "The lawyers are their audience and they are the ones that rate them and many people use those ratings at retention time."

Porter said if the bill fails he will

Student attorney gains 20,000 potential clients

by SAMUEL O. HANCOCK

CARBONDALE, Ill. (UPI) — Elizabeth Berg Streeter picked up some 20,000 potential clients her first day on the job April 4 as the first student attorney for Southern Illinois University-Carbondale's undergraduate and graduate population.

"I'm really excited about the job," said Ms. Streeter. "I'm still waiting for a telephone and typewriter and don't have a secretary yet."

Some rearranging of space to provide more privacy for student clients, room for a library, and a private office also are planned in her allotted space in the student government office at SIU's Student Center.

"I've had about six students a day in to see me so far and I'm sure business is going to pick up," she said.

"I'm shocked at some of the leases students sign with landlords," she said. "I was reading one that said a landlord could put a lien on personal property for non-payment of rent. Another said a student had to have written permission to have an overnight guest."

"This kind of thing wouldn't hold up in court. I am surprised that landlords get away with this."

She said she has had some questions about disorderly conduct problems "out in the town" and a couple of cases involving domestic relations.

"And then there was the one student who said his neighbor's dog got on top of his convertible and tore a hole in it," said Ms. Streeter. "I have advised him to go into small claims courts."

MS. STREETER is the daughter of Dr. Ralph T. Streeter, Indianapolis, and was graduated from Shortridge High School. She received her bachelor's degree in English in 1972 from Vassar and is a 1975 graduate of the Chicago Kent College of Law.

SIU-Carbondale students have been paying into the student attorney fund since May, 1975, at the rate of $1 per student per semester after the program was approved by the board of trustees. But students may ask for refunds which would make them ineligible for the legal service and 6 per cent have done so.

Ms. Streeter, 26, is working as an independent contractor and not as a university employee. Most of her time will be spent answering questions and not in the courtroom in her primary role as a counselor and legal consultant.

CONTRACT GUIDELINES do not permit her to represent students in any cases involving the university, the board of trustees or the state.

Operation and policy for the student attorney program will be handled by an eight-member board of directors with student representation and appointees of SIU-Carbondale President Warren W. Brandt.

She said she received some tips about the job from Patrick Conway, student attorney at Northern Illinois University where the program was started in 1972.

"I understand 72 colleges have this kind of program," said Ms. Streeter.

She had a private law practice in Chicago and taught labor law at Triton College in River Grove before coming to Carbondale and previously was a staff attorney for the Illinois Prosecutors' Advisory Council.

Fire situation gets little reaction

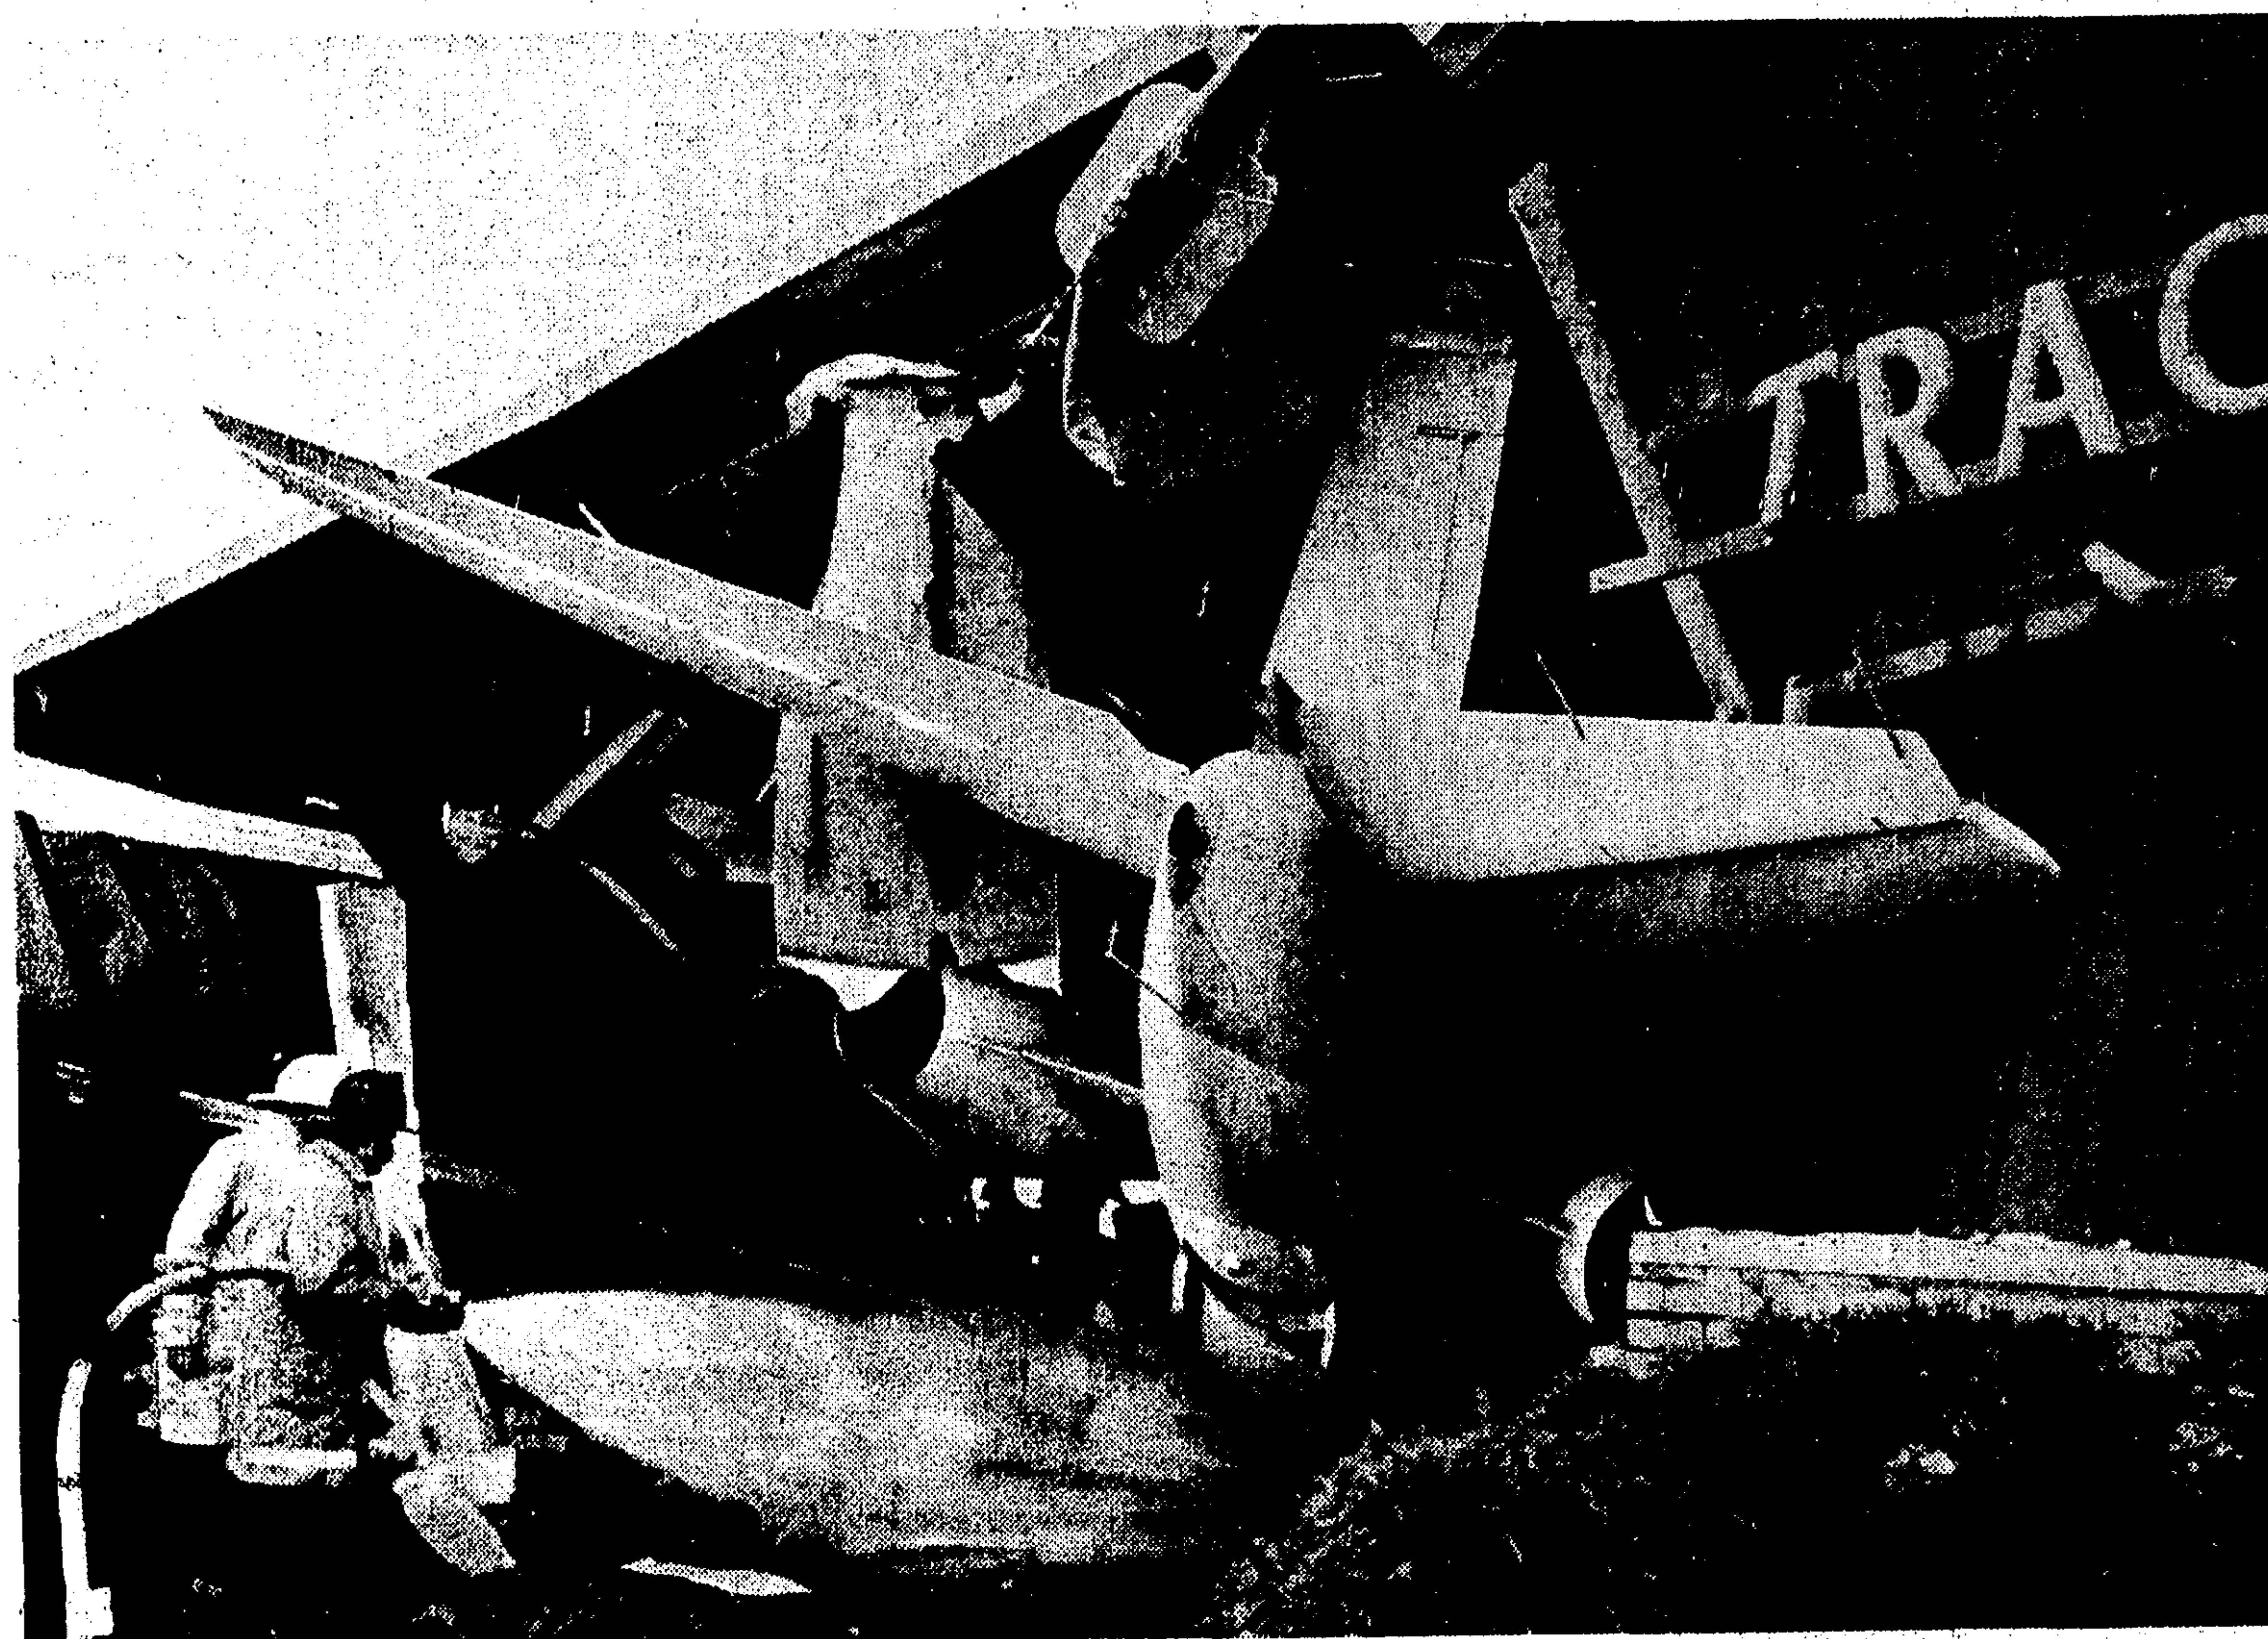

by RUTH MUGALIAN
Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty sat in his second-floor office late Wednesday afternoon as a call came in for an ambulance. It was the third such call on this relatively quiet day. As three men rushed from the station in an ambulance, a dispatcher notified all off-duty and paid volunteer firefighters that back-up men were needed at the station.

Fogarty said he did not know if anyone responded to the three routine calls for back-up help. He said he was not immediately concerned with finding out. "HOPEFULLY, WITHIN a few minutes, some men will come in," he said. But a spokesman for the city's 22 paid volunteers said he believes the calls went unanswered as the part-time firefighters began their protest against a new pay system they fear will cut into their earnings. Volunteer Firefighter John Wulfram said he is "under the impression" that the city's full-time firefighters are joining the protest by refusing to respond to back-up calls when they're off duty. Like Fogarty, Acting City Mgr. Charles Green said he was in no hurry to see if the firefighters were carrying out their threat. He'll check the department's log "in a few days," he said, and then "take appropriate action." AND NEITHER WOULD say much about how the protest will affect the city's ability to fight fires. "It's certainly not a joking matter," Green said. "But it's not earth-shattering either." But Wulfram says otherwise. "I have a wife and kids and if the department is out on a call on the other side of town, will they be protected?" he asked. If a fire truck goes to a fire, Wulfram said, it will probably be staffed by four firefighters. "Depending on the shift, that leaves three or four men at the station," he said. "That's not enough for fire and rescue." Wulfram said if the off-duty and volunteer men do not respond, the department will have to rely on neighbors. (Continued on Page 5)

by LUISA GINETTI and DEBBE JONAK
Four persons were injured Wednesday when a small business jet attempting to land at Pal-Waukee Airport in Prospect Heights crashed into an equipment dealership after skidding across a runway and striking two cars on Palatine Road. The Saberliner jet owned by Rockwell International Inc. with two persons aboard crashed into the Lewis International Inc. building, 55 E. Palatine Rd. shortly before 2 p.m. Injured in the crash and taken to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines were the pilot, John Pilato, 49, of Ambridge, Pa.; the co-pilot, Ted Chitanvar, 32, of McKees Rock, Pa.; an employee at the building, Richard Pankratz, 22, of 1500 Seven Pine St., Schaumburg, and Richard F. Bauer, 32, of 821 Lily Ln., Palatine, driver of an auto struck by the plane. Dennis Van Ewyck, 25, of Elmhurst, was the driver of the other car. He was not injured. HOSPITAL OFFICIALS reported Bauer and Pilato were released Wednesday afternoon. Chitanvar was listed in good condition with lacerations. Pankratz was reported in intensive care with lacerations on the face and arms. Hospital officials said Pankratz, an employee who was in the building when the 47-foot plane plowed through the front wall, was in stable condition and was kept overnight for observation. Cornelius Quill, investigating officer with the Cook County Sheriff's police, said the plane's jets failed to reverse, forcing the pilot to rely on his brakes for the landing. The plane made three attempts to land on the runway adjacent to Palatine Road, west of Milwaukee Avenue, Federal Aviation Administration officials said. ON THE THIRD attempt, the plane's brakes locked after the engines failed to reverse. The plane skidded the length of the runway onto the grass, bounced over Palatine Road, striking two westbound cars and then crashed nose first into the front of the building. The plane, its tail and left wing section protruding from the building, stopped three-quarters of the way into the parts section of the building, crumpling the east wall. Wheeling Fire Chief Bernie Koepfen said that when firefighters arrived at the scene both Pilato and Chitanvar were free from the wreckage, stunned but apparently not seriously hurt. Employees in the building said they heard a crash and ran out of the building when the plane came barreling into it. Nineteen employees were evacuated from the building including Pete Lewis, the owner. "I don't remember what happened," Lewis said. "There was no explosion, thank God, or we all would have been gone. It was just a loud crash." Fire officials made no attempt to move the wreckage but worked quickly to drain the plane of the 700 gallons of jet fuel in its tanks. Water hoses also were used to wash down the plane and channel leaking gasoline from inside the building to the street. Koepfen said there was no immediate damage estimate to the building. FAA officials arrived on the scene within an hour of the 2 p.m. crash. Koepfen said the plane would not be moved until today, and Wheeling fire and police officials were scheduled to monitor the area over night. Cook County Sheriff's Police and Illinois State Police directed traffic on Palatine Road as onlookers caused traffic tie-ups. The site of the building is immediately south of the Milwaukee Avenue exit on eastbound Palatine Road. FAA officials said the plane, based in Pittsburgh, was on a flight from Pontiac, Mich. Pilato declined to comment following his release from the hospital.

Monckton said the plane barely missed another car, broke its landing gear on the median strip and plowed into the Lewis International Inc. building, 55 E. Palatine Rd. "I went across to the building and there was a guy crawling out of the plane. We found a board and carried him away from the side of the plane. It was too much. I couldn't believe it," he said. MONCKTON OF GLENVIEW said the "only loud noise was when the plane shattered that guy's windshield. I can't believe anybody crawled out of there (the plane) alive," he said. Steve Rothbart, a pilot, said he was visiting a sign shop at the neighboring Palwaukee Center for Industry "when I heard the crash." "This guy came out of the side of the building and rolled over. I thought there was still somebody left but he came through the wall," he said. Marillyn Stienbrink had just walked

Judge grants duo's plea for death

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Two confessed murderers who demanded they be sentenced to death in the electric chair got their wish Wednesday after the district attorney suggested "maybe they could flip a coin to see who goes first — or sit in each other's lap." Circuit Judge Joseph Hocklander sentenced the defendants, Wayne Eugene Ritter, 23, and John Louis Evans, 27, both of Indianapolis, Ind., to die at Holman Prison on or before July 25. Both acknowledged their roles in the slaying of pawn shop operator Edward A. Nassar Jr. Jan. 5 and threatened reprisals against any juror who failed to recommend the death sentence. THE JURY RETURNED the conviction Tuesday afternoon and Hocklander held a hearing Wednesday to determine whether there were mitigating circumstances warranting a reduction of the death sentence recommended by the panel. Neither defendant would allow his court-appointed attorney to present arguments during the hearing and Hocklander ordered the executions be carried out. Alabama law provides automatic review by the State Supreme Court for capital punishment cases and Dist. Atty. Charles Graddick said he has asked chief Justice C. C. Torbert to expedite the appeal. Ritter, testifying over objections of his defense attorney, told the jury it had "no other choice" than execution. "If you give me life imprisonment I'll be out in 10 or 15 years," he said. "I know where you live, and I wouldn't appreciate spending that much time in prison."

"I'd have to come after you," he said. GRADDICK, who agreed with the defendants that they should be put to death, told the jury of 11 men and one woman: "It is a shame we only have one electric chair. Maybe they could flip a coin and see who goes first, or sit on each other's lap." The panel deliberated only 17 minutes before returning the guilty verdict. The one-day trial was the first capital case in Alabama to be filmed by television crews and recorded by radio stations. The two men were accused of shooting Nassar in the presence of his 6- and 9-year-old daughters after entering his pawn shop and asking to see a gun. Nassar's widow, dressed in black, sat near the rear of the courtroom during the trial.

Nixon talks freely on Frost show

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Richard Nixon's reactions on camera to pointed questions by television personality David Frost ranged from pleasure to discomfort, according to Marvin Minoff, vice president of Frost's Paradine Co. "Sometimes Nixon was pleased with an answer he gave and showed it," Minoff said. "Sometimes he appeared uncomfortable. But he did not refuse point blank to answer any question put to him." Minoff said he has been meeting with the former president off and on for almost two years in preparing the groundwork for the four 90-minute television interviews conducted by Frost during the past month.

THE SHOWS WILL be telecast by some 135 stations across the country beginning May 4 and continuing at weekly intervals May 12, May 19 and May 25. Minoff, who was present at 11 of the 12 Frost-Nixon taping sessions, said "Nixon was cordial with me and David and the people of the crew." "Once the cameras were going he was able to concentrate without any trouble. He's not a man who shows his feelings easily. Over the two years I've been talking to him, he seems a bit stronger now. He wasn't the man we saw on TV during Watergate." "I think the interviews are in- (Continued on Page 6)

Lincoln County bill OK'd by panel

by STEVE BROWN
SPRINGFIELD — Legislation paving the way for Northwest suburban residents to vote on seceding from Cook County, limped out of an Illinois Senate committee on one leg Wednesday with Chicago Democrats offering only limited opposition.

One bill, sponsored by State Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, was approved by the Illinois Senate Local Government Committee. The bill drastically reduces the number of signatures needed to get the so-called Lincoln County issue, a drive to take six Northwest Cook County townships out of the county, on a referendum ballot.

The committee defeated another proposal to change the size of the majority needed to have a referendum approved. Regner delayed action on a third bill. He is the chief sponsor of the package.

"LINCOLN COUNTY is still alive," Regner said after the committee session.

State Sen. Richard M. Daley, D-Chicago, voted "present" on SB 149, which changes the petition requirements. Several other Chicago Democrats followed Daley's lead. The bill passed by a 5-2 margin with three voting present.

Chicago Democrats, however, blocked passage of the second bill, SB 150, which would have reduced the number of votes needed for passage from a majority voting in an election to a majority voting on the referendum itself.

"It's nice that (Senate Bill) 149 got through but (Senate Bill) 150 is even more of a key. If 150 does not get out of committee, we have a problem," said former Palatine Village Pres. Wendell Jones, one of the main proponents of Lincoln County.

He said he sent a mailgram to members of the Senate's local government committee Tuesday urging them to approve Senate Bill 150.

Jones said that currently if 200,000 persons cast votes in a general election and the vote on a referendum to form Lincoln County is 100,000 to 0 the measure would lose by one vote.

"THE CREATION of a new county should be made tough but not impossible," Jones said.

Regner said SB 150 probably was more important to the ultimate passage of the Lincoln County effort, but agreed the approval of the petition bill was important to getting the proposal on the ballot.

Regner said the petition bill reduces the number of signatures required from one-half of the registered voters in the affected area to 10 per cent. He estimated the change would cut the number of signatures needed to about 21,000.

The committee action still must pass through the full Senate and Illinois House and signed by Gov. James R. Thompson before becoming law.

The lack of Democratic opposition may have been triggered by a representative for the Cook County Board to take a position on the bills.

"They asked me and I told them County Board Pres. George Dunne said he will not interfere," said Herman Knell, the county's legislative coordinator. Knell hinted Dunne's publicly announced "hands-off" approach may have influenced the Chicago Democrats. While Knell and Regner hinted the full Senate might follow the committee's lead, neither would offer any firm forecast on the fate of the bill.

Fire situation reaction small boring fire departments for help.

"MUTUAL AID MAY take as long as 20 minutes to respond," Wulfram said. "With normal back-up, they could respond within five minutes."

If the department has no back-up men, it can not answer its neighbors' requests for mutual aid, he said. "They can't strip the city to reciprocity."

Fogarty said that if a call comes for mutual aid, he will put out a call back and "take it from there." If no one responds, he said, "I'll have to face that when it arises."

Rolling Meadows has a mutual aid system with Arlington Heights. In the event of a major apartment or commercial fire, a call automatically goes out to Arlington Heights.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS Fire Chief John K. Hayden said Fogarty informed him Wednesday of the volunteers' threat, but said he is not concerned.

"I just said there's no difference and we'll just do what we've always done. I'm not worried about it at all and neither is the chief (Fogarty)."

Rolling Meadows volunteer firefighters earn $5 per hour, or $10 per call because they are guaranteed two hours pay. Under the new law, they still would be credited for $10 when they respond to one call but would lose it if they are unavailable for a second call within two hours.

Wulfram said that he thinks about half of the city's 22 volunteers work outside of the city. If they don't hear that second call, or can't respond because they are too far away, they receive no pay.

GREEN ACKNOWLEDGED that this is how the law works, but added, "I think there are possibilities for a middle ground."

Wulfram said he is not worried about repercussions from the department.

"This isn't my live livelihood," he said. "Most of us work eight hours a day at other jobs." He said most part-time firefighters earn between $60 and $90 every two weeks.

The volunteers will negotiate with the aldermen only if the council agrees to rescind the ordinance, Wulfram said. The council's offer to negotiate without rescinding the law is unacceptable, he added, because "that could drag on forever and ever."

4 Palatine residents held in break-ins at schools

Four Palatine residents, including the son of a Palatine police lieutenant, have been arrested in connection with a burglary ring believed responsible for recent break-ins at eight Northwest suburban schools.

Jeffrey Centner, 18, of 500 Rohlfing Rd., son of Police Lt. Robert Centner, former village police chief, was charged with criminal damage to state-supported land. He was released on $2,500 bond.

George Stevenson, 19, of 1321 Michele Dr., was charged with burglary and criminal damage to property. He is being held in Cook County Jail on $20,000 bond.

Gerald Downey, 18, of 810 Wente Ct., was charged with criminal damage to property and released on $5,000 bond.

AN UNIDENTIFIED Palatine juvenile arrested in connection with the thefts has been released to his parents' custody.

Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows and Palatine police apprehended three of the suspects a few minutes after midnight Monday when a janitor at Arlington Heights High School, 502 W. Euclid Ave., heard glass breaking and called police.

Capt. Paul Bucholz of the Arlington Heights Police Dept. said during questioning the three suspects, told police they had been involved in a recent series of school burglaries and also implicated a fourth person.

Bucholz said announcement of the arrests had been withheld until the last member of the group, Centner, was brought into the police station by his father noon Wednesday.

The three adults will have a preliminary hearing in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court today. The juvenile will be petitioned into juvenile court.

A 1968 Lincoln Continental, recovered by police from one of the suspects was turned over to the Cook County Sheriff's Dept.

BURGLARIES THE four allegedly have been implicated in include:

- John Hersey High School, 900 E. Thomas Ave., Arlington Heights, April 25.

- Edgar Allen Poe School, 2800 N. Highland Ave., Arlington Heights, April 24.

- Palatine Township School Dist. 15 administration building, 505 S. Quentin Rd., Palatine, April 23.

- William Fremd High School, 1000 Wood St., Palatine, April 23.

- Palatine High School, 150 E. Wood St., Palatine, April 23.

- Sacred Heart of Mary High School, 2800 Central Road, Rolling Meadows, April 23.

- Central Road School, 3800 Central Rd., Rolling Meadows, April 23.

Bucholz said the exact amount of property taken in any of the burglaries is unknown, although the group is believed to have taken $350 in materials from one Rolling Meadows school.

Township health center tax vote called 'realistic'

Elk Grove Township appears more eager than Schaumburg Township to embrace a tax referendum to finance the joint township mental health center.

Elk Grove Supervisor Richard Hall Wednesday called the possible tax "a realistic approach" while Schaumburg Supervisor Vernon Laubenstein said his board "would have to be sold" on the idea before it would support a referendum.

Center officials are looking toward the referendum as a way of finding $264,000 to finance a new building. State law allows townships to levy a mental health tax of 15 cents per $100 assessed valuation — $15 on a house assessed at $10,000 — if approved in referendum.

ALTHOUGH SAYING that a referendum is "one of the alternatives that would be seriously considered," Laubenstein said that Schaumburg Township officials must "Keep in mind" that the main center would be located in Elk Grove Township.

"How soon will Schaumburg Township be of a population where it's got to have a mental health center of its own?" he added, saying that his board has "concerns about a long-term commitment" to a joint center. "The decision (on a referendum) isn't going to be reached abruptly or easily," Laubenstein said.

The referendum is one alternative, he said while "Elk Grove and Schaumburg going their separate ways" is another.

PART OF THE reason the referendum is being suggested is that federal-revenue sharing funds — the mental health center's main source of income — may not be continued in 3½ years.

If that funding source dries up, Hall said the center would be faced with a "serious" funding situation and a tax levy may be the "reasonable solution."

"It's something that we're seriously looking at," Hall said. "Really, for mental health to lay some solid plans, they need some confidence that the funds will continue to be available."

Jordan Rosen, executive director of the center, said that consideration of a tax levy is "only preliminary," but when asked if that means a referendum will not be in the offing for at least a couple of years he said that the immediate plan for a main center is "a very crucial issue."

LAUBENSTEIN SAID he believes Rosen feels a "sense of urgency" about a referendum even though the revenue sharing picture will not get tight for at least 3½ years.

"I don't have that same sense of urgency," Laubenstein added. "I may feel differently in a year and a half from now, but as of now, I don't feel that sense of urgency."

There could be benefits in examining the tax possibility soon, however, Hall said. If a referendum was passed before the possible elimination of the revenue-sharing funds, he said, Elk Grove Township could use its funds on other projects.

"From that standpoint, there's no reason to delay it," Hall added.

MEANWHILE, THE center has hired a director of development and public affairs who is credited with the approval of a mental health tax in Lyons and Riverside townships.

Stanley Glickman was mental health director in that area for eight years, and he is "to identify unmet mental health needs of an expanding population" such as the "primary need" for a central building, Rosen said in a written statement.

Rosen denied that Glickman's referendum experience was the primary reason that he was hired.

"I just think he's got a variety of experiences," Rosen said.

DeLuca wept at his arrest, questioning, detective says

Frank DeLuca, accused slayer of an Elk Grove Village family, wept when police arrested him, accused him of the murders and confronted him with evidence, a police detective testified Wednesday.

Lt. Frank Braun of the Cook County Sheriff's police took the witness stand Wednesday in Cook County Circuit Court, and told how police apprehended and questioned DeLuca on July 17, 1976.

Braun testified at a pretrial hearing on a motion by DeLuca's defense attorney, Michael J. Toomin, to quash DeLuca's arrest and suppress statements he gave to police.

DeLUCA, 39, AND Patricia Columbo, 20, are charged with the May 4, 1976 slayings of Miss Columbo's parents, Frank and Mary Columbo and her brother, Michael, 13, of 55 Brantwood Dr., Elk Grove Village.

Police arrested and charged Miss Columbo with the slayings May 15, 1976. Police arrested DeLuca two months later after a Cook County Grand Jury July 16 indicted him in the killings.

Braun said DeLuca offered no resistance when police arrested him at his apartment at 502 Ardmore Ave., Villa

Park. Police transported DeLuca to the Elk Grove Village police station where he was questioned.

Speaking about DeLuca's statements, Braun said, "He was surprised it took us so long to arrest him because he knew he was going down on it."

Braun said police showed DeLuca photographs of handprints investigators had found on a Columbo family car investigators recovered on Chicago's West Side shortly after the May killings. The recovery of the stolen auto led to the discovery of the bodies of the Columbo family May 7, 1976.

THE HAND PRINTS reportedly are those of a man who is missing a finger on his left hand, police have said. DeLuca is missing one finger and part of another on his left hand as a result of a parachuting accident.

DeLuca told police, "Well, they ain't mine," Braun said. When pressed about the hand prints, DeLuca began to cry, Braun said.

Next pretrial hearing is 10 a.m. today in Judge R. Eugene Pincham's courtroom in the Cook County Criminal Courts building, 26th Street and California Avenue, Chicago.

Correction

A request to the Palatine Township Board for full-time funding for the township's youth health counselor, Kathleen Eggers, was made by the Palatine Township Youth Committee, not The Crossroads clinic as reported in The Herald Wednesday.

Advanced degrees for teachers

by PAM BIGFORD
A center for graduate studies run by the Peabody College for Teachers will be established in East Maine Dist. 63 in Des Plaines.

"This will give us the opportunity to serve our staff as well as the community and other districts," said James Bowen, Dist. 63 business manager.

Bowen said the Dist. 63 Board of Education Tuesday approved the center, which is scheduled to begin classes in January 1978.

BOWEN SAID teachers who want to get master's degrees or doctorates now usually have to go to Northern Illinois University in DeKalb or the National College of Education in Evanston.

Tentative plans are to hold classes in the Dist. 63 administration center, 10150 Dee Rd., Des Plaines, and to use the learning center in the attached school, Apollo Junior High, Bowen said.

Bowen said Peabody College has a main campus in Nashville, Tenn., another graduate center in New Orleans, La., and has plans to open a campus eventually in Washington, D.C. Harvard University also operates similar centers.

"Institutions of higher learning are finding they have to go outside their own physical facilities to reach students," Bowen said.

ESTABLISHMENT OF the center will cost Dist. 63 nothing, Bowen said. Peabody College will pay all costs from tuition paid by students.

Bowen said Peabody officials will be in charge of all college operations including deciding which students to accept. Plans are to enroll from 55 to 70 students the first term, he said.

"This is something we've been thinking about for a long time," Bowen said, "but we just never had the opportunity to do it until now."

Loss of unit vote prompts Dist. 214 rehiring of 106

High School Dist. 214 has rehired 106 of the 128 nontenured teachers who were released last month because of the "uncertainty" surrounding the Elk Grove Township unit school district question.

The Dist. 214 Board of Education Monday rehired 40 of the 57 first-year teachers who had been honorably dismissed and 66 of the 71 second-year teachers. Of the second-year teachers, 64 were granted tenure and two were put on third year probationary status.

"With the unit district question finally laid to rest we can now get back to the business of educating kids and staffing up for next year," Robert Cudney, assistant superintendent for personnel services, said.

As student enrollments in various subject areas are assessed and teacher resignations and leave requests filed, Cudney said he is confident most of the 22 probationary teachers "on hold" will be rehired.

"They're all excellent teachers," he said. "There was never any question about their performance."

The board dismissed the 128 nontenured teachers because officials were unsure whether an Elk Grove Township unit school district would be formed and how many teachers from Elk Grove and Forest View high schools would remain with Dist. 214 if voters approved the unit district.

Dist. 214 attorneys said they were unsure of the district's legal responsibility if more tenured teachers than could be accommodated chose to stay with the high school district rather than go with the unit district.

According to state law, teachers who are going to be dismissed at the end of the term must be given 60 days notice.

School bell rings earlier

Students at Forest View and Rolling Meadows high schools will start school 10 minutes earlier next year.

To optimize the use of buses, the Dist. 214 board voted to have the Forest View students begin school at 7:40 rather than 7:50 a.m. and to have the Rolling Meadows students start class at 8:20 rather than 8:40 a.m.

Starting times at the district's six other high schools will remain the same for the 1977-78 school year. Arlington High will begin at 8:20 a.m.; Prospect, Hersey and Wheeling high schools at 7:50 a.m.; Elk Grove High School at 8 a.m.; and Buffalo Grove High School at 8:40 a.m.

Bill to pay witnesses in delayed cases urged

A bill that would seek to protect trial witnesses from lengthy court delays by paying them for unwarranted continuances has been introduced by State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston.

Porter's proposal, now before the House judiciary committee, would give the court discretion to assess against delaying attorneys a $25 penalty to be paid to witnesses who repeatedly appeared in court only to learn a case would be delayed.

"It's about time that the law gives some recognition to the rights of witnesses," Porter, an attorney, said. He said the bill would provide a "mechanism to penalize the unscrupulous lawyer who would use this type of delay to discourage attendance of opposing witnesses."

"I THINK WITNESSES are victimized by our courts," Porter said. He said attorneys will seek repeated delays in both criminal and civil cases as a "tactic simply to wear down the witnesses" so that a case might be eventually dropped.

Clive Tobol, assistant counsel for the Illinois State Bar Assn., Tuesday said the association has not considered the bill and has adopted no stand on it.

Porter said he has received no feedback from attorneys or bar associations on the bill, but added, "I think you can assume that attorneys in general would oppose it but the average citizen would support it."

Lengthy court delays are common in both civil and criminal cases, particularly in the state circuit court, and Porter Tuesday said the pattern "is not getting any better to my knowledge."

"THERE SEEMS TO be no strong incentive to provide some limitation on the number of times (continuances) can be taken," he said. He said the State Supreme Court could take steps to deal with the problem of continuances but that action has not come because judges are reluctant to put limitations on attorneys.

"The difficulty is that judges deal with lawyers every day," he said. "The lawyers are their audience and they are the ones that rate them and many people use those ratings at retention time."

Porter said if the bill fails he will

by SAMUEL O. HANCOCK

CARBONDALE, Ill. (UPI) — Elizabeth Berg Streeter picked up some 20,000 potential clients her first day on the job April 4 as the first student attorney for Southern Illinois University-Carbondale's undergraduate and graduate population.

"I'm really excited about the job," said Ms. Streeter. "I'm still waiting for a telephone and typewriter and don't have a secretary yet."

Some rearranging of space to provide more privacy for student clients, room for a library, and a private office also are planned in her allotted space in the student government office at SIU's Student Center.

"I've had about six students a day in to see me so far, I'm sure business is going to pick up," she said.

"I'm shocked at some of the leases students sign with landlords," she said. "I was reading one that said a landlord could put a lien on personal property for non-payment of rent. Another said a student had to have written permission to have an overnight guest."

"This kind of thing wouldn't hold up in court. I am surprised that landlords get away with this."

She said she has had some questions about disorderly conduct problems "out in the town" and a couple of cases involving domestic relations.

"And then there was the one student who said his neighbor's dog got on top of his convertible and tore a hole in it," said Ms. Streeter. "I have advised him to go into small claims courts."

MS. STREETER is the daughter of Dr. Ralph T. Streeter, Indianapolis, and was graduated from Shortridge High School. She received her bachelor's degree in English in 1972 from Vassar and is a 1975 graduate of the Chicago Kent College of Law.

SIU-Carbondale students have been paying into the student attorney fund since May, 1975, at the rate of $1 per student per semester after the program was approved by the board of trustees. But students may ask for refunds which would make them ineligible for the legal service and 6 per cent have done so.

Ms. Streeter, 26, is working as an independent contractor and not as a university employee. Most of her time will be spent answering questions and not in the courtroom in her primary role as a counselor and legal consultant.

CONTRACT GUIDELINES do not permit her to represent students in any cases involving the university, the board of trustees or the state.

Operation and policy for the student attorney program will be handled by an eight-member board of directors with student representation and appointees of SIU-Carbondale President Warren W. Brandt.

She said she received some tips about the job from Patrick Conway, student attorney at Northern Illinois University where the program was started in 1972.

"I understand 72 colleges have this kind of program," said Ms. Streeter.

She had a private law practice in Chicago and taught labor law at Triton College in River Grove before coming to Carbondale and previously was a staff attorney for the Illinois Prosecutors' Advisory Council.

Riders take to A Train as Duke's tribute

NEW YORK (UPI) — Harlem subway riders shouting "Soup me up! Soup me up!" joined Duke Ellington's old band aboard the A Train Wednesday for a frenetic nostalgia trip in tribute to the late, great musician.

To the delight of surprised passengers the band broke into "Take the A Train" as the subway roared into the 125th Street Station near the old Apollo Theatre and other Harlem nightspots that helped launch Ellington to greatness.

The riders climbed atop seats, clapped their hands and chanted "Do it, do it," when the four musicians hauled their instruments aboard the middle car, which police had tried in vain to empty.

Actually it was a publicity stunt for a Manhattan jazz spot called Storyville where the band is playing a gig. But a couple of Ellington myths were dispelled.

"Actually Duke always told me and mama to take a cab after we moved up here from Washington," confided Ellington's sister, Ruth.

Even the publicity agent said he did not know that "Take the A Train" was written by Ellington's co-composer and co-arranger, Billy Strayhorn, who died in 1967.

Four arrested in burglary ring

Four Palatine residents, including the son of a Palatine police lieutenant, have been arrested in connection with a burglary ring believed responsible for recent break-ins at eight Northwest suburban schools.

Jeffrey Centner, 18, of 500 Rohlwing Rd., son of Police Lt. Robert Centner, former village police chief, was charged with criminal damage to state-supported land. He was released on $2,500 bond.

George Stevenson, 19, of 1321 Michele Dr., was charged with burglary and criminal damage to property. He is being held in Cook County Jail on $20,000 bond.

Gerald Downey, 18, of 810 Wente Ct., was charged with criminal damage to property and released on $5,000 bond.

AN UNIDENTIFIED Palatine juvenile arrested in connection with the thefts has been released to his parents' custody.

Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows and Palatine police apprehended three of the suspects a few minutes after midnight Monday when a janitor at Arlington Heights High School, 502 W. Euclid Ave., heard glass breaking and called police.

Capt. Paul Bucholz of the Arlington Heights Police Dept. said during questioning the three suspects, told police they had been involved in a recent series of school burglaries and also implicated a fourth person.

Bucholz said announcement of the arrests had been withheld until the last member of the group, Centner, was brought into the police station by his father noon Wednesday.

The three adults will have a preliminary hearing in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court today. The juvenile will be petitioned into juvenile court.

A 1968 Lincoln Continental, recovered by police from one of the suspects was turned over to the Cook County Sheriff's Dept.

BURGLARIES THE four allegedly have been implicated in include:

- John Hersey High School, 900 E. Thomas Ave., Arlington Heights, April 25.
- Edgar Allen Poe School, 2800 N. Highland Ave., Arlington Heights, April 24.
- Palatine Township School Dist. 15 administration building, 505 S. Quentin Rd., Palatine, April 23.

by LUISA GINETTI and DEBBE JONAK

Four persons were injured Wednesday when a small business jet attempting to land at Pal-Waukee Airport in Prospect Heights crashed into an equipment dealership after skidding across a runway and striking two cars on Palatine Road.

The Saberliner jet owned by Rockwell International Inc. with two persons aboard crashed into the Lewis International Inc. building, 55 E. Palatine Rd. shortly before 2 p.m.

Injured in the crash and taken to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines were the pilot, John Pilato, 49, of Ambridge, Pa.; the co-pilot, Ted Chitanvar, 32, of McKees Rock, Pa.; an employee at the building, Richard Pankratz, 22, of 1500 Seven Pine St., Schaumburg, and Richard F. Bauer, 32, of 821 Lily Ln., Palatine, driver of an auto struck by the plane. Dennis Van Ewyck, 25, of Elmhurst, was the driver of the other car. He was not injured.

HOSPITAL OFFICIALS reported Bauer and Pilato were released Wednesday afternoon. Chitanvar was listed in good condition with lacerations. Pankratz was reported in intensive care with lacerations on the face and arms.

Hospital officials said Pankratz, an employee who was in the building when the 47-foot plane plowed through the front wall, was in stable condition and was kept overnight for observation.

Cornelius Quill, investigating officer with the Cook County Sheriff's police, said the plane's jets failed to reverse, forcing the pilot to rely on his brakes for the landing.

The plane made three attempts to land on the runway adjacent to Palatine Road, west of Milwaukee Avenue, Federal Aviation Administration officials said.

ON THE THIRD attempt, the plane's brakes locked after the engines failed to reverse. The plane skidded the length of the runway onto the grass, bounced over Palatine Road, striking two westbound cars and then crashed nose first into the front of the building.

The plane, its tail and left wing section protruding from the building, stopped three-quarters of the way into the parts section of the building, crumbling the east wall.

Wheeling Fire Chief Bernie Koepfen said that when firefighters arrived at the scene both Pilato and Chitanvar were free from the wreckage, stunned but apparently not seriously hurt.

Employees in the building said they heard a crash and ran out of the building when the plane came barreling into it. Nineteen employees were evacuated from the building including Pete Lewis, the owner.

"I don't remember what happened," Lewis said. "There was no explosion, thank God, or we all would have been gone. It was just a loud crash."

Fire officials made no attempt to move the wreckage but worked quickly to drain the plane of the 700 gallons of jet fuel in its tanks. Water hoses also were used to wash down the plane and channel leaking gasoline from inside the building to the street.

Koepfen said there was no immediate damage estimate to the building.

FAA officials arrived on the scene within an hour of the 2 p.m. crash. Koepfen said the plane would not be moved until today, and Wheeling fire and police officials were scheduled to monitor the area over night.

Cook County Sheriff's Police and Illinois State Police directed traffic on Palatine Road as onlookers caused traffic tie-ups. The site of the building is immediately south of the Milwaukee Avenue exit on eastbound Palatine Road.

FAA officials said the plane, based in Pittsburgh, was on a flight from Pontiac, Mich.

Pilato declined to comment following his release from the hospital.

Swooping descent lasts only seconds

by LINDA PUNCH

"I saw it for just an instant. Then it hit my car. I saw the plane and I knew it was going to hit."

That's how Dennis Van Ewyck, a carpeting salesman from Elmhurst, described the Wednesday afternoon crash of a Saberliner jet near Pal-Waukee Airport. Van Ewyck was driving west on Palatine Road south of the airport when he saw the plane.

"There was no way to avoid it. I instinctively put my head down. I heard a crash and as I looked up, I could see that my back window was knocked out," he said.

VAN EWYCK, 25, said the impact of the crash pushed his late-model, blue Buick LeSabre across the road, where it stopped several hundred yards later.

"It was all over in a matter of seconds. The right wing was over the car; the body of the plane fell over my trunk. I feel very lucky. I don't see how it could have been any closer," he said.

Mike Monckton, who was riding his motorcycle just behind Van Ewyck's car, said the jet hit a grass mound at the end of the runway and "skimmed the car."

"I was just about to pass the car and I saw the plane coming out of the corner of my eye. I knew he wasn't going to take off," he said.

Monckton said the plane barely missed another car, broke its landing gear on the median strip and plowed into the Lewis International Inc. building, 55 E. Palatine Rd.

"I went across to the building and there was a guy crawling out of the plane. We found a board and carried him away from the side of the plane. It was too much. I couldn't believe it," he said.

MONCKTON OF GLENVIEW said the "only loud noise was when the plane shattered that guy's windshield. I can't believe anybody crawled out of there (the plane) alive," he said.

Steve Rothbart, a pilot, said he was visiting a sign shop at the neighboring Pal-Waukee Center for Industry "when I heard the crash."

"This guy came out of the side of the building and rolled over. I thought there was still somebody left but he came through the wall," he said.

Judge grants duo's plea for death

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Two confessed murderers who demanded they be sentenced to death in the electric chair got their wish Wednesday after the district attorney suggested "maybe they could flip a coin to see who goes first — or sit in each other's lap."

Circuit Judge Joseph Hocklander sentenced the defendants, Wayne Eugene Ritter, 23, and John Louis Evans, 27, both of Indianapolis, Ind., to die at Holman Prison on or before July 25.

Both acknowledged their roles in the slaying of pawn shop operator Edward A. Nassar Jr. Jan. 5 and threatened reprisals against any juror who failed to recommend the death sentence.

THE JURY RETURNED the conviction Tuesday afternoon and Hocklander held a hearing Wednesday to determine whether there were mitigating circumstances warranting a reduction of the death sentence recommended by the panel.

Neither defendant would allow his court-appointed attorney to present arguments during the hearing and Hocklander ordered the executions be carried out.

Alabama law provides automatic review by the State Supreme Court for capital punishment cases and Dist. Atty. Charles Graddick said he has asked chief Justice C. C. Torbert to expedite the appeal.

Ritter, testifying over objections of his defense attorney, told the jury it had "no other choice" than execution.

"If you give me life imprisonment I'll be out in 10 or 15 years," he said. "I know where you live, and I wouldn't appreciate spending that much time in prison."

"I'd have to come after you," he said.

GRADDICK, who agreed with the defendants that they should be put to death, told the jury of 11 men and one woman: "It is a shame we only have one electric chair. Maybe they could flip a coin and see who goes first, or sit on each other's lap."

The panel deliberated only 17 minutes before returning the guilty verdict. The one-day trial was the first capital case in Alabama to be filmed by television crews and recorded by radio stations.

The two men were accused of shooting Nassar in the presence of his 6- and 9-year-old daughters after entering his pawn shop and asking to see a gun.

Nassar's widow, dressed in black, sat near the rear of the courtroom during the trial.

Nixon talks freely on Frost show

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Richard Nixon's reactions on camera to pointed questions by television personality David Frost ranged from pleasure to discomfort, according to Marvin Minoff, vice president of Frost's Paradine Co.

"Sometimes Nixon was pleased with an answer he gave and showed it," Minoff said. "Sometimes he appeared uncomfortable. But he did not refuse point blank to answer any question put to him."

Minoff said he has been meeting with the former president off and on for almost two years in preparing the groundwork for the four 90-minute television interviews conducted by Frost during the past month.

THE SHOWS WILL be telecast by some 135 stations across the country beginning May 4 and continuing at weekly intervals May 12, May 19 and May 25.

Minoff, who was present at 11 of the 12 Frost-Nixon taping sessions, said "Nixon was cordial with me and David and the people of the crew."

"Once the cameras were going he was able to concentrate without any trouble. He's not a man who shows his feelings easily. Over the two years I've been talking to him, he seems a bit stronger now. He wasn't the man we saw on TV during Watergate."

"I think the interviews are in-

Bill on Lincoln County passes in Senate committee

by STEVE BROWN
SPRINGFIELD — Legislation paving the way for Northwest suburban residents to vote on seceding from Cook County, limped out of an Illinois Senate committee on one leg Wednesday with Chicago Democrats offering only limited opposition.

One bill, sponsored by State Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, was approved by the Illinois Senate

Local Government Committee. The bill drastically reduces the number of signatures needed to get the so-called Lincoln County issue, a drive to take six Northwest Cook County townships out of the county, on a referendum ballot.

The committee defeated another proposal to change the size of the majority needed to have a referendum approved. Regner delayed action on a third bill. He is the chief sponsor of the package.

"LINCOLN COUNTY is still alive," Regner said after the committee session.

State Sen. Richard M. Daley, D-Chicago, voted "present" on SB 149, which changes the petition requirements. Several other Chicago Democrats followed Daley's lead. The bill passed by a 5-2 margin with three voting present.

Chicago Democrats, however, blocked passage of the second bill, SB 150, which would have reduced the number of votes needed for passage from a majority voting in an election to a majority voting on the referendum itself.

"It's nice that (Senate Bill) 149 got through but (Senate Bill) 150 is even more of a year. If 150 does not get out of committee, we have a problem," said former Palatine Village Pres. Wendell Jones, one of the main proponents of Lincoln County.

He said he sent a mailgram to members of the Senate's local government committee Tuesday urging them to approve Senate Bill 150.

Jones said that currently if 200,000 persons cast votes in a general election and the vote on a referendum to form Lincoln County is 100,000 to 0 the measure would lose by one vote.

"THE CREATION OF a new county should be made tough but not impossible," Jones said.

Regner said SB 150 probably was more important to the ultimate passage of the Lincoln County effort, but agreed the approval of the petition bill was important to getting the proposal on the ballot.

Regner said the petition bill reduces the number of signatures required from one-half of the registered voters in the affected area to 10 per cent. He estimated the change would cut the number of signatures needed to about 21,000.

The committee action still must pass through the full Senate and Illinois House and signed by Gov. James R. Thompson before becoming law.

The lack of Democratic opposition may have been triggered by a representative for the Cook County Board to take a position on the bills.

"They asked me and I told them County Board Pres. George Dunne said he will not interfere," said Herman Knell, the county's legislative coordinator. Knell hinted Dunne's publicly announced "hands-off" approach may have influenced the Chicago Democrats. While Knell and Regner hinted the full Senate might follow the committee's lead, neither would offer any firm forecast on the fate of the bill.

Library plans cuts to meet budget

Projected budget deficits of $115,000 through 1981 have led the Palatine Public Library Board to adopt a policy of austere spending that will mean cuts in the library's book budget and possible salary freezes.

Meeting as a committee-of-the-whole Wednesday night, the board heard a grim report on the status of library finances, which led to the recommendation to adopt a five-year austerity plan.

The plan calls for the board to limit spending only to anticipated revenues through 1981-82. The policy will demand sharp budget scrutiny in the areas of staff salary and book purchases, officials said.

JAMES ORCUTT, chairman of the finance committee, said deficits through 1981-82 will be about $115,000, but a carryover of that amount from last year's budget will tide the library over the critical five-year period.

The carryover funds were generated mainly from money from the sale of the old library last year. The library sold its old building at 149 S.

Brockway St. for $136,000 when the new facility at 500 N. Benton St. was opened in November 1975.

The library district taxes at the maximum rate of 23 cents per $100 assessed valuation allowed under state law. Orcutt said a referendum to increase the rate was considered but abandoned because officials believed it would have little chance of passing.

"I don't think a referendum would have a ghost of a chance," Gerald McElroy, library board president, said.

Andrea Balcken, administrative librarian, said until assessed valuation figures are received for the entire district, actual spending and cuts cannot be determined. She said assessed valuation figures should be released in late June.

BASED ON ESTIMATED assessed valuation figures of $197 million, Ms. Balcken said revenues are expected to total $471,650 for 1977-78 while spending is projected at $510,066, leaving a $38,416 deficit.

The projected expenses, which are included in the library's preliminary 1977-78 budget, call for a $20,000 or 17 per cent reduction in the book budget over last year as well as no salary increases for staff.

Ms. Balcken told the committee a 5 per cent across-the-board salary increase will require between $11,000 and $12,000.

Students take gripe to Dist. 211 tonight

Palatine High School students will appear tonight before the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education to discuss Principal Leonard Newendorp's decision to exclude boys from a program on rape.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. at the administration center, 1750 S. Roselle Rd., Palatine.

The students have said they will discuss why they believe the boys should not have been barred from the program, entitled "The Violent Crime — Rape."

The students already have met twice with Dist. 211 administrators, and said last week they were not satisfied with answers to their questions.

A request to the Palatine Township Board for full-time funding for the township's youth health counselor, Kathleen Eggers, was made by the Palatine Township Youth Committee, not The Crossroads clinic as reported in The Herald Wednesday.

Park board wrapup

Meeting on high school buy asked

Waldon Degner, president of the Palatine Park Board, will request a meeting with the Palatine Village Board to discuss the possible joint purchase and renovation of the old Palatine High School.

Park board members Tuesday said they want to discuss plans to raze the 1929 portion of the school, 150 E. Wood St., for a parking lot. The park district and village tentatively have agreed to split the cost of demolition of the building and construction of the parking lot. An architect's report estimated demolition would cost $75,000. There is no estimate for the parking lot.

The park board approved the calling of a referendum June 4 to ask residents if the district should sell bonds with $660,000 for the park district's share of the acquisition and renovation costs. Village of Palatine voters also will be asked to vote June 4 on a referendum concerning the acquisition and renovation of its share of the school property.

Equipment purchases approved

The $4,300 purchase of playground equipment for Eagle Park and $800 purchase of playground equipment for Palatine Hills Golf Course was approved this week by the Palatine Park Board.

A Flying Gym, swing set, twisting slide, whirl and pony swing will be installed at Eagle Park. A small swing set and slide will be put in at the golf course.

Las Vegas night set

Willow Wood Civic Assn. is sponsoring a Las Vegas Night to benefit the Palatine paramedic program and Countryside Center for the Handicapped at 8 p.m. Saturday. The event will be at St. Thomas of Villanova Parish Hall, 1141 E. Anderson Dr., Palatine.

The $10 per couple admission includes two free drinks, door prize tickets, play money and food.

Correction

The over-all budget for the Palatine Township Youth Committee will increase $9,000, not $25,000 as reported Tuesday in the Herald.

The youth committee's budget total of $121,000 for last year did not include $18,000 for the committee's alternative school. The alternative school was listed as a separate line item on the 1976-77 budget to which the committee's new budget of $146,000, including the alternative school, was compared.

Panel to honor good landscaping

The Palatine Beautification Committee is sponsoring a commercial recognition program to honor businesses, churches, parks and schools that significantly contribute to village beautification.

The program is open to all Palatine businesses, industries, medical centers, churches, cemeteries, parks and schools. The beautification committee will select a slate of nominees this spring and each premise will be photographed.

In late summer committee members will visit each nominee location to compare the photo and the site and evaluate changes.

Judging will be based on balance of landscape to the building, real rather than artificial plants or flowers, landscaped screening of parking lots to streets and neighbors and the quality of maintenance.

Winners will be named at a special reception in September.

Ardys Fitzgerald and Darlene Bailey are in charge of the program.

Free tennis clinics

Palatine Park District will offer a series of free tennis clinics for youngsters 8 to 16 years old at the Birchwood Park gymnasium, 435 W. Illinois ave.

The Saturday clinics are scheduled April 30, forehand techniques; May 14, backhand techniques; and May 21, service techniques.

The clinics are designed for those with little or no tennis experience and will be held from 10:30 a.m. to noon. Enrollment is limited to 50 players per session.

To register call 991-1960.

Free fertilizer Saturday at center

Nu-Earth, a processed fertilizer recommended for use in flower gardens, will be available free from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday at the Palatine Recycling Center, Northwest Highway and Smith Street.

The fertilizer give-away is sponsored by the Palatine Beautification Committee.

For more information, call Darlene Bailey at 359-5374.

Classes for children who will be 4 years old before Dec. 1 are offered at Maple, Community and Birchwood parks from 9 to 11 a.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday; Maple Park from 1 to 3 p.m., Monday, Wednesday and Friday; at Maple Park from 1 to 3 p.m., Tuesdays and Thursdays and at Community Park from 1 to 3 p.m., Monday and Wednesday.

The fee for classes that meet twice a week is $16. There is a $24 fee for classes meeting three times a week.

Proof of residency and one month's fee is required at registration. A parent of each child enrolled in the program is required to serve as an aide in the preschool class about once every two months.

Hoffman Estates wins ruling in Shefner suit

Hoffman Estates Wednesday won what may be the final test of its 1974 decision to zone land on the village's west side for industry.

The 1st District Illinois Appellate Court upheld a March 27, 1975, Cook County Circuit Court ruling against a lawsuit filed by developer Nathan Shefner.

Shefner had sued the village after it refused to zone 53 acres between Barrington and Freeman roads, south of Mundhank Road, for 490 townhouses. The village had zoned the property for manufacturing as part of a plan to develop its western borders as industrial area.

THE FOCUS of Shefner's appeal had been that village officials had encouraged his development of the property and then failed to allow him reasonable time to present and discuss his plans.

"Although the officials were encouraging," responded Justice Melvin Jiganti in delivering the appellate court's opinion, "they did not indicate that the property would be rezoned to accommodate plaintiff's (Shefner) plans. No formal action was taken by the plan commission or the board of trustees."

Village Mgr. George P. Longmeyer applauded Wednesday's ruling.

"The court decision takes things out of the realm of the zoning being reviewed and solidifies the village's manufacturing zoning for the parcel," he said.

The decision ends 2½ years of court battles since Hoffman Estates rejected the Shefner proposal.

The Barrington Area Council of Governments also had worked on the side of Hoffman Estates in the legal dispute.

Village board wrapup

Fire lanes approved

The Palatine Village Board has approved requests for the installation of fire lanes in front of the Jewel Food Store, 45 S. Plum Grove Rd., along certain sections bordering the Park Towne Apartments, 140 W. Wood St., and in the circular driveway surrounding the clubhouse at the Palatine Hills Golf Course.

Fremd girls honored

A resolution honoring the Fremd High School girls basketball team was passed by the board. The team, with a 65-2 record, captured third place in the recent Illinois Girls High School Basketball Tournament.

Township board wrapup

Agencies granted temporary funding

Funding for the Northwest Opportunity Center and the Regional Youth Service Bureau was extended on a monthly basis by the Palatine Township Board until it has heard all requests for federal revenue-sharing funds.

Requests for $21,000 by the Northwest Opportunity Center and $11,030 by the youth service bureau were delayed after Trustee James Wilson this week urged the board to wait until all other requests were in.

Wilson said if the full amounts are granted as the requests are made, "Whoever gets here last might not get any of the pie."

Instead of the full request the board offered the monthly funding, based on one-twelfth of last year's allocation to the agency.

"This will keep you afloat while we're sitting down what funds are going to be available to these agencies," Township Supervisor Howard Olsen told representatives of the two social service groups.

'Dismiss county zoning panel'

A resolution calling for the dismissal of the entire Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals was passed by the township board.

Written by Highway Comm. Robert Bergman, the resolution noted the indictment of Zoning Board Sec. Paul Marcy for income tax evasion as one of the reasons for the call for dismissal.

"The elected township officials believe that the taint of investigation of the executive secretary of the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals for alleged wrongdoing and corruption will make it impossible for the . . . board to properly conduct business," the resolution read in part.

The resolution recommended that the zoning board be replaced with a blue ribbon, nonpartisan group. The lengthy resolution also called for greater local control of streets and building sites by the townships.

Olsen suggested the section calling for the dismissal of the zoning board be deleted, but other board members agreed to leave it in the resolution.

30 streets set for repaving

Thirty streets in Palatine tentatively have been slated for resurfacing or repaving work this summer as part of the village's street maintenance program.

Student attorney gains 20,000 potential clients

by SAMUEL O. HANCOCK

CARBONDALE, Ill. (UPI) — Elizabeth Berg Streeter picked up some 20,000 potential clients her first day on the job April 4 as the first student attorney for Southern Illinois University-Carbondale's undergraduate and graduate population.

"I'm really excited about the job," said Ms. Streeter. "I'm still waiting for a telephone and typewriter and don't have a secretary yet."

Some rearranging of space to provide more privacy for student clients, room for a library, and a private office also are planned in her allotted space in the student government office at SIU's Student Center.

"I've had about six students a day in to see me so far and I'm sure business is going to pick up," she said.

"I'm shocked at some of the leases students sign with landlords," she said. "I was reading one that said a landlord could put a lien on personal property for non-payment of rent. Another said a student had to have written permission to have an overnight guest."

"This kind of thing wouldn't hold up in court. I am surprised that landlords get away with this."

She said she has had some questions about disorderly conduct problems "out in the town" and a couple of cases involving domestic relations.

"And then there was the one student who said his neighbor's dog got on top of his convertible and tore a hole in it," said Ms. Streeter. "I have advised him to go into small claims courts."

MS. STREETER is the daughter of Dr. Ralph T. Streeter, Indianapolis, and was graduated from Shortridge High School. She received her bachelor's degree in English in 1972 from Vassar and is a 1975 graduate of the Chicago Kent College of Law.

SIU-Carbondale students have been paying into the student attorney fund since May, 1975, at the rate of $1 per student per semester after the program was approved by the board of trustees. But students may ask for refunds which would make them ineligible for the legal service and 6 per cent have done so.

Ms. Streeter, 26, is working as an independent contractor and not as a university employee. Most of her time will be spent answering questions and not in the courtroom in her primary role as a counselor and legal consultant.

CONTRACT GUIDELINES do not permit her to represent students in any cases involving the university, the board of trustees or the state.

Operation and policy for the student attorney program will be handled by an eight-member board of directors with student representation and appointees of SIU-Carbondale President Warren W. Brandt.

She said she received some tips about the job from Patrick Conway, student attorney at Northern Illinois University where the program was started in 1972.

"I understand 72 colleges have this kind of program," said Ms. Streeter.

She had a private law practice in Chicago and taught labor law at Triton College in River Grove before coming to Carbondale and previously was a staff attorney for the Illinois Prosecutors' Advisory Council.

Riders take to A Train as Duke's tribute

NEW YORK (UPI) — Harlem subway riders shouting "Soup me up! Soup me up!" joined Duke Ellington's old band aboard the A Train Wednesday for a frenetic nostalgia trip in tribute to the late, great musician.

To the delight of surprised passengers the band broke into "Take the A Train" as the subway roared into the 125th Street Station near the old Apollo Theatre and other Harlem nightspots that helped launch Ellington to greatness.

The riders climbed atop seats, clapped their hands and chanted "Do it, do it," when the four musicians hauled their instruments aboard the middle car, which police had tried in vain to empty.

"DUKE WOULD have loved this," said Arnold J. Smith of New York, a passenger who claimed to be an authority on Ellington, who would have celebrated his 78th birthday this Friday. "He loved trains."

Actually it was a publicity stunt for a Manhattan jazz spot called Storyville where the band is playing a gig. But a couple of Ellington myths were dispelled.

"Actually Duke always told me and mama to take a cab after we moved up here from Washington," confided Ellington's sister, Ruth.

Even the publicity agent said he did not know that "Take the A Train" was written by Ellington's co-composer and co-arranger, Billy Strayhorn, who died in 1967.

4 injured in area jet crash

by LUISA GINETTI and DEBBE JONAK

Four persons were injured Wednesday when a small business jet attempting to land at Pal-Waukee Airport in Prospect Heights crashed into an equipment dealership after skidding across a runway and striking two cars on Palatine Road.

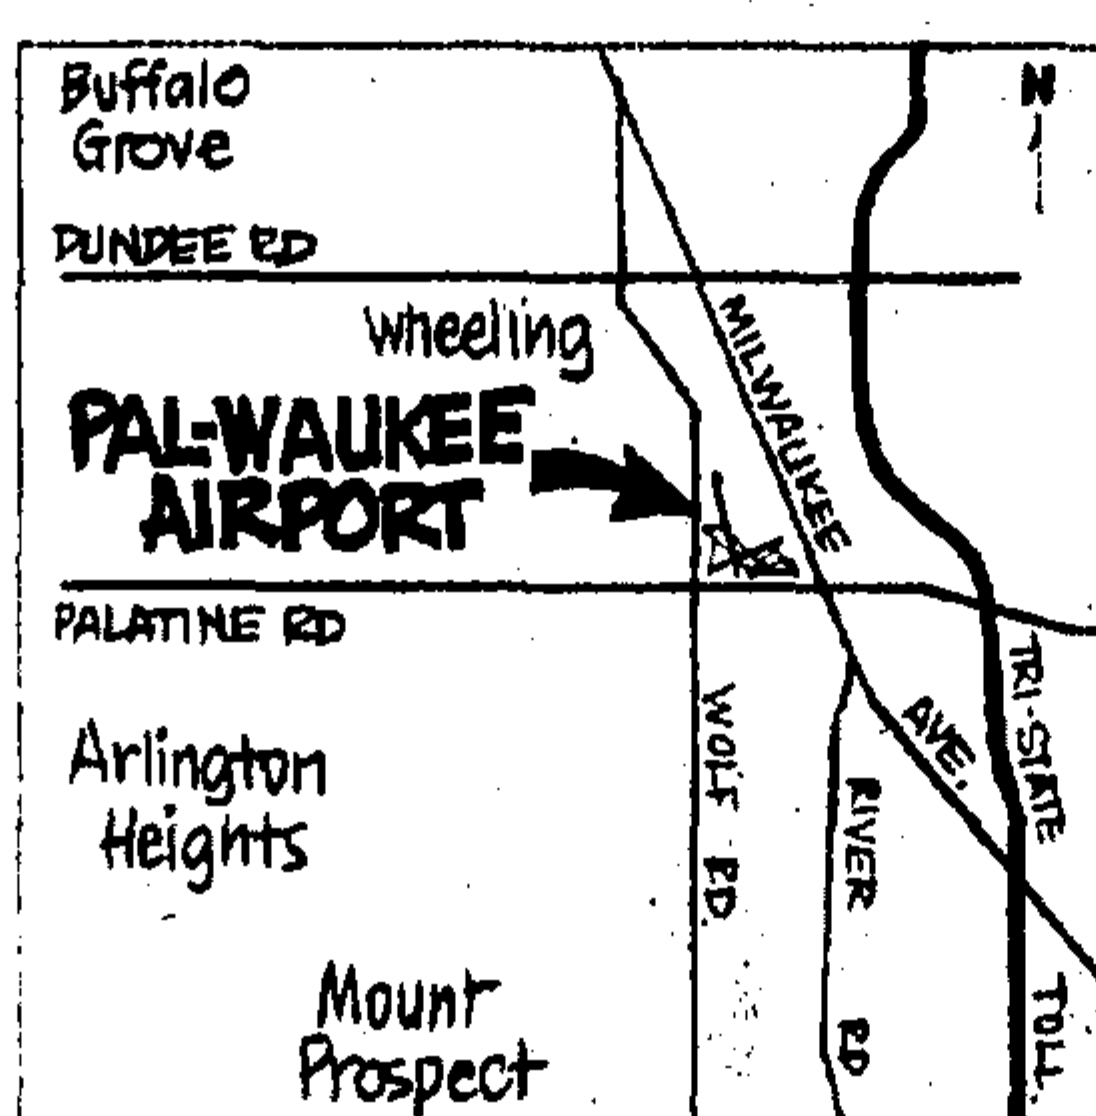

The Sabreliner jet owned by Rockwell International Inc. with two persons aboard crashed into the Lewis International Inc. building, 55 E. Palatine Rd. shortly before 2 p.m.

Injured in the crash and taken to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines were the pilot, John Pilato, 49, of Ambridge, Pa.; the co-pilot, Ted Chitanvar, 32, of McKees Rock, Pa.; an employee at the building, Richard Pankratz, 22, of 1500 Seven Pine St., Schaumburg, and Richard F. Bauer, 32, of 821 Lily Ln., Palatine, driver of an auto struck by the plane. Dennis Van Ewyck, 25, of Elmhurst, was the driver of the other car. He was not injured.

HOSPITAL OFFICIALS reported Bauer and Pilato were released Wednesday afternoon. Chitanvar was listed in good condition with lacerations. Pankratz was reported in intensive care with lacerations on the face and arms.

Hospital officials said Pankratz, an employee who was in the building when the 47-foot plane plowed through the front wall, was in stable condition and was kept overnight for observation.

Cornelius Quill, investigating officer with the Cook County Sheriff's police, said the plane's jets failed to reverse, forcing the pilot to rely on his brakes for the landing.

The plane made three attempts to land on the runway adjacent to Palatine Road, west of Milwaukee Avenue, Federal Aviation Administration officials said.

ON THE THIRD attempt, the plane's brakes locked after the engines failed to reverse. The plane skidded the length of the runway onto the grass, bounced over Palatine Road, striking two westbound cars and then crashed nose first into the front of the building.

The plane, its tail and left wing section protruding from the building, stopped three-quarters of the way into the parts section of the building, crumbling the east wall.

Wheeling Fire Chief Bernie Koepfen said that when firefighters arrived at the scene both Pilato and Chitanvar were free from the wreckage, stunned but apparently not seriously hurt.

Employees in the building said they heard a crash and ran out of the building when the plane came barreling into it. Nineteen employees were evacuated from the building including Pete Lewis, the owner.

"I don't remember what happened," Lewis said. "There was no explosion, thank God, or we all would have been gone. It was just a loud crash."

Fire officials made no attempt to move the wreckage but worked quickly to drain the plane of the 700 gallons of jet fuel in its tanks. Water hoses also were used to wash down the plane and channel leaking gasoline from inside the building to the street.

Koepfen said there was no immediate damage estimate to the building.

FAA officials arrived on the scene within an hour of the 2 p.m. crash. Koepfen said the plane would not be moved until today, and Wheeling fire and police officials were scheduled to monitor the area over night.

Cook County Sheriff's Police and Illinois State Police directed traffic on Palatine Road as onlookers caused traffic tie-ups. The site of the building is immediately south of the Milwaukee Avenue exit on eastbound Palatine Road.

FAA officials said the plane, based in Pittsburgh, was on a flight from Pontiac, Mich.

Pilato declined to comment following his release from the hospital.

Plane's swooping descent over 'in matter of seconds'

by LINDA PUNCH

"I saw it for just an instant. Then it hit my car. I saw the plane and I knew it was going to hit."

That's how Dennis Van Ewyck, a carpeting salesman from Elmhurst, described the Wednesday afternoon crash of a Sabreliner jet near Pal-Waukee Airport. Van Ewyck was driving west on Palatine Road south of the airport when he saw the plane.

"There was no way to avoid it. I instinctively put my head down. I heard a crash and as I looked up, I could see that my back window was knocked out," he said.

VAN EWYCK, 25, said the impact of the crash pushed his late-model, blue Buick LeSabre across the road, where it stopped several hundred yards later.

"It was all over in a matter of seconds. The right wing was over the car; the body of the plane fell over my trunk. I feel very lucky. I don't see how it could have been any closer," he said.

Mike Monckton, who was riding his motorcycle just behind Van Ewyck's car, said the jet hit a grass mound at the end of the runway and "skimmed

the car."

"I was just about to pass the car and I saw the plane coming out of the corner of my eye. I knew he wasn't going to take off," he said.

Monckton said the plane barely missed another car, broke its landing gear on the median strip and plowed into the Lewis International Inc. building, 55 E. Palatine Rd.

"I went across to the building and there was a guy crawling out of the plane. We found a board and carried him away from the side of the plane. It was too much. I couldn't believe it," he said.

MONCKTON OF GLENVIEW said the "only loud noise was when the plane shattered that guy's windshield. I can't believe anybody crawled out of there (the plane) alive," he said.

Steve Rothbart, a pilot, said he was visiting a sign shop at the neighboring Palwaukee Center for Industry "when I heard the crash."

"This guy came out of the side of the building and rolled over. I thought there was still somebody left but he came through the wall," he said.

Judge grants duo's plea for death

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Two confessed murderers who demanded they be sentenced to death in the electric chair got their wish Wednesday after the district attorney suggested "maybe they could flip a coin to see who goes first — or sit in each other's lap."

Circuit Judge Joseph Hocklander sentenced the defendants, Wayne Eugene Ritter, 23, and John Louis Evans, 27, both of Indianapolis, Ind., to die at Holman Prison on or before July 25.

Both acknowledged their roles in the slaying of pawn shop operator Edward A. Nassar Jr. Jan. 5 and threatened reprisals against any juror who failed to recommend the death sentence.

THE JURY RETURNED the conviction Tuesday afternoon and Hocklander held a hearing Wednesday to determine whether there were mitigating circumstances warranting a reduction of the death sentence recommended by the panel.

Neither defendant would allow his court-appointed attorney to present arguments during the hearing and Hocklander ordered the executions be carried out.

Alabama law provides automatic review by the State Supreme Court for capital punishment cases and Dist. Atty. Charles Graddick said he has asked chief Justice C. C. Torbert to expedite the appeal.

Ritter, testifying over objections of his defense attorney, told the jury it had "no other choice" than execution.

"If you give me life imprisonment I'll be out in 10 or 15 years," he said. "I know where you live, and I wouldn't appreciate spending that much time in prison."

"I'd have to come after you," he said.

GRADDICK, who agreed with the defendants that they should be put to death, told the jury of 11 men and one woman: "It is a shame we only have one electric chair. Maybe they could flip a coin and see who goes first, or sit on each other's lap."

The panel deliberated only 17 minutes before returning the guilty verdict. The one-day trial was the first capital case in Alabama to be filmed by television crews and recorded by radio stations.

The two men were accused of shooting Nassar in the presence of his 6- and 9-year-old daughters after entering his pawn shop and asking to see a gun.

Nassar's widow, dressed in black, sat near the rear of the courtroom during the trial.

Nixon talks freely on Frost show

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Richard Nixon's reactions on camera to pointed questions by television personality David Frost ranged from pleasure to discomfort, according to Marvin Minoff, vice president of Frost's Paradine Co.

"Sometimes Nixon was pleased with an answer he gave and showed it," Minoff said. "Sometimes he appeared uncomfortable. But he did not refuse point blank to answer any question put to him."

Minoff said he has been meeting with the former president off and on for almost two years in preparing the groundwork for the four 90-minute television interviews conducted by Frost during the past month.

THE SHOWS WILL be telecast by some 135 stations across the country beginning May 4 and continuing at weekly intervals May 12, May 19 and May 25.

Minoff, who was present at 11 of the 12 Frost-Nixon taping sessions, said "Nixon was cordial with me and David and the people of the crew."

"Once the cameras were going he was able to concentrate without any trouble. He's not a man who shows his feelings easily. Over the two years I've been talking to him, he seems a bit stronger now. He wasn't the man we saw on TV during Watergate."

Up to $3.5 million in revenue bonds will be issued by the Village of Mount Prospect to guarantee long-term federal funding for a proposed senior citizens apartment building in the village.

The village board earlier this week agreed unanimously to issue the bonds despite a warning from Chicago bond consultant Paul D. Speer that such action could jeopardize Mount Prospect's credit rating.

"There will be some effect on the future credit of Mount Prospect," Speer said. "How much is impossible to say. It will not destroy your credit. The question is whether and how much it would harm it," if the developer should go bankrupt or the project is foreclosed. "I don't think that would help the credit of the village any," Speer said.

HE SAID THE village would lend only its name to the bonds and would not have to raise taxes or revenues to pay off their indebtedness.

The Dell Corp., a Northbrook developing firm, last month asked the village to issue revenue bonds to help finance Centennial House, a six-story 100-unit apartment building for the elderly. The development, including 46 efficiency, 48 one-bedroom and two-bedroom apartments, will be built north of the Mount Prospect Plaza shopping center near Rand and Central roads.

William Draper, a Dell Corp. spokesman, said the advantages of the village issuing the bonds are:

- The U. S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development will subsidize the project for 40 years. If Dell secured a conventional bank loan for the project, HUD would only guarantee financial assistance for 20 years.

- Interest on the bonds is exempt from federal income tax.

- The village can obtain a lower interest rate on the bonds than Dell Corp. could on a loan.

THE DELL CORP. will be responsible for paying off the bonds through rents and HUD subsidies. No taxpayers' money will be used.

Monthly rents at Centennial House will be $250, $310 and $365 for efficiencies, one-bedrooms and two-bedrooms, respectively. Under HUD's rent-subsidy program, tenants will pay a flat rent equal to between 20 and 25 per cent of their annual income, with the government subsidizing the difference.

Stotts' medical record ordered from hospital

by DANN GIRE

Northwest Community Hospital officials in Arlington Heights will be subpoenaed for medical records of 19-year-old Larry R. Stotts, charged in the stabbing murder of a Mount Prospect grocery clerk Feb. 20.

Subpoenas were requested Wednesday in the Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court by Stotts' attorney, Thomas H. Hanlon, who said hospital authorities have refused to release records even with given signed consent from Stotts' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stotts, 1701 Dennis Pl., Mount Prospect.

Stotts, dressed in blue jeans and a print shirt, appeared calm and relaxed through the brief preliminary hearing before Associate Circuit Judge Jerome T. Burke.

A SPOKESMAN FOR the medical records division at Northwest Community Hospital said Wednesday that attorneys usually are allowed to obtain medical records, but if the materials are to be used in court, a subpoena must be presented.

Burke ruled that Hanlon could see, but not obtain copies of photographs taken of Nargis Alvi, 27, who was found stabbed twice in the chest inside a walk-through cooler at the K & G Food Mart, 1760 Algonquin Rd., Mount Prospect.

The victim was the wife of store owner Nisar Alvi, 359 Hawthorne Ct., Mount Prospect.

Hanlon said he is waiting for a post-indictment medical report from E. J. Kelleher, director of the Cook County Psychiatric Institute, which could recommend that Stotts not stand trial because of his mental condition.

A preliminary report on Stotts' condition was issued March 9. Officials at Cermak Hospital said in that report that Stotts suffers from aggressive fantasies and is "paranoid, unstable, narcissistic and impressionable."

STOTTS IS scheduled to appear before Burke May 18 in the Des Plaines branch court at which time Hanlon hopes to have Kelleher's report.

Hanlon said he may have to fly to Denver, Colo. to interview James McCarthy, who told police he was in the K & G Food Mart with Stotts shortly before police arrived at the scene.

Robert Stotts Wednesday said he is convinced "the police are trying to railroad my son."

His parents said Larry is an avid letter-writer since his incarceration in Cermak Hospital, Chicago.

"He's been telling us to keep the faith," his mother said. "He writes us letters all the time and sends us poems. He writes very philosophic poems. They're very deep."

Stotts father said "Larry's psychological attitude has been just super. His whole spirits are good."

STOTTS WAS arrested Feb. 21 about 28 hours after police found him at the scene. The suspect had called authorities to report a dead body. Police said they obtained a signed confession from Stotts shortly before his arrest.

Police also said they recovered the murder weapon, a five-inch pocket knife found under the dash of Stott's car parked in front of the grocery store.

Stotts had been fired from his job as an attendant at Bell's Finer Fuels, Algonquin and Busse roads in Mount Prospect, only a few hours before the murder.

Det. Sgt. Patrick Hallihan of Mount Prospect said there are indications Stotts may have a dual personality.

Police said Stotts admitted to the killing, but kept saying "Oscar did it," referring to another person who police say exists only in Stotts' mind.

Carey Olson and backup band perform.

Unusual group calls unchurched

by PAUL GORES

The marquee at Willow Creek Theater in Palatine never mentions it, but each weekend at the theater there is a unique free performance.

The performance features a variety of singers, backed by the music of electric guitars, an organ, piano, percussion and brass instruments. There is a colorful slide presentation set to music. There is a comical but poignant skit by several actors and actresses.

And most important to those who attend Willow Creek Theatre each Sunday morning, the performance features something they can take with them when they leave — a message from the Bible.

"WE'RE NOT your everyday type of church," said Bill Hybels, coordinating minister of the nondenominational Willow Creek Community Church. "We are for those who have been turned off by the traditional kind of church. We're the church for people without a church."

Two years ago at the age of 23, Hybels and another church coordinator, Dave Holmbo, set out to found a Christian church that would attract persons who normally spend Sunday mornings anywhere but in church.

"Dave and I went out knocking on doors to find out what it was about church that turns people off," Hybels said. "We asked them if they had a church, and if they did, fine, we would go to the next house. If they didn't, we would ask them why. We asked them if church were made more positive, 'would you be interested?'"

Hybels said he and Holmbo found many persons were staying away from church because of its "stiffness, boredom, guilt-ridden messages and negative approach."

So in October 1975 Hybels and Holmbo rented the Willow Creek Theatre and invited Palatine residents to perhaps the most untraditional church service they had ever seen.

IT INCLUDED many features of Son City, a Christian youth group that Hybels and Holmbo brought to Palatine only a month earlier. The modern music, the skits, the films and messages and prayer led by Hybels and Holmbo were put not only to youths, but to their parents or acquaintances who previously had little enthusiasm for church.

It has proved to be popular. Willow Creek Community Church has expanded from one morning service to two each Sunday, and has a regular weekly attendance of about 1,500 persons.

Son City has grown in two years from 175 high school students to 600. The church has branched into week-night activities, with Son Village, a Christian leadership training session for youths, meeting on Mondays at Pleasant Hill School in Palatine. The New Community, a Bible study and leadership training session for those college-aged and older, meets Wednesdays at the Arlington Heights Elks Club.

"We're getting to the point where we almost fill the theater twice (on Sundays)," Hybels said. He said it is time for the congregation to begin thinking about building its own church sometime in the future.

Hybels said the popularity of the Willow Creek Community Church is not a fad, but is "here to stay."

"We find that people who have given up on church really enjoy contemporary music and the program we offer," Hybels said. "And the message, too. The content is similar to any evangelical church in the area, but it's meant to be inspiring, helpful, practical and uplifting."

MUCH OF THE congregation appears youthful, but Hybels said that the church's growth during the last four months has come from "the upper end of the age spectrum."

The music, although it is played with instruments commonly associated with rock music, generally is mellow and appealing to persons of all ages. It is performed by Music Inc., a group of about 60 vocalists and 15 to 18 musicians who take turns performing on Sundays.

Each Sunday there is a slide show, presented by two or three projectors to create a motion effect on the screen. The slide illustrations are the original work of staff artist Ginny Meredith. They are often modern-day parables with a Biblical message.

The skits, too, are meant to drive home a point in an abstract way. They are usually comical, but contain a serious message.

ONE MIGHT expect other churches to accuse Willow Creek Community Church of offering gimmicks to attract attendance. But Hybels said that has not been the case.

"We are not competing with other churches," Hybels said. "These are people who were not members of another church. We are presenting an alternative to people who cannot go to a traditional church."

Unlike most churches, Willow Creek Community Church does not take up a collection from its congregation. Instead, there are two baskets at the door where persons can leave a donation.

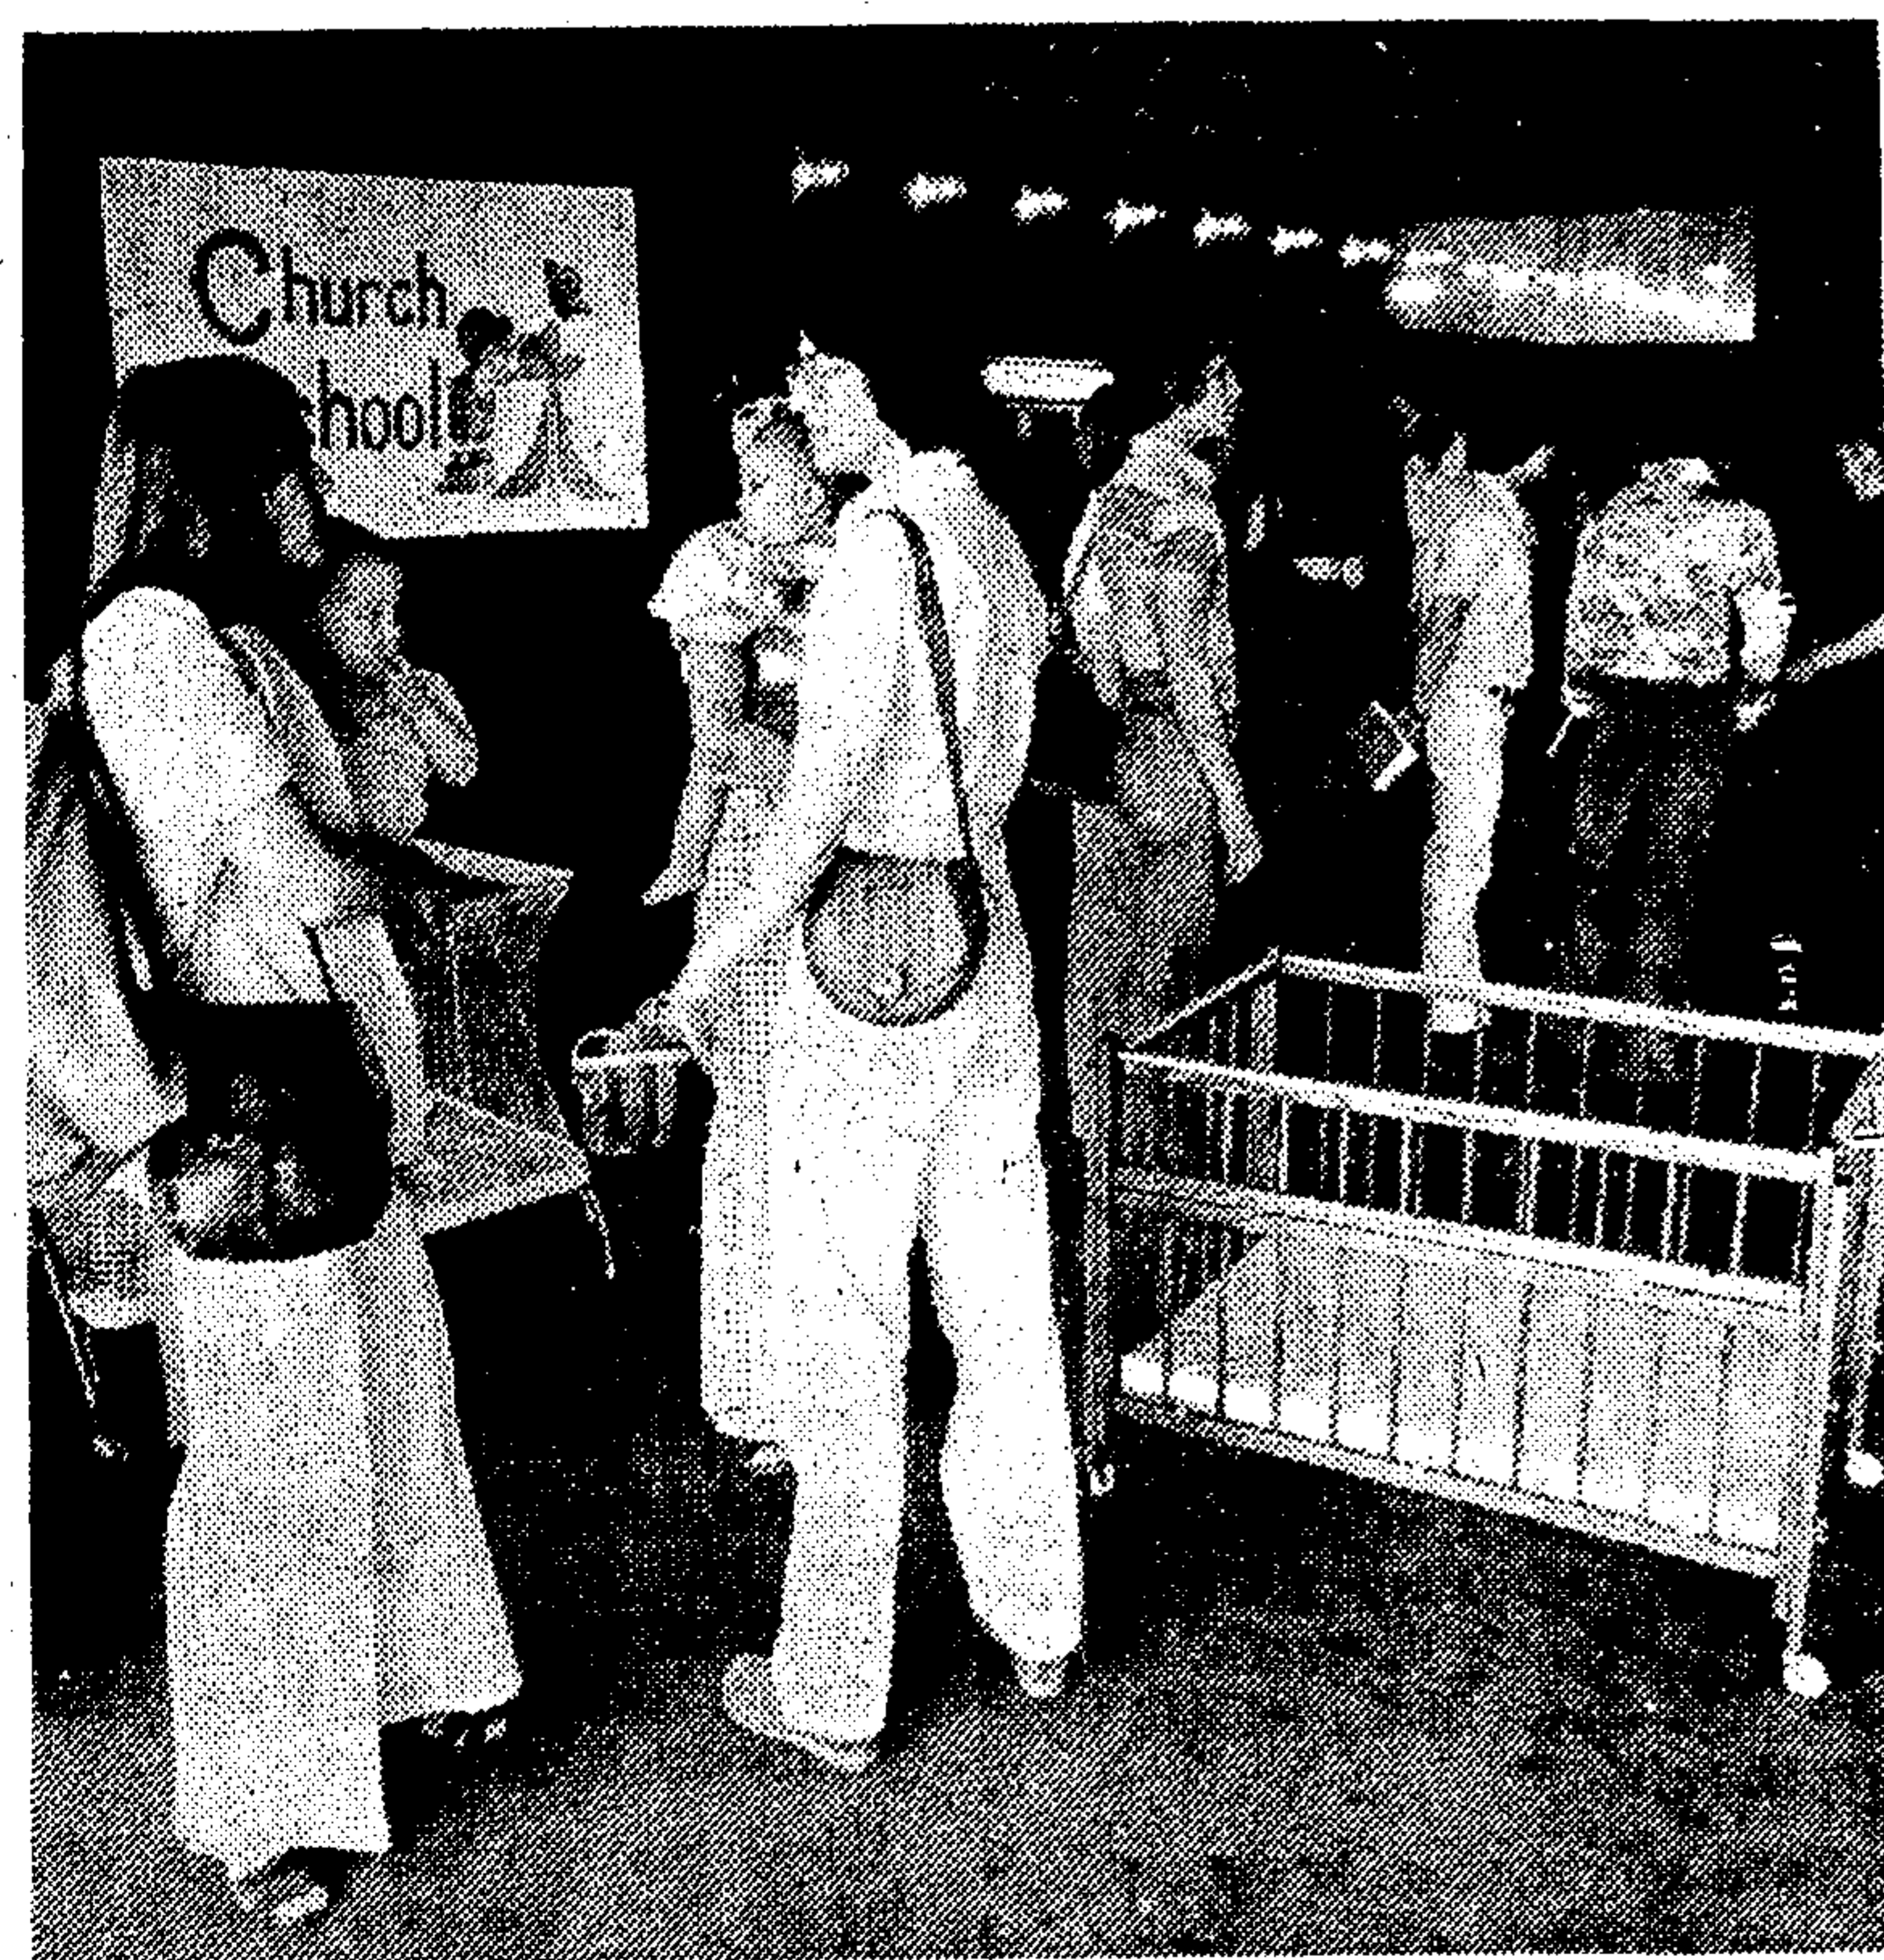

Despite the "no collection" policy, Hybels said the church has never had financial problems.

"We don't have a wealthy group, but we have a lot of people who are dedicated," he said. "Because of the dedication of our people we're doing very well. Our needs have always been met."

Hybels said the generosity of the Palatine Park District, whose Birchwood Park Recreation Center is used for the Son City youth meetings, also has helped.

"We would be the first to say Willow Creek is not for everybody," Hybels said. "We offer a creative, fresh positive, practical approach. We want to get people interested in God."

Bill on Lincoln County passes in Senate committee

by STEVE BROWN
 SPRINGFIELD — Legislation paving the way for Northwest suburban residents to vote on seceding from Cook County, limped out of an Illinois Senate committee on one leg Wednesday with Chicago Democrats offering only limited opposition.

One bill, sponsored by State Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, was approved by the Illinois Senate Local Government Committee. The bill drastically reduces the number of signatures needed to get the so-called Lincoln County issue, a drive to take six Northwest Cook County townships out of the county, on a referendum ballot.

The committee defeated another proposal to change the size of the majority needed to have a referendum approved. Regner delayed action on a third bill. He is the chief sponsor of the package.

"LINCOLN COUNTY is still alive," Regner said after the committee session.

State Sen. Richard M. Daley, D-Chicago, voted "present" on SB 149, which changes the petition requirements. Several other Chicago Democrats followed Daley's lead. The bill passed by a 5-2 margin with three voting present.

Chicago Democrats, however, blocked passage of the second bill, SB 150, which would have reduced the number of votes needed for passage from a majority voting in an election to a majority voting on the referendum itself.

"It's nice that (Senate Bill) 149 got through but (Senate Bill) 150 is even more of a key. If 150 does not get out of committee, we have a problem," said former Palatine Village Pres. Wendell Jones, one of the main proponents of Lincoln County.

He said he sent a mailgram to members of the Senate's local government committee Tuesday urging them to approve Senate Bill 150.

Jones said that currently if 200,000 persons cast votes in a general election and the vote on a referendum to form Lincoln County is 100,000 to 0 the measure would lose by one vote.

"THE CREATION OF a new county should be made tough but not impossible," Jones said.

Regner said SB 150 probably was more important to the ultimate passage of the Lincoln County effort, but agreed the approval of the petition bill was important to getting the proposal on the ballot.

Regner said the petition bill reduces the number of signatures required from one-half of the registered voters in the affected area to 10 per cent. He estimated the change would cut the number of signatures needed to about 21,000.

The committee action still must pass through the full Senate and Illinois House and signed by Gov. James R. Thompson before becoming law.

The lack of Democratic opposition may have been triggered by a representative for the Cook County Board to take a position on the bills.

"They asked me and I told them County Board Pres. George Dunne said he will not interfere," said Herman Knell, the county's legislative coordinator. Knell hinted Dunne's publicly announced "hands-off" approach may have influenced the Chicago Democrats. While Knell and Regner hinted the full Senate might follow the committee's lead, neither would offer any firm forecast on the fate of the bill.

Safety inspection revived

Mount Prospect's Chamber of Commerce is reviving its auto safety inspection program and will conduct testing from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. June 4. Doug Winklemann, a local service station operator again will be chairman.

The event had been an annual occurrence in town but has not been held in recent years. Motorists will be asked to turn south off Central Road on Wille Street, where the lane will be set up. Exit will be on to Northwest Highway.

Winkelman is seeking helpers for the inspection of brakes, emissions, horns, shocks and lights. Anyone willing to assist is asked to contact either Winklemann at Winklemann's Shell Service, 310 W. Northwest Hwy., 253-4900, or the chamber office, 398-6616.

The auto safety inspection is being conducted in cooperation with the Village of Mount Prospect and the Police Department. Stickers will be provided drivers whose cars pass the inspection.

SIX YOUNG WOMEN are competing in the Miss Flame contest sponsored by the Mount Prospect Fire Dept. Booster Club. The girls are Nancy Bortko, 1100 N. Meadow Ln.; JoAnne Leuzzi, 1800 Estates Dr.; Kelly McCroy, 1713 Willow Ln.; Gabriele Niefanger, 703 S. William St.; Valerie Winkelhake, 1507 W. Golf Rd.; all of Mount Prospect; and Marianne Katakis, 913 E. Wildwood, Prospect Heights.

On Saturday at 2 p.m. on the mall of the Randhurst Shopping Center, each contestant will present a two-minute talk on fire prevention. One week later, May 7, the girls will participate in the Fire Recognition Week parade that will go through town. The coronation of Miss Flame will follow the parade.

GRACE LUTHERAN Church, Euclid Avenue and Wolf Road, will host its annual All God's Daughters Banquet at 6:30 p.m. May 6. The Ladies of Grace are preparing the home cooked dinner and the Men of Grace will serve. The program will be a fashion show.

Tickets for the banquet are $2.75 for adults and $1.75 for children 12 and under. Call the church office, 824-7408, for tickets and additional information.

Defeat of unit vote prompts rehiring of 106 in Dist. 214

High School Dist. 214 has rehired 106 of the 128 nontenured teachers who were released last month because of the "uncertainty" surrounding the Elk Grove Township unit school district question.

The Dist. 214 Board of Education Monday rehired 40 of the 57 first-year teachers who had been honorably dismissed and 66 of the 71 second-year teachers. Of the second-year teachers, 64 were granted tenure and two were put on third year probationary status.

"With the unit district question finally laid to rest we can now get back to the business of educating kids and staffing up for next year," Robert Cudney, assistant superintendent for personnel services, said.

As student enrollments in various subject areas are assessed and teacher resignations and leave requests filed, Cudney said he is confident most of the 22 probationary teachers "on hold" will be rehired.

"They're all excellent teachers," he said. "There was never any question about their performance."

The board dismissed the 128 nontenured teachers because officials were unsure whether an Elk Grove Township unit school district would be formed and how many teachers from Elk Grove and Forest View high schools would remain with Dist. 214 if voters approved the unit district.

Dist. 214 attorneys said they were unsure of the district's legal responsibility if more tenured teachers than could be accommodated chose to stay with the high school district rather than go with the unit district.

According to state law, teachers who are going to be dismissed at the end of the term must be given 60 days notice.

Unit to set date for library vote

The date for a village referendum to increase the library tax levy is expected to be set tonight by the Mount Prospect Library Board.

Library officials will hold a special meeting at 7:45 p.m. in the library, 10 S. Emerson St., to discuss future funding of the facility.

Village and library officials agree the current library tax levy of 15 cents per $100 established under Illinois law, assessed valuation, does not generate enough money to operate the new library. The building, which opened last December, is about four times larger than the old library, 14

E. Busse Ave.

THE VILLAGE EXPECTS to collect about $390,000 from the library tax levy during fiscal 1977 which begins Sunday. Under its home-rule powers, however, the village board has authorized $473,264 for library operating expenses during 1977-78.

The village board, in its annual budget report to the village, said a referendum is necessary to raise funds "to a level adequate to provide long-range operating funds for the library." Additional money raised by a successful referendum would not be available until the 1978-79 budget year.

"The success of such a referendum would require the dedication and active participation of the village trustees, and the citizens of Mount Prospect," the library board report said.

The village board has budgeted $15,000 during fiscal 1977 to conduct the referendum. The question must be put to Mount Prospect voters before the village board passes a new tax levy ordinance in September.

Mayor-elect Carolyn H. Krause has advocated a referendum for more than a year after suggesting to the village board it appropriates only the amount it is required to levy under state law.
